ZUTA PROMISED SAFETY FROM GANG AVENGERS

Wanted for Quiz on Lingle Killing.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. The information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in Room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Precautions were ordered yesterday by Chief of Detectives John Norton to prevent the killing of Jack Zuta, now an important figure in the investigation of the murder of Alfred Lingle, TRIBUNE reporter. Zuta is due to appear today in the courtroom of Judge Joseph L. McCarthy and he can be assured of plenty of police protection on his trip there, officials said.

Lieut. George Barker is now under suspension for having given Zuta protection when he was released from custody last Tuesday night. Barker fought a gun battle with three men who attempted to assassinate Zuta while in Barker's car at Quincy and State streets. Barker was punished for this.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney and in charge of the Lingle investigation, said he is most anxious to see Zuta alive, as he believes the daring attempt to shoot Zuta to death was inspired by men involved in the murder of the reporter. Roche said he would be glad to furnish Zuta with an escort if such offer of help would insure the appearance of the notorious pander in court.

Zuta Freed on $400 Bond.

Zuta is under bond of $400 furnished by a professional bondsman to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct placed against him after his arrest last Monday. When his case was called in Judge McCarthy's court on Wednesday, Attorney Ben Cohen, representing Zuta, asked Judge McCarthy not to forfeit the bond, saying Zuta's absence was excusable in view of what had happened the night before and he said he would be able to produce Zuta in court on Saturday. Judge McCarthy told him to have the defendant there if he had to bring him in an armored car.

Zuta's arrest was not directly due to the Lingle murder, but rather was incidental to it, according to Roche. Zuta, formerly a west side brothel keeper, had joined forces with Bugs Moran and Joe Aiello, bosses of the gang of outlaws who had control of bootlegging and rackets on the north side.

War Between Gangs.

Then a war was started between the Scarface Alphonse Capone gangsters and the northsiders, in which the majority of the casualties were suffered by the Moran gang and there were desertions to the enemy. The view of several police commanders is that Lingle was caught between the rival armies and his murder was due to the belief he was giving aid to the Capone forces.

That theory was borne out through the discovery that the revolver used to kill Lingle and dropped beside his dead body had been sold to Frank Foster, who is now under arrest in Los Angeles, and who was accompanied at the time by Ted Newberry, a brigadier of the Moran army, who since has been in the company of Capone men; and further by the attempt to kill Zuta as he left police headquarters Tuesday night, according to officials.

What Roche Wants.

Roche plans to take Zuta to his office for questioning today if he appears in court. He had questioned Zuta about his knowledge of the Lingle case and he allowed Zuta to go free at 10 o'clock at night at the police station at 11th and State streets which is a dark and dismal neighborhood. Since then Roche has admitted his belief that the men who tried to kill Zuta as Zuta was being given a "safe conduct" by Lieut. George Barker, did so because of some information Zuta possessed about Lingle's death.

But Roche wouldn't say whether Zuta had given him that information. He did say, however, that if he can get from Zuta the names of the men who tried to kill him at State and Quincy streets in the presence of hundreds of people, it will be an important accomplishment. There is also a police theory that Zuta's life was sought by Capone gangsters in reprisal for the Lingle slaying.

Messages from Los Angeles said the police there were concerned last night

BOY LOSES LIFE, 20 INJURED ON FIREWORKS 4TH

Firecrackers

On Thursday night before the Fourth of July celebration started the Chicago safety council and other protective agencies warned against the use of fireworks and urged citizens to exercise care.

Last night a passing youth tossed a firecracker on the front porch of a dwelling at 1506 South Central Park avenue where two housewives, Mrs. Ida Greenburg, 52 years old, 3609 West 15th street, and Mrs. Sarah Karton, 48 years old, 1422 South Central Park avenue, were chatting. Bursting, the firecracker ignited the dresses of both women. They were painfully burned. The women were among twenty persons injured during the day.

One child dead and at least twenty children and adults injured was the toll of unrestricted Fourth of July fireworks and shooting in the Chicago metropolitan area yesterday.

Fires believed to have been started by fireworks damaged two homes and nearly cost the life of one citizen. The city fire department experienced the busiest Fourth in the memory of veterans, having answered 242 alarms in the 24 hours ended at midnight.

A fireworks stand exploded in Berwyn, causing the injury of a woman, and in the southwestern suburb of Bedford two men were seriously hurt while exploding dynamite to celebrate the day.

An effort by the city council to prohibit the use of explosives during the Fourth failed on Thursday when Mayor Thompson left the city without signing a measure repealing that part of the firearms ordinance which permits shooting off fireworks on the holiday.

Child Eats Explosive; Dies.

The dead child was Wayne Anderson, 3 years old, son of Roy Anderson, a truck farmer living on the River road south of Touhy avenue. He died at his home after eating part of a "son-uva-gun," an explosive said to contain sulphur and phophorus. The Morton Grove police were told the child obtained the "son-uva-gun" from a fireworks stand operated by his father.

This was the second life claimed by fireworks in the Chicago area this year, an earlier victim having been James R. Robinson Jr., 10 years old, who died of tetanus after shooting himself in the hand with a toy pistol.

The Injured.

Edith Gevenseven, 6 years old, 1143 South Kedzie avenue. Critically burned when her clothing caught fire as she played with matches given her by neighbor boys who were shooting off firecrackers.

Morris Eby, 34 years old, 7717 West 66th street, Bedford. His left arm was torn off below the elbow by the explosion of two sticks of dynamite planted in a field at the rear of his home to celebrate the day.

John Litkey, 55 years old, 7715 West 66th street, Bedford, uncle of Eby. He suffered a broken leg and thumb in the dynamite explosion. He and Eby had 100 sticks of dynamite ready for the celebration, the police said.

Mrs. Mary Ryback, 35 years old, 5328 South Aberdeen street. Wounded in the hand by a stray bullet as she sat on the porch of her home.

Margaret Starths, 8 years old, 1527 North Washtenaw avenue. Struck by an exploding firecracker flung from among a group of boys whom she was watching in front of her home. She was treated for burns at St. Mary's hospital.

Daniel Fitzgerald, 9 years old, 1611 North Latrobe avenue. Severely burned on the right hand when a firecracker he was holding exploded.

Marie Logan, 10 years old, 1510 South Crawford avenue. Burned on face and arms when her brother, Charles, dropped a lighted firecracker into his box of fireworks. Marie was sitting near the box, which exploded.

MOTORISTS SHOULD BE MORE CAREFUL IN VACATION TIME

MYSTERY PLANE SEEN TO PLUNGE INTO FRISCO BAY

Alameda, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—A plane late today plunged into San Francisco bay, disappearing beneath the surface. A few moments later only a few scraps of wreckage and a film of oil showed where the plane struck the water. The number of persons aboard is unknown.

The plane fell a mile opposite the Alameda airport. Pilots James Hennessey and Roy Varney, flying a San Francisco Air Ferry plane, said they saw it go into a power dive 800 to 1,100 feet above the water. They circled about the scene, but could see no bodies.

A checkup at the Alameda airport showed the plane was a biplane belonging to the Alameda Flying club and had been taken from the airport without permission.

Student Flyers Killed.

Neosho, Mo., July 4.—(AP)—Two student flyers were killed here early tonight when the airplane in which they were riding went out of control and crashed two blocks from the business section. Richard North Jr., 17, of Neosho, the pilot, burned to death in the wreckage. George Staats of Siloam Springs, Ark., who was on a wing, apparently attempting to repair an aileron, jumped just before the plane struck and was killed.

COP GIVES FLYER A TICKET FOR LANDING IN PARK

A stunting flyer from Curtiss field yesterday landed in a baseball diamond in Grant Park when his motor cut out over the loop and he was forced to descend. The flyer was J. L. McGrady, who, with Dale "Red" Jackson and Harry Allen, was taking part in the aerial pageant at Curtiss field. After he had landed McGrady was handed a ticket by Sergt. Arthur Hohlof for violating the ordinance prohibiting landing in the park.

The flyer said he had trouble with his carburetor. As he came down over the park he sounded his siren to warn those gathered below and after circling three times landed on the baseball diamond with his motor dead. He repaired his carburetor and took off again.

Roof Collapses; 1 Killed, 7 Hurt at Fireworks

South Bend, Ind., July 4.—[Special.]—Glenn Whiteman, 34 years old, was killed and seven others were injured tonight when a roof at Play Land park, an amusement place, collapsed under the weight of 100 spectators of a fireworks display.

Reichstag Given Permit to Doff Coats in Heat Wave

BERLIN, July 4.—(AP)—Germany's sweltering legislators today were much relieved when Vice President von Kardorff, who on June 29 ruled that they must not take off their coats in the reichstag chamber, rescinded the order.

Communists who tried to hold a demonstration in Union park at Ashland avenue and Washington boulevard yesterday, despite official rulings, engaged police in three skirmishes, only one of which reached the proportions of a riot.

By evening all was quiet on the west side, but 17 men and two women were in police cells charged with disturbing the peace, and two other men were at the county hospital with battered heads. In addition, a policeman, mistaken by other officers for a communist, was nursing a welt across his skull produced by a pistol butt.

Open Convention Today.

Radical agitators last night announced that no further organized attempt would be made to hold a park massmeeting here. The convention called by the National Trade Union Unity league will open at the Ashland auditorium at 10 o'clock this morning.

The one serious disturbance of the day occurred in front of the American theater at Madison street and Ashland boulevard. Police a moment previously had cleared the nearby Union park of nearly 1,000 persons, and the crowd, containing a few radicals but made up mostly of curiosity seekers, had moved on Ashland boulevard. The crowd began singing "The Internationale," the communist anthem, and a man tried to make a speech to the gathering, despite police orders to "move on."

Police Swing Their Clubs.

More than 50 police, held by Capt. Martin Mullen at the Des Plaines street station for emergency use, descended upon the crowd, swinging their clubs. Miriam Stewart, 22 years old, 4322 West 16th street, who says she is a communist, bit Capt. Willard Malone on the wrist when he tried to keep her moving, and immediately a dozen men were fighting with the policemen.

Joseph Dallett, 23, 1014 East 61st street, and Frank Palmer, alleged agitators, were treated for injuries at the county hospital. Sergt. Walter Moran, in plain clothes, was mistaken for a communist and beaten. The radicals tried to hold a meeting in Jefferson park and another at Warren avenue and Ashland boulevard.

Fire Sweeps Water Front; $1,000,000 Loss Believed

Boston, Mass., July 4.—(AP)—A fire of undetermined origin and unestimated damage swept a quarter of a mile of Boston's water front tonight. Eating away hundreds of thousands of feet of valuable lumber and thousands of tons of coal. Estimates by firemen and wharf and yard owners placed the damages at possibly $1,000,000.

NEGRO EX-POLICE CHIEF FATALLY SHOT AT CARNIVAL

The Negro community of Robbins, Ill., just south of Blue Island, was thrown into excitement last night when, at a carnival of Negro Elks, Joseph Williams, 35 years old, a dining car waiter, shot to death the former chief of police, John Mosely, 40 years old.

Witnesses said there had seen a feud between the two Negroes since a year ago when Mosely, as chief of police, had arrested Williams for wife beating. Sharp words passed between them when Mosely stopped at the concession stand which Williams was operating.

Williams leaped over the counter and, after a hand to hand tussle, fired the shot which pierced the former chief's skull. Mosely died en route to the St. Francis hospital, Blue Island. Williams surrendered to Police Chief John Moore.

Another Gem Robbery Among Long Island Homes

Locust Valley, L. I., July 4.—[Special.]—A cat-footed thief, avoiding delicate burglar alarms, got $20,000 worth of jewels last night at The Cedars, estate of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Blackwell on Brookville road. Coming within twenty-four hours after a $6,000 gem theft at the estate of George Sloane in Glen Head, not far away, the robbery causes Nassau county police to suspect a master thief was responsible. They recall Arthur Barry, who with "Boston Billy" Monaghan stole more than $2,000,000 in Nassau and Westchester counties three years ago.

WEARY FLYERS LISTEN TO 50 TALK AT DINNER

John and Kenneth Hunter, the endurance flying champions, who haven't been in a bed since June 11 when they took off on their attempt to break the world's record, sat dozing at a banquet table last night in the Sherman hotel, while 50 backers, mechanics, officials of the National Aeronautical association, managers, theatrical agents, and their friends spoke at length on their part in the successful flight.

At 1 o'clock this morning, after all had spoken, the endurance flyers rose to remark modestly that they were glad "everything went off O. K." and to add that they were tired. They stumbled off to bed in the bungalow on the roof of the hotel with the prospect of rising early today to prepare for a performance on the stage of a loop theater.

Hoover Calls Extra Session on Navy Pact

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover issued a call today for a special session of the senate beginning next Monday for the purpose of acting on the navy limitation treaty negotiated at the London conference.

Mr. Hoover thus made good his announced determination to obtain ratification of the treaty at a special session of the senate if it should not be acted upon during the regular session of congress which adjourned last night.

Many Senators Leave.

Many senators have left Washington, some of them for vacations in Europe, and an attendance of little more than a quorum is expected on Monday. The administration leaders will make every effort to procure ratification within a week or ten days, for if the consideration of the measure should extend beyond that time many senators favoring the treaty will be disposed to postpone action until after the election and adjourn.

The prospect is that if a vote can be obtained at this session the treaty will be ratified with not more than 15 senators against it.

Proclamation Issued.

"Whereas, public interests require that the senate of the United States be convened at 12 o'clock on the seventh day of July next to receive such communications as may be made by the executive and in particular to consider and determine whether the advice and consent of the senate shall be given to the ratification of a treaty for the limitation and reduction of naval armament, signed at London on April 22, 1930, by the plentipotentiaries of the President of the United States of America, the president of the French republic, his majesty the king of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, emperor of India, his majesty the king of Italy, and his majesty the emperor of Japan, transmitted to the senate on May 1, 1930.

Meet at Noon Monday.

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the senate of the United States to convene at the capitol in the city of Washington on the seventh day of July, next, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members of that body are hereby required to take notice."

Sun Sets Off Explosive; Auto Is Blown to Bits

Elkhart, Ind., July 4.—[Special.]—Stanley Emmert, 18, an amateur chemist, started out to celebrate the Fourth in a big way—by blowing out 15 windows in downtown stores and reducing his small coupé to bits.

The youth had mixed half a pint of sulphur and potassium chloride in a quart fruit jar and left it on the back seat of his coupé. The sun apparently found its way through the rear window of the car and the curved glass of the fruit jar in such a manner as to set off the blast.

Bachelor Finds Baby in Satchel on Porch Steps

Stepping to the back porch of his home last night, Alderich Grab, a telephone lineman of 1031 Buena avenue, discovered on the steps a satchel with a hole the size of a plate cut in its side. Opening the valise, he found, sleeping snugly inside, a baby boy, neatly dressed and about six weeks old. Grab, a bachelor, notified Town Hall police, who took the waif to St. Vincent's orphanage.

HUNTERS LAND; UP 553¾ HOURS; 'GIVE US A BATH'

Vast Crowd Watches Happy Ending.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Grimy with oil but grinning, John and Kenneth Hunter, the flying brothers from Sparta—in the southwest part of Illinois—landed their airplane City of Chicago at Sky Harbor last night, after being more than 23 days in the air, breaking the world's refueling endurance record by approximately 133 hours.

The Hunter brothers had been in the air 553 hours, 41 minutes and 30 seconds, and last night as the ex-coal miners sank back in easy chairs in a loop hotel they said they could have stayed up a week or more longer if their engine had held up that long.

Landing Is a Surprise.

Their landing came unexpectedly at 21 minutes and 30 seconds after 6 p. m. The holiday crowd, numbering some 20,000, which jammed the airport and overflowed into near-by corn patches, had begun to file away when the end came. The second-hand Stinson-Detroiter was continuing its monotonous flight in even circles about the field, and the ground crew predicted it wouldn't be down until today at least.

The trouble that brought them down developed towards evening. All during the day the flyers had been having trouble with their oil. First a feed line broke, spurting oil all over the plane. Then the motor began to pump oil.

At 6 o'clock the flyers dropped a note saying a gauge had broken again, draining the oil. More was taken to them and with it a load of gasoline. The refueling team, John and Albert Hunter, brothers of the flyers, returned with the word that the damage had been repaired.

Then the big orange and blue cabin plane roared 100 feet overhead, and a cry rose from the crowd: "Look out—they're coming down!"

Crowd Breaks Police Line.

John, who was at the controls, headed for the center of the field and brought the ship down at a speed that he said later was a lot faster than he had intended. But the landing was even and the plane rolled on down the runway and came to a halt before a grove of trees.

Even before its wheels had touched the ground the crowd, yelling and scrambling to reach the flyers, broke through the roped enclosure and surged across the field, carrying a half dozen police with them. They packed in about the plane and the flyers looked out at them blankly, apparently uncertain of what move to make.

Plane Taxis to Hangar.

W. F. McFarland, Illinois governor for the National Aeronautical association, one of the first to reach the plane, motioned to the flyers to taxi into the hangar. Fearful of the whirling propeller the crowd separated and the plane rolled back.

But before attendants could close the doors the crowd was again jamming about the plane.

A radio man managed to force a microphone into the cabin. John seized it and shouted into it:

"Hello world—sorry we couldn't have stayed longer."

The flyers were grinning by this time, although they still seemed to be in a daze from fatigue, augmented by the bedlam of the crowd and the wild cheering. They were hollow-eyed and unkempt. Both had a several days' growth of whiskers. Kenneth's coveralls, once white, were black with grease and he had to borrow a pair of trousers before he could remove them, for he had torn one leg from his breeches.

A Huddle of Hunters.

"We sure are tickled with our record," said Kenneth. "But what we want most now is a bath and a shave and a rest. You don't know how much you miss a bath until you've been without it for three weeks." Kenneth said they had managed to shave occasionally, during their three weeks in the air.

A path was cleared for the flyers and they were forced through the crowd to the attic of the hanger. There ensued a family re-union for the Hunters who had made a family affair of this endurance flight and incidentally established an all-family record that will probably hold for all time.

For several minutes there was hand shaking and hugging between John, Kenneth, Albert, and Walter; their sister, Irene; their mother, Mrs. Ida Hunter; Mrs. Pearl Hunter, Albert's wife, and his four children who clamored at the outside of this little huddle of Hunters. Albert, the eldest brother is 33 years old. Kenneth is 31, Walter 24, and John 27.

Landing Is Explained.

Neither of the endurance record holders had much difficulty in hearing although they cupped their hands behind ears when they were addressed. Both staggered and reeled a bit on their feet. When the first excitement was over John told newspaper men why the flyers had come down.

"We had been having trouble with the oil for some time. Then that oil gauge broke. We put more oil in and fifteen minutes after the refueling plane left. I noticed that the oil screen was clogged. I tried to fix it and couldn't. While we were debating whether to come down or to keep on fighting the ship to keep it up for another night and run the danger of cracking up on a forced landing, the engine began to get hot.

"I notice there was smoke coming up out of the oil screen. I knew it was all day then. It looked as if we'd burn out a bearing in a few minutes more, so I headed for the ground. I came in a little faster than I thought, but a fast landing is better than a slow one, eh, Ken? Before very long our motor would have frozen on us."

The Wright J-6 300 horsepower motor was still turning over when John cut the switch in the hangar. The old type Stinson-Detroiter was drenched with oil and gas, but otherwise showed no marks of the three weeks in the air.

"Last Word in Misery."

"I don't want to go through that again for a long time," declared Kenneth. "It's the last word in misery. Look at that," he said, and he pointed down into the hangar, where an open door in the plane revealed a a veritable pig sty inside. There were piles of rags, soiled shirts, tools, cans, funnels, and over all was an oily smear. This was the Hunters' home for their weeks in the air.

"It was plain hell for the first week," said Kenneth. "We ate oil, smelled it, breathed it and lay in it, rubbing it all over us."

When the first glad excitement of feeling the earth under their feet again was over the boys prepared to go to Chicago. Casey Jones, vice president of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, ordered a luxurious Sikorsky amphibian with twin motors and soft cushions in its cabin to fly the champions down to the Grant park lake front to land in the water in order to avoid Sunday traffic. But the Hunters put a stop to these plans as soon as they heard them.

No Flying for These Boys!

"Nothin' doin'," they said. "We've had enough flying to last us for a long time. We want to go into the city in an automobile if it takes us all night." So the big Hunter family, that has had more excitement in the last few days than it has had in a lifetime in Sparta, were bundled into three automobiles and swept downtown. A motorcycle escort with sirens screeching led the procession and crowds along the way cheered. A county highway policeman tumbled from his motorcycle in the rush, but the procession of cars kept on.

The seven Hunters, all smiling, entered the Hotel Sherman while a loop crowd shouted and fought to watch them pass.

Up in the bungalow atop the hotel the Hunter boys in their grease smeared clothes sank back into soft cushions and gloried in the peace of their surroundings. Somebody suggested that a doctor examine them.

"Doctor, nothing," John said. "There's nothing wrong with us. Bring in a doctor and I'll throw him out."

Have Some Brotherly Spats.

"The first week up in the air was the hardest," John said. "We began to think that this flight was going to be terrible. But then we got used to the food and the life. We got a little more rest as time went on. Yes, we scrapped among ourselves, but it wasn't serious. Anyway who wouldn't? There toward the last it got hot and that bothered us. Then the nights were darn cold. In the last few days I've been working 'Beans' a little too hard." And he reached over and slapped his grinning brother on the back.

"We've been workin' each other pretty hard," said "Beans," as Kenneth is known among his friends.

"We didn't get much sleep the last few days," John went on. "There was a lot of planes flying around all the time and I was afraid of running into them. I wasn't as wide-awake as usual, you know. We wanted to stay up another week, but we didn't think it was safe after the afternoon's trouble to go on trying to fight the plane to keep it up.

"There toward the last it seemed that the ship was fighting us. We were afraid that something would develop in the night and it would have been dangerous to land her at night—danger of overrunning the field or cracking up and either one of these things would have spoiled our chances of getting the record."

Show Reserve of Stamina.

The swarthy lads who through labor on farms and in coal mines around Sparta, which is in the coal belt a little south and east of St. Louis, built up a physical stamina that allowed them to stay in the air for more than three weeks, were not ready to go to bed right away.

They hopped into tubs of hot water and scrubbed for a half hour. Then two barbers came in and shaved them. After that, with Walter and Albert and Irene and the rest of the Hunters gathered around them and with a handful of backers and officials and newspaper men, the world's champion endurance flyers sat down to a big meal on a table cloth, served by uniformed attendants, and they listened to words of praise.

"We'll be out and walking around the street same as ever," said Kenneth before turning in.

Stay Here a While.

What their program would be today, they did not know. They said they would stay in Chicago until they had mapped out their program. But they were in no great hurry, they said, to get back to Sparta where, according to Albert, folks used to say "those Hunter boys will break their fool necks riding around in them fool contraptions." At Sparta the citizens were arranging a mass meeting next Monday when plans will be made to give the boys a real homecoming.

The two flyers will probably be on the stage with their brothers and others in the Hunter family before many days have passed. Stage and movie offers have been made to them but no contracts have been signed. Money has been rolling quite briskly since they passed the previous world's record last Sunday. Their biggest award has been $10,000 from an oil company for the first hundred hours they stayed up after the former world mark.

There was a rumor that the Wright company planned to pay them $50,000 for their motor, but there was no apparent basis for the rumor. They received more than $8,000 from a beverage concern and $600 from a manufacturer of airplane accessories. In addition they were paid a sum of money for the right to broadcast their messages from the plane.

A Source of Wrangling.

The revenue to the flyers has been a source of much wrangling since they established the new record. Yesterday before they descended, the refueling brothers made known that the boys would probably be down the next day because they "were tired with what's going on on the ground." The two backers are Wilson Herron and Frank Conroyd, who were formerly interested in the plane, then called the Chicago We Will, in which the Hunter brothers attempted to break the world's record last year.

Yesterday Barney Majewski, an oil salesman, appeared on the scene with the announcement that he was manager. His efforts at peace only brought more war among those who were endeavoring to "cut in" on the revenue of the flyers. It was also stated that Clyde Elliott, former manager for Vilma Bankey, would take the flyers under his wing.

Something to Shoot At.

The Hunters said last night that they would not attempt another endurance flight unless some one broke the mark they have just set. Then, they said, Albert and Walter may do the flying and Kenneth and John will refuel their plane.

The City of Chicago, grimy with oil, was nestled in the hangar under a heavy guard at Sky Harbor last night waiting for the Hunters to find out what they are going to do with it.

In the opinion of veteran flyers who have watched them, one thing the Hunter boys have proved beyond anything else is their ability to fly. Toward the close of their venture their refueling contacts were made without ever a miss. Their flying training they received in the back lots and pastures of downstate villages. They worked on farms and in coal mines after their father died 18 years ago and in 1924 two of the brothers went to St. Louis to buy a motorcycle and changed their minds, making a down payment on an old Hisso powered Standard. The plane was brought here Thursday and yesterday Albert flew it, while Chicago pilots looked on amazed that the wings didn't fall off.

John Instructs Brothers.

With three hours of instruction John, then 24 years old, brought the new airplane home and taught his brothers how to fly. What they lacked from instruction they picked up while they flew at county fairs where they had been familiar figures before on the dirt tracks with their racing motorcycle. They cracked up five airplanes, but the first, somehow, held together.

Sparta citizens were a little terrified at their antics. Last night one of the brothers said the reason they didn't hurry back to the home town was because "we never got a break down there until we broke a world's record." But Sparta is all for them now, anyhow. Dispatches from the town have proved that.

John and Walter flew recently on air lines carrying passengers into Chicago. Kenneth instructed students here last year. When the endurance attempt was started Albert dropped his coal business and brought Walter and Irene up to help. Irene did the cooking for the flyers. Mrs. Ida Hunter, their mother, followed when the boys had passed the world's record. Last night she was quietly proud.

"My boys," she said, "never started anything they couldn't finish."

BURN 7,670 GALLONS OF GAS IN FLIGHT; REVENUE IS $25,000

The City of Chicago when it landed last night had flown the equivalent of 40,800 miles. In its flight the plane maintained a cruising speed of about 70 miles an hour, just enough to maintain itself in the air.

A total of 7,670 gallons of gasoline was burned at the rate of about 13 gallons per hour. It varied when the flyers had to alter the altitude of their plane. The oil, used amounted to 380 gallons. There were about 300 contacts made with the ship by the attendant plane but an accurate record of the number was not kept.

The plane used was an old style Stinson-Detroiter which now has about 1,000 hours in the air, including the endurance time. The motor, a Wright J-6 300 horsepower, has close to 500 hours, including the latest flight.

A conservative estimate of the revenue already accrued to the flyers is $25,000. This they must share equally with the two backers. It includes $10,000 from an oil company, $600 from an instrument manufacturer, $8,000 from a beverage firm, about $4,000 from gate receipts and other concessions at Sky Harbor, and about $1,000 from radio broadcasting companies and other sources. Much larger sums are expected from exploiting the endurance feat.

SOUTHERN CROSS AND COMMANDER END WORLD TRIP

Such Flights Over for Him, Leader Says.

Future More Staid

Oakland, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith, here on the end of an air trip around the globe, said tonight his world flights are over. He will wed Miss Mary Powell in Sydney, Australia, in September, and take up management of commercial aviation interests in that country.

Oakland, Cal., July 4.—[Special.]—The Southern Cross is home again. We landed here at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon [5:30 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time], having come over the Sierras from Salt Lake City, 645 miles, in 6½ hours.

It certainly was a great homecoming for the old ship. It is a little more than two years ago since she left the long runway on which she landed this afternoon for the flight to Hawaii and then on over the Pacific to Suva, a tiny spot on the air road to Australia.

A Plane of Parts.

I am constrained to talk about the old plane rather than any other features of the trip, although her record is pretty well known. The Southern Cross, when I got her, was an old airplane which had been subjected to strenuous treatment by another Australian, Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins.

Wilkins had two Fokkers that were built in 1925 in his exploration work in Alaska. One was a single motored job and the other a tri-motor. They both sustained some damage and were of no further use to him in his arduous task.

I had in mind a trip to Australia by plane, and I heard of the two Fokkers. At the Boeing factory in Seattle we managed to put the tri-motor in shape by borrowing something from the single motored job. I obtained three whirlwind engines from the Wright company and was partly ready for the flight around the world.

Makes Endurance Flight.

Before starting, however, I wanted to be sure that the ship had the range, and so with Lieutenant Commander George W. Pond I tried to beat the world's duration record. We missed it by only a few hours, but we accomplished more than that. I knew at least that I had a ship capable of flying any ocean that I wanted to tackle.

This is enough ancient history, except for the mention of G. Allen Hancock of Santa Maria, Cal., whose influence and backing alone made the world flight possible.

I won't go over the Pacific flight. We got to Australia, depending on radio, and after flying about there for a bit, got into difficulties in the bush. That in itself, although delaying the continuation of flight, was an advantage, for that is how I met John Stannage, our radio operator on the Atlantic flight. Stannage was operator aboard one of the rescue planes that came after the Southern Cross when it was lost.

Gathers Crew for Atlantic.

Finally we got started again and flew from Australia to London, another big bite out of the trip around the world. But I was still wanting a crew, and the old plane needed some repairs before starting across the Atlantic.

The story of how I got the crew has been told. Everett Van Dyk, my co-pilot, was the pick of the Dutch air service, and he has proved it. Van Dyk came to the expedition through the Fokker company. Johnnie Stannage of New Zealand walked in on me in London, and I promptly grabbed him.

A Bit of Irish, Too.

Capt. J. Patrick Saul, the navigator, is an Irishman. I had a Dutchman, New Zealander, and I thought that an Irishman would be appropriate to finish our international team. Capt. Saul retired from the sea five years ago and is a prosperous business man in Ireland, who discovered that he still needed a little more adventure in his life, so he came along.

The fact that we are here more or less on schedule, that we found Harbor Grace airport after being thoroughly lost off the Grand Banks, is due to the equipment and the crew. I can't say enough about them all.

Woman Flies to 20,000 Feet, Breaking Own Mark

San Diego, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—Ruth Alexander, flying in a 90 horsepower Barling monoplane, today soared to a height of 20,000 feet. The former record, made by Miss Alexander about six months ago, was 15,000 feet.

BALLOONS SAIL AS WIND WILLS OUT OVER TEXAS

2 Traveling Farthest to Enter International.

Belleaire Speedway, Houston, Tex., July 4.—(AP)—Soaring along beneath a starlit sky, 15 balloons contesting in the national elimination balloon race tonight were headed northwestward, propelled by a moderate breeze from the southeast.

The weather bureau deduced that, bar a change in the wind, they should pass over the Dallas-Fort Worth region about dawn.

The two entrants traveling farthest will be declared eligible, along with Ward Van Orman, to represent the United States in the international race starting from Cleveland Sept. 1. Van Orman automatically became the third United States representative by his victory in the international last year.

Settle First to Start.

Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, from the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., who won last year's race, was first to leave. He cleared the field at 6:08 p. m.

The veteran aerounau of all those who came here with hopes of placing either first or second in the competition was left behind. H. E. Honeywell of St. Louis remained on the ground looking longingly after his yellow craft, which George Hineman piloted away.

Pilot George Hineman and aid, Milford Vanik, followed Settle at 6:11 in the United Van Service of Cleveland.

Lieuts. W. D. Buie and J. P. Kidwell of the army were next at 6:15 p. m.

Then came the entry of the Aero Digest, New York, whose pilot was S. T. Moore and whose aid was Lieut. W. O. Eareckson. They cleared at 6:20 p. m.

The fifth to leave was the Detroit Times bag, piloted by E. J. Hill, who had A. C. Schlosser for an aid. It got away at 6:27 p. m. The balloon dropped a shower of dirt on the spectators as it went away.

Army Bag Is Next.

Capt. K. S. Axtater's army entrant swept away behind a hill at 6:37 p. m. Lieut. R. Holmes was the aid.

Lieuts. W. R. Turnbull and C. M. Brown took their army bag off next, getting away at 6:40 p. m. The eighth was the Goodyear Zeppelin of Akron, O., which left at 6:44 p. m. R. J. Blair and F. A. Trotter formed the team.

The others went in this order:

No. 9, navy, Lieuts. W. Bushnell and J. A. Grenwald, 6:47 p. m.; No. 10, navy, Lieuts. R. R. Dennett and C. F. Miller, 6:53 p. m.; No. 11, General Electric, Cleveland, S. A. U. Rasmussen and T. W. Southworth, 6:58 p. m.

No. 12, Detroit Aircraft, W. A. Klikoff and R. S. Cunningham, 7:03 p. m.; No. 13, Kelvinator, Detroit, Dr. George Legalle and R. W. Ebert, 7:09 p. m.; No. 14, Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, C. H. Roth and W. P. Carey, 7:14 p. m.; No. 15, City of Houston (balloon belonging to army), Lieut. Otto Weinecke and W. N. Fox, 7:20 p. m.

OPPOSE COLLEGE PROFESSORS AS PROPAGANDISTS

Washington, D. C., July 4.—(AP)—Acceptance of funds from private sources by professors and colleges investigating controversial public questions was pronounced undesirable in a report made public today by a committee of the American Association of University Professors.

The report resulted from the federal trade commission investigation of public utility concerns employing professors in propaganda.

The report alleged that in almost every case of alleged improper activity the individual "was either a subordinate or connected with an extension department or technical school."

"The university professor must be like the judge. His reputation for impartiality must be unsullied," asserts the report.

WOMAN ROBBED OF GEMS, CASH.

A swarthy robber about 30 years old held up Mrs. Ethel Crawford late Thursday night in the vestibule of her apartment, 1934 East 74th street, snatched her purse containing $55, a diamond ring and cameo pin, valued collectively at $625, and escaped.

G. O. P. ROW MAY GET INTO COURTS IF HUSTON GOES

He Resents an Attack by Mark Requa.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—A sensational letter written by Mark L. Requa of California, reputed to be President Hoover's Col. House, is figuring prominently in the ruction over the effort of the administration to force the resignation of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee.

The Requa letter is said to contain statements reflecting upon the reputation of Mr. Huston, who pronounced them slanderous and retained legal counsel to proceed against Requa on a charge of criminal libel.

Friends of Huston assert that the chairman was persuaded to withhold his threatened action against Requa by a representative of the President, who gave the assurance that Mr. Hoover would call off the fight on Huston and let bygones be bygones. On behalf of the President it is denied that any such assurance was given Huston and asserted that Mr. Hoover has refrained up to date from calling for Huston's resignation only because of a desire to save his associate of many years from any unnecesary humiliation.

Hoover Must Decide Soon.

In view of the situation that has developed, however, the President will be compelled to decide in the next few days whether to make a personal demand on Huston for his resignation or resort to removal of the chairman by the executive of the national organization.

The Requa letter incident is only one of numerous angles of the Huston affair which is now revealed to public view as a drama of high and low politics, the figures in which include the President of the United States, cabinet members, senators, congressmen, chorus girls, power trust magnates, an adventuress, an oil millionaire, Republican national committee men and committee women, Hoover second term boosters and "boy scouts" of the Morrow for President movement.

Huston Long Hoover's Friend.

Huston was Mr. Hoover's choice for national chairman. He had served as assistant secretary of commerce under Mr. Hoover in the Harding administration. He was one of the leaders in the Hoover nominating campaign and would have been national chairman in 1928 but for two reasons: One was that Dr. Hubert Work, who nursed the Hoover boom in its infancy, would have been heart broken had he not been given the place. The other was that Huston was needed for important undercover work in the campaign.

In 1929, however, when Dr. Work had evinced lack of sympathy with the Hoover political program, particularly with reference to the south, the President asked for his resignation and got it. He put Huston in, requiring him to divest himself of all his private business interests that the affairs of the G. O. P. might be conducted on a high moral plane.

Huston a Church Elder.

The fact that Huston is a Presbyterian elder and the son of a Presbyterian minister was emphasized. Republican leaders looked forward to a management of the party under Elder Huston as satisfactory as that under Will Hays, another Presbyterian elder.

A few months after this change in the chairmanship occurred the first of that series of episodes which proved disturbing to the White House. Huston was guest at a dinner in a New York restaurant at which, it appeared, Peggy Hopkins Joyce was also a guest. This incident so alarmed the Hoover entourage that an investigation was instituted. A member of the national committee sent an emissary to Peggy Joyce, who in response to a question said she not only was not acquainted with Mr. Huston, but never had heard of him. She was surprised to hear that he was her fellow guest at dinner.

And Then the Chorus Girls.

Next there was the episode of the chorus girls. Mr. Huston, who is a widower, gave a great "coming out" party in Washington for one of his four daughters. The entertainment was furnished in part by chorus girls from Earl Carroll's "Vanities." It happened that Mr. Huston went to New York that night on the same train on which the chorus girls returned from Washington. The New York newspapers interviewed the chorus girls, who said Mr. Huston was a nice man. This publicity elicited some soulful groans from the White House.

Finally there was the disclosure in the senate investigation of lobbying that Huston, before becoming national chairman, had obtained $36,000 from the Union Carbide company to pay off the debts of the Tennessee River Improvement association, which was lobbying for Muscle Shoals legislation, and had deposited the money temporarily in his stock speculation account.

The information that Huston was involved in this deal is said to have been furnished by a power trust representative, who feared that Huston, as Republican national chairman, would be able to obtain legislation handing over the Muscle Shoals power to the Union Carbide company and the American Cyanamid company instead of the water power companies.

"Resign" Hints Ignored.

It was after this revelation that President Hoover decided to get rid of Huston as national chairman. He sent numerous emissaries to Huston to say that the President desired his resignation. Huston told each one he had done nothing to be ashamed of and that he would not resign unless he should receive the request from the President's own lips.

Then a back fire on Huston was started. Several agents were sent out to interview members of the national committee. They told the members that the President wanted Huston to resign and why. They urged the members to write to the President protesting against the further retention of Huston in the chairmanship.

One of these agents, named Stewart, interviewed Mrs. Barnett E. Marks, national committeewoman for Arizona, at Phoenix. According to Mrs. Marks he told her that he had seen the national committeewoman for New Mexico, Mrs. W. C. Reid, at Albuquerque, and that Mrs. Reid had agreed to write the letter requested.

Mrs. Marks Investigates.

Mrs. Marks was suspicious and telephoned national committee headquarters in Washington. Headquarters telephoned Mrs. Reid, who denied that she had promised to write the letter Stewart wanted, but had learned from Stewart that he had been sent out by Mark Requa, a rich San Francisco oil man who has been closely associated with Mr. Hoover for many years. Mrs. Reid told Stewart to tell Requa that if he had anything to say on the Huston matter he should say it himself.

Thereupon Requa wrote Mrs. Reid a letter telling her why the elimination of Huston from the national chairmanship was desired. The letter subsequently came into the hands of Huston, who was highly incensed thereat, and immediately ordered the libel suit, which his friends say is being held in abeyance pending determination of the chairman's fate.

Successor Hard Choice.

It appears that there will be as much difficulty finding a successor to Huston as in getting rid of him. The selection of Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.] is being vigorously opposed by Hooverites, who, finding that Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman for New York, is for Fess, suspect that the Morrow for President boosters are trying to gain control of the committee.

Morrow agents are reported already at work in the south, paving the way for intensive delegate garnering in 1932.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS MAN?

If you have, call Wabash 4747, the detective bureau, and notify the police he is at large and where he may be found. These are rogues' gallery pictures of George (Bugs) Moran, former convict and leader of north side gangs since the killing of Dean O'Banion, Earl (Hymie) Weiss, and Vincent (Scheme) Drucci. Seven of his followers were killed in the St. Valentine massacre of 1929. He is one of the men listed as public enemies by the Chicago crime commission.

HEFLIN TICKET WINS FULL INDORSEMENT AT BIRMINGHAM RALLY

Birmingham, Ala., July 4.—(AP)—A resolution indorsing the candidacies of Thomas J. Heflin as United States senator, Hugh A. Locke as governor, and Dempsey Powell as lieutenant governor was adopted unanimously this afternoon at a massmeeting of their supporters.

The resolution also declared for an amendment to the primary law providing for the election in 1931 of a new state Democratic executive committee "in an election in which all white Democrats can run and vote and from which no white Democrat can be barred, either as a voter or candidate."

The resolution sets forth that the three candidates stood pledged to support such legislation and indorsed an amendment requesting the election of delegates and alternates to the Democratic national convention.

ADMIRAL BASSETT TO WED FRIEND'S WIDOW, REPORT

According to an unconfirmed report Rear Admiral Frederic Brewster Bassett, U. S. N., retired, will shortly be married to Mrs. Eleanor Stuart Blue, widow of Admiral Bassett's close friend, the late Rear Admiral Victor Blue.

At Admiral Bassett's listed residence, 401 Fullerton parkway, attendants said he had recently engaged larger quarters at 2137 Commonwealth avenue and that the marriage was expected.

No one was at the admiral's new home. His business partner, Henry D. Cleveland, member of the investment firm of Haines, Spencer & Chancellor, could not be reached. It was recalled that when Admiral Bassett commanded at the Great Lakes Naval Training station in 1919 Rear Admiral and Mrs. Blue were his frequent visitors.

BILLINGS AND MOONEY LOSE PARDON FIGHT

No Clemency Urged by Court.

Sacramento, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—Independence day brought another defeat to Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney in their long fight for freedom from life sentences, imposed for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day bombing, which killed ten persons and injured 40.

The state Supreme court, in a report made public today, voted 6 to 1 against recommending to Gov. C. C. Young that Billings be pardoned. The governor repeatedly has said his action on Mooney's pardon plea would be guided by the recommendation in Billings' case.

Gov. Young is expected to make his decision on both the Billings and Mooney pleas next week.

The adverse report brought a smile from Mooney at San Quentin prison.

"The fight is not yet over," the former labor leader commented. "It has been a long battle and I am never going to give up the attempt to prove my innocence."

Billings, at Folsom prison, had nothing to say, but Warden Court Smith remarked, "Naturally he was very disappointed."

No Perjury Found.

Mooney and Billings have long contended they were convicted on "perjured testimony," but the Supreme court said there was no evidence supporting these charges. The majority believed Billings had received a "fair and impartial trail."

"Billings' past and present affiliations make it fairly inferable," the court said, "that he was familiar with plots and plans of the bombing.

"This being so, it is an almost irresistible conclusion that if Billings did not prepare and plant the deadly time bomb of the Preparedness day disaster, he and his assistant and co-defendant, Mooney, knew and have always known who did prepare and plant that bomb and the deadly purpose for which it was prepared and planted."

Associate Justice Langdon dissented, saying: "I am not so free from doubt of petitioner's guilt as to withhold a recommendation for executive clemency."

Setback in Thirteen Year Fight.

The decision added another disappointment to the many experienced by Mooney since Feb. 10, 1917, when he was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. Billings had received a life term.

Presidential intervention by Woodrow Wilson won a commutation from the governor of California for Mooney. Then the long campaign for pardon was started. Mooney's friends charged police were panic stricken at inability to fix the crime on the perpetrators and manufactured evidence against the defendants.

GYPSIES ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Two Gypsy women, posing as Indian herb doctors, stole $500 from Mrs. Anna Nordeen, 5700 West Superior street, yesterday, by tricking her into belief that her ailing child would be cured if she placed all her money in a handkerchief under the child's pillow. They slipped away with the money.

HEARST REPORTER IS CONVICTED OF PLOT TO EXTORT $75,000

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—[Special.]—After being out twenty-five hours a jury in Judge Rey Scharer's court tonight found Morris Lavine guilty of attempted extortion. Lavine, until his arrest, was a newspaper reporter working for Hearst's Los Angeles Examiner. A similar verdict of guilty was returned against Miss Leontine Johnson.

The pair were tried jointly for demanding $75,000 from Charles Crawford, Los Angeles politician, on pain of mentioning him unfavorably, together with several of his locally prominent friends, in articles which Lavine and Miss Johnson were publishing in the Los Angeles Examiner.

By conviction the pair become liable to sentences of one to five years' imprisonment, and fines. The Lavine-Johnson articles were an exposé of incidents preceding and following the Petroleum corporation, in which 20,000 stockholders lost their savings.

The jury stood eleven to one for conviction all day. One woman juror at first balloted to acquit Miss Johnson, who was private secretary for S. C. Lewis, former president of the Julian corporation. Lewis now is a federal convict, sentenced for using the mails to defraud.

Lavine and Miss Johnson claimed in their defense that they were merely trying to sell documents salvaged from the Julian corporation offices by Miss Johnson, and were giving Crawford an opportunity to purchase them.

COLLINS FAILS TO BREAK MARK LINDBERGHS SET

Roosevelt Field, Long Island, N. Y., July 4.—[Special.]—James H. [Jimmie] Collins, former army racing pilot and Curtiss test pilot, landed here tonight after a fast but unsuccessful attempt to lower the transcontinental speed record set last May by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. His landing time was officially set by Walter D. Ward, local timer of the National Aëronautic association, at 10:03:30 p. m. He left Burbank, Cal., at 5:33 a. m. [E. D. S. T.].

Collins was more than two hours longer in making the flight than were the Lindberghs, who completed their trip in 14 hours 35 minutes.

Shot, Taken to Hospital; Refuses to Tell About It

With a bullet wound in the abdomen, James Spisa, 18 years old, 3238 Jackson street, Chicago Heights, staggered out of a coupe into St. Margaret's hospital at Hammond early yesterday and the car speeded away. Spisa, told he may die, refused to tell the police anything about the shooting except that it occurred on Torrence avenue in Lansing. "I'll take care of it when I get out of the hospital," he said.

NO-MAN'S LAND SHOP ROBBED.

Burglars broke into the Edith West dress shop, 1645 Sheridan road, in No-Man's Land between Wilmette and Kenilworth early yesterday, and escaped with 100 frocks valued at $7,000.

CRIMINAL COURT PRAISED FOR PEP SHOWN BY JUDGES

But Commission Warns of Summer Languor.

The Criminal courts have shown a marked improvement in industry during the first quarter period of 1930, according to statistics released yesterday by the Chicago crime commission in its official publication, "Criminal Justice."

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, said that the figures for the second quarter, which will be released soon, will show that most of the judges assigned to the Criminal courts have continued to display a desire to "put in a day's work," but that the approaching vacation period threatens to spoil the régime of Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle.

Want Judges on Job.

It is contended by the commission that ten judges should be on the job at all times during the vacation months, but indications are that only two or three judges will be regularly on the job during most parts of July and August.

"Crime never sleeps and neither should the courts," was the comment of the commission head.

Judge John P. McGoorty, who is to be chief justice of the Criminal courts when the fall term opens in September, goes on his vacation next week. Because of his ill health during part of the last year his associates have permitted him to prepare for the arduous task before him by resting during July and August.

Judge Harry B. Miller, who has not taken a regular vacation for three years, is also preparing to leave for a two or three weeks vacation during the latter part of July. Judge Martin Isaacs has announced an European vacation and other judges, it is reported, are preparing to leave for periods of one month to six weeks each.

No Holiday for Prosecutors.

State's Attorney Swanson has indicated that his entire staff will be on the job throughout the vacation period. He has not announced any vacation schedule for prosecutors and he will be ready, he says, to take care of all courts that remain open.

Judge Otto Kerner, who was one of the three judges criticized by the commission in 1928 for "paltering with crime," is shown in a different rôle by the report. He has not yet announced his plans.

"Judge Kerner stands out in industry," says the crime commission.

"The first important improvement in Criminal court performance commenced with June, 1928, or shortly after the commission voiced a demand for more industry, more judges and a cessation in the practice of bargaining with defendants," says the report. "The commission contended, and still does, that there should be not less than fourteen judges assigned to the Criminal court permanently. That during the summer vacation period at least ten judges should be present each day to try cases."

Prison Sentences Shown.

In a series of comparative statistic tables the commission shows the tendency of the courts to send defendants to the penitentiary rather than to the institutions for petty offenders. The report shows that 289 men were sent to the penitentiary during the first three months, as compared with 108 to Pontiac reformatory, an institution for youthful criminals where they may be trained in useful trades. During the same period 110 prisoners were sent to the Bridewell, mostly in felony waiver cases.

Death penalties are few, however, the commission points out. Two such sentences were imposed in the first three months of the year, while none have been reported in the last two months.

The month of June was memorable in the courts because for the first time State's Attorney Swanson points out two of the so-called "big shots" of gangland have heard juries report verdicts of guilty against them. They are Anthony [Red] Kissane and Jack [Machine Gun] McGurn, who have been found guilty of carrying concealed weapons and sentenced to 1 year each in the county jail and fined $300. This is the first time in the long careers of either man that they have been found guilty of any crime.

The campaign is to be kept up during July with the start of the trial on Monday before Judge E. I. Frankhauser of Bernard O'Donnell. Red Barker and Jack White will be tried as soon as O'Donnell's case is disposed of.

Quizzed in Slaying

Mrs. Frank Foster, whose husband has been indicted for Lingle murder. She was arrested with Foster and four others in Los Angeles.

over the arrival of a mysterious express package consigned to Frank Foster at the apartment building where Foster and other Chicago suspects were arrested last Monday. The package, weighing 15 pounds, was demanded by the Los Angeles police, but they were refused possession at the apartment building. The police then went out to find a judge who would issue a court order for it. The authorities said they wanted to make sure that the parcel did not contain guns or ammunition or bombs.

Mystery Is Solved.

The mystery of the package was solved here, however, when members of the state's attorney's staff assigned to the Lingle murder were asked about it. They disclosed that it contained a shipment of tailored shirts which Foster had ordered from a New York manufacturer. The Chicago investigators received information about the shirts before they were shipped from New York last week, and they intended to trace their delivery in Los Angeles to the hideout of Chicago gangsters. The hiding place was found before the shirts arrived through other clews, so the Chicago authorities paid no further attention to the package.

Neither Investigator Roche nor Chief Norton was able to establish any connection between the Lingle murder and the killing Thursday night of two Chicago hoodlums in Detroit in front of a hotel there. The dead men were William Cannon and George Collins. Cannon had lived at the Olympia hotel at 1015 North Clark street, in Chicago, with a woman named Julia Kuffell, and he was known here as Julius Kuffel.

Tells of Telegrams.

Lieut. Andy Barry of the detective bureau questioned her yesterday. She said Cannon went to New York early in June—about the time of the Lingle murder—and after a time sent her a request for $25 which she sent to him. On July 2 he wired her from Detroit as follows: "Send $30. Things are breaking badly here."

Lieut. Barry said his investigation disclosed that Cannon usually wore some kind of a star and specialized in shakedowns while he was impersonating a policeman. A star was found on the body.

A telegram from Montreal notified the Chicago police that Henri Bouchiere, a Belgian, 60 years old, and reputed collector for a blackmail syndicate and bondsman for owners of houses of ill fame and gambling joints, had been "taken for a ride" there. He had formerly lived in Chicago, the Montreal police stated.

PARALYTIC SHOOTS SELF.

Henry Smith, 50 years old, a paralytic, shot himself twice below the heart yesterday in an attempt to end his life in his room in the New Wabash hotel, 1234 South Wabash avenue.

TREASURER OF AUSTRALIA FACES CHARGE OF FRAUD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, Australia, July 4.—A political scandal today shook the Australian government following the publication of the official inquiry on the purchase of the Mungana mining leases in Queensland in 1920 and the subsequent operation of the mines. The report accuses the present federal treasurer, E. G. Theodore, former premier of Queensland, of fraud and collusion. Premier W. McCormack of Queensland is also named.

The report accuses Mr. Theodore of sharing $154,000, the cost of the lease with Mr. McCormack, and charges him with putting his own operatives in the mine in order to conceal its true financial position.

It is believed Mr. Theodore will be forced to resign, although he has been named acting federal premier for the impending absence of Premier James H. Scullin at the London imperial conference. His resignation would retard the presentation of the new budget which was reported to contain drastic taxation proposals.

KING CAROL AND HIS DIVORCED PRINCESS TO 'KISS AND MAKE UP'

BUCHAREST, July 4.—(AP)—Within ten days, the divorce decree separating King Carol II. and Queen Helene will be annulled by the Rumanian courts, it was learned today.

Legal proceedings leading up to the annulment will be opened during the coming week. The chief plea for it will be the written protest of King Carol's lawyer at the time the decree was prononunced. In this protest Carol declared he did not recognize the divorce.

When the decree has been annulled, King Carol will take up his summer residence at the royal palace in Sinaia with Queen Helene and their son, Michael.

The king has recently passed many hours every day in young Michael's apartment, holding long conversations with Queen Helene. Queen Helene last night attended a farewell dinner to former Queen Elizabeth of Greece in the Cotrocent palace.

BOY LOSES LIFE, 20 INJURED ON FIREWORKS 4TH

Two Hurt by Dynamite in Celebration.

Mrs. Sadie Reed, 26 years old, 6648 South Justine street. Struck in the head by a bullet as she rode in an automobile with her husband, Harry, and William Haaker, 6643 South Justine street, in Kedzie avenue between Washington and Warren boulevards.

Charles Czochra, 47 years old, 3225 Natchez avenue. Shot in the left side by John and Victor Stansa, 14 and 16 years old, who were playing with a .22 rifle they had found under a mattress in the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Josephine Garfola, 3218 Natchez avenue.

Alberta Thorneroft, 13 years old, 3000 Van Buren street. She was playing at Sacramento avenue and Van Buren street when a boy with a pistol fired a blank cartridge, the flame of which burned through her dress and scorched her hip.

Mrs. Rebecca Simmons, 32 years old, 4357 Drake avenue. Bruised when she fell in fleeing from a fireworks stand, one of seven at 22d street and Wesley avenue, Berwyn, which exploded. She and her husband, John Simmons, had been operating the stand.

Raymond Urbanowski, 17 years old, 2946 North Lawndale avenue. Burned by skyrocket that he held in his hand after lighting it at Lawndale and Milwaukee avenues.

Saved from Burning Building.

The first fire attributed to fireworks damaged the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haupt at 847 Ferdinand street, Forest Park, who were away for the holiday. Albert P. Rosander, a tenant, was asleep in his second floor room when J. H. Rubenie and J. A. Bendel, neighbors, saw smoke curling out of the windows.

Finding the doors locked, the men broke in, went upstairs and found Rosander, who was aroused just in time to escape in a bathrobe. The loss was estimated at $5,000. Investigation disclosed that the blaze started in some papers in a garbage container, thought to have been set afire by a firecracker tossed there.

A fire originating in a shed at the rear of 2625 North avenue, believed to have been caused by children playing with firecrackers, wrecked two sheds and caused $1,000 damage to the home of William Frendreiss at 1656 North Talman avenue.

CITY OBSERVES DAY

Throughout the city generally, however, flags superseded fireworks as the symbol of the Independence day celebration. The observance of the 154th anniversary of the signing of the declaration of America's freedom was varied but not vociferous.

Cool weather and a slightly overcast sky affected the usual July Fourth popularity of the miles of beaches. Not more than a third of the usual swarms of bathers appeared for a dip, according to the managers of Clarendon beach, where 10,000 gathered; Jackson beach, where the estimate ran to 20,000, and 76th street beach, which attracted approximately 4,000.

Other thousands crowded the lake steamers, the parks, the country clubs, the golf links, the forest preserves, the movie theaters, and the numerous educational institutions along the lake front and in the parks. It was estimated by authorities at those buildings that 36,000 Chicagoans and visitors yesterday investigated the attractions at the Field museum, Shedd aquarium, and Adler planetarium.

Lewis Addresses Gathering.

One of the largest gatherings in the city was that sponsored by the Rogers Park post of the American Legion and the north shore park board, held on the lake shore at Farwell avenue. James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for United States senator, was the speaker of the day.

"No nation," Mr. Lewis declared, "can call itself free and independent which for politics or prejudice allows its governing powers to dictate to the individual his personal habits, his morals, his course of food and drink, education of his children, and the religion of his church to the point where the just liberty of the man or woman is suppressed and the freedom of life as directed by heaven is denied.

"When people yield to having each of their businesses set upon by spies and informers and the institutions of business to be under the suspicion and accusation from the bureaus of government who send their swarms of agents and accusers to spy upon every branch of commerce and inpugn the faith of any undertaking of industry—tyranny has taken the place of liberty."

30,000 At Mooseheart Fête.

At Mooseheart, the closing day of the forty-second annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose merged with the July 4 celebration, at which it was estimated the crowd of delegates and visitors reached 30,000. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, speaking over a national hookup of radio stations, emphasized the influence of the spirit of '76 on American life today, and expressed an optimistic view of the country's future.

Oak Park was host to one of the largest gatherings in or about the city last night when the fireworks spectacle sponsored by Oak Park post 15 of the American Legion was held in the high school stadium. Charles H. Crysler, president of the village, Riverside inhabitants gathered at the village common to hear an address by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Ball Games in Lake Forest.

At Lake Forest, a "millionaires team" comprising Alexander H. Revell Jr., Roger Bronson, Harold Ambler, John Lee, Floyd Evans, and Frederick Keith played an annual doubleheader of indoor baseball against the "Market Square team" of business men. The business men won the first game, 8 to 2, and the "millionaires" the second, 7 to 5.

Evanston celebrated with a parade of floats down Central street in the morning, and a fireworks spectacle at the Dyche stadium last evening, preceding which the battle of Chauteau Thierry was fought in mock warfare.

FALLS TO DEATH

MISS MARY STEVENS.

Funeral arrangements were being completed yesterday for Miss Mary Kathryn Stevens, 23 years old, 7241 Jeffery avenue, who was injured fatally on Thursday when she was thrown from a horse at 111th street and Kedzie avenue. Miss Stevens was the daughter of Avery A. Stevens, head of the A. A. Stevens & Bros., awning dealers, at 1234 South Wabash avenue.

FOURTH IN PARIS 'CHILLED' BY HINT OF ILL FEELING

French Show Resentment Over U. S. Tariff.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 4.—Independence day, in which the French usually take a keen interest, was celebrated here with mixed sentiments this year.

The French resentment against the new American tariff unmistakably chilled the usual spontaneous celebrations. By order of the prefect of police, the French and American colors were hung out on all the principal boulevards, but the Stars and Stripes were seen less frequently than on any July 4 in recent years.

A cartoon in the newspaper La Intransigeant sums up the general French reaction pretty well. The paper featured the American celebration as the principal news event and handled the account in a polite manner, but under the article was a little sketch headed "Independence Day," showing France trying to offer a bouquet of flowers to Uncle Sam, who is entrenched behind a tariff wall. A legend underneath says: "Where there is tariff there are flowers, too."

The day's activities opened with the customary ceremonial pilgrimage, headed by Ambassador Edge, to lay a wreath on La Fayette's tomb.

London Welcomes Dawes.

LONDON, July 4.—A cordial welcome was offered Ambassador Dawes by Americans here when he appeared at the Independence day dinner given by the American socity in London at the Savoy hotel tonight. Mr. Dawes, who returned from New York yesterday, was the principal speaker.

Roosevelt Speaks in Porto Rico.
[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 4.—Without referring directly to the protest of nationalists to observance of the fourth of July as a day without significance save to the United States, Gov. Gen. Roosevelt in a Spanish speech today asserted the Declaration of Independence was not only the great document of a nation but of the world.

Quoting the section stating all men are endowed by the creator with certain inalienable rights, including life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized the right of every man to the pursuit of happiness, which, he said, it was his aim to provide in Porto Rico.

Morrow Gets Congratulations.

MEXICO CITY, July 4.—(AP)—President Ortiz Rubio and his wife and children, accompanied by Foreign Minister Estrada, attended the American colony's Fourth of July celebration today. President Rubio congratulated Mr. Morrow on the outcome of his recent campaign and expressed pleasure at his return to Mexico.

U. S. FOR PEACE, VICE PRESIDENT SAYS IN JERSEY

Ocean City, N. J., July 4.—[Special.]—The American people and the American government are doing everything within their power to bring about world peace, but they will continue to avoid entangling alliances with other nations, Vice President Charles W. Curtis declared in an address delivered in the Ocean City tabernacle on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the city's birth and the establishment of the tabernacle.

The American people are not desirous of possessing an extraordinary army or navy, Mr. Curtis said, but forces adequate for defense are required.

"The resolution describing the flag of our country was adopted when, in the midst of strife and war, the infant republic was fighting and struggling for its existence," he said. "This emblem signaled to humanity the birth of the first nation on the earth dedicated to personal and religious liberty of mankind. We are proud of the fact that no territory was ever added, except by purchase or discovery. Each star in the flag is an emblem to record a great event in the history of the country."

BRITISH FINANCIERS APPEAL FOR TARIFFS IN TRADE MANIFESTO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—A manifesto practically sounding the death knell to free trade in Britain and urging the promotion of inter-imperial trade was issued late last night by Reginald McKenna, chairman of the Midland bank, and other financial magnates.

Calling on the political leaders of the country to prepare to place a tariff on all goods imported from foreign countries while retaining an open market for empire products, the resolution declares:

"Urgent measures for the promotion of inter-imperial trade are needed to secure and extend a market for British products both at home and through the export trade. We believe an immediate step for securing and extending the market for British goods lies in reciprocal trade agreements between nations constituting the British empire. As a condition of securing these agreements Great Britain must remain an open market to all empire products while she must be prepared to impose duties on all imports from other countries."

40,000 OBSERVE AMERICAN 4TH IN DANISH PARK

Chicago Singing Society Furnishes Music.

BY JOHN AHL-NIELSEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, July 4.—For the nineteenth time Americans and Danes today celebrated the Independence Day of the United States in the American national park, Rebild, where this celebration has become an institution each year, gathering a crowd of some 40,000 from America and Denmark.

The Americans in the crowd included Danish born Americans and their children and friends, together with the American colony in Denmark and some tourists who had heard of this unique celebration in the only existing American national park not on American soil.

And from all Denmark—from Norway and Sweden—Scandinavian born Americans visiting their native countries came to sing under the Stars ad Stripes below the Danish summer sky.

Many Chicagoans Attend.

Last year the Danish king and queen attended the feast and this year the most prominent guests were Dr. Henry Goddard Leach of the American Scandinavian foundation and Dr. Knud Rasmussen, Danish explorer.

From Chicago came more than 1,000, among them members of Chicago's oldest Danish society, "Dania," and the Danish singing society, Harmonien.

Among the Chicagoans was James Skallerup, a Dane by birth, who emigrated to Chicago 62 years ago and has been a well known figure in community politics. He lost his citizenship papers during the Chicago fire and has since been "guarded by the eye of the law," as one of the other Chicagoans said. When Skallerup now—for the first time in 62 years—wanted to get out of the United States he was denied a passport, and only after much trouble was he allowed to sail for Denmark.

Dr. Henius Opens Celebration.

Dr. Max Henius of Chicago, president of the Rebild National Park board, opened the celebration. Dr. Leach spoke on the American and Danish flags.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the Chicago singing society "Harmonien" sang the opening bars of "The Star Spangled Banner" and then changed the melody and the words into the last bars of the Danish national hymn, "King Christian."

Next year an American log cabin will be inaugurated in the park. The logs for the cabin will be a true image of Abraham Lincoln's birthplace, will be assembled from all 48 states by Danish immigrants and presented to the park board.

FIVE HURT AS AUTOS COLLIDE.

Whitehall, Ill., July 4.—(AP)—Five persons were injured when the automobiles in which they were riding collided near here early today.

9 DIE, 85 HURT AS NEW YORK OBSERVES JULY 4

New York, July 4.—[Special.]—New York's Independence day casualties were nine dead and eight-five injured. Five persons were drowned as 2,000,000 jammed the various beaches. Fifty rescues were made. Four were killed and three injured in automobile accidents on overtaxed highways surrounding the city.

Less than the usual number of fireworks accidents were recorded. Eighty-one persons were burned or otherwise hurt as boys and girls tossed firecrackers about during the day and set off pyrotechnic displays at night despite a city-wide ban on all sorts of fireworks. Most of the injuries were minor. Several small fires were started, but on the whole this year's Fourth celebration was subdued.

French Seek to Abolish Guillotine For Executions

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 4.—Abolition of the guillotine as the method of inflicting capital punishment is being advocated throughout France on the ground that it is inhuman and unnecessarily cruel.

Descendants of the family of Dr. Joseph Guillotin, after whom the sinister machine is named, are supporting the campaign on the ground that the doctor was a bitter opponent of capital punishment, and that his sole connection with the decapitating process lay in the fact that he sponsored a law in 1788 providing for a single method of execution.

Old Methods Inhuman.

Previous to that time offenders were put to death in various ways. They were hanged, burned, broken on the wheel, quartered by having their arms and legs attached to four horses which were driven to the four points of the compass, and by the garrotte. Beheading was applied only to nobles, and shooting to the military.

The national assembly at Versailles passed the guillotine law in 1792, and the same body adopted an apparatus then in use in Italy as the means of applying capital punishment.

Dr. Antoine Louis, secretary of the Academy of Surgery at the time, undertook to perfect the Italian machine and, with the help of two aids, Schmidt and Clairin, he constructed the first, which was popularly called "Louisette," after his own name. It was first used in April, 1792, when a highwayman was decapitated.

Chagrin Kills "Godfather."

As time went on the machine was nicknamed "la guillotine," although the eminent doctor continually disclaimed any connection with it. As a result he sickened and died of chagrin, his family asserted, because of the connection of his name with the engine of death.

No change has been made in the apparatus in nearly 140 years. The condemned man is placed against a balancing board which falls flat from his weight with his head first. The board is then thrust forward along a groove until the condemned man's neck is directly beneath the weighted knife blade suspended above between two uprights.

Weight Speeds Knife.

A wedge is then lowered to hold the head and neck in place. Then the knife is dropped and it cleaves through an aperture in the wedge to behead the victim. A weight of 16 pounds is attached to the knife blade to insure its severing the head. The body then rolls off the balanced board into a wicker basket alongside, and the head is picked from a smaller basket in front of the machine.

Charles Deibler, or "Monsieur de Paris" as he is called, has become an expert in the manipulation of the guillotine that his crew carry out execution in an average time of four seconds from the moment the condemned man approaches the machine.

in a cigarette it's Taste

THROUGH COMPETENCE, the individual rises to positions of responsibility and respect. Through dependability of taste, a cigarette attains ever greater popularity.

INCREASING MILLIONS of Chesterfields are lighted each day because smokers find that in this cigarette good taste is unfailing.

CHESTERFIELDS ARE RICH IN AROMA, flavor and fragrance, which come from the right selection of choice tobaccos, blended and cross-blended to a rare cigarette goodness. They offer the utmost in smoking enjoyment . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

CANAL PROGRAM BILL SIGNED BY THE PRESIDENT

Waterway Building Pays, Hoover Declares.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—President Hoover today signed the rivers and harbors bill carrying authorizations aggregating more than 146 million dollars. In a statement expressing satisfaction with the program for inland waterway development the President referred to it as "a long view plan for the future." He made it evident that he has no intention to approve an immediate increase in annual appropriations to expedite the completion of the Illinois waterway and other projects.

The President made no direct reference to the authorization for a $7,500,000 appropriation for federal completion of the Illinois state waterway project, which is one of the principal features of the new law. A declaration for the completion first of the main trunk systems might be construed as meaning that the Illinois waterway would be regarded as having preference over most other projects.

No Increase Provided.

By stating, however, that "the bill does not call for any increase in the budget for this fiscal year," the President offered scant hope for early completion of the Illinois waterway as Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, has taken the position that no funds for any of the projects authorized by the new rivers and harbors law can be allotted from the $55,000,000 lump sum appropriation for the fiscal year 1931.

Completion of the Illinois waterway within less than five years will be unlikely, according to the engineers, unless the President through the budget bureau authorizes an increase in the annual lump sum appropriations for river and harbor work.

"It was with particular satisfaction," said President Hoover, "that I signed the rivers and harbors bill as it represents the final authorization of the engineering work by which we construct and coördinate our great systems of waterways and harbors, which I have advocated for over five years; it was promised in the last campaign and in my recommendations to congress.

Tells of Freight Plans.

"We can now build the many remaining segments of a definite canalization of our river systems through which modern barge trains of 10,000 to 15,000 tons of burden can operate systematically through the midwest and to the Gulf of Mexico, and through the lakes to the Atlantic.

"The system, when completed, will have 12,000 miles of waterways and will give waterway connection between such great cities as New Orleans, Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, and Sioux City, Keokuk, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, Evansville, Cincinnati, Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

"Through the great lakes and the Erie canal many of these points will have access to central New York and the Atlantic. By its authorization for deepening of lake channels we shall support the present commerce of the great lakes and make preparation for ocean shipping by the ultimate deepening of the St. Lawrence. It authorizes numerous improvements in our harbors."

READY BY 1933—EMMERSON.

Springfield, Ill., July 4.—(AP)—Informed that President Hoover had signed the rivers and harbors bill, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson today telegraphed from Salt Lake City that the last obstacle to water transportation from Illinois to the gulf had been removed.

Alluding to the $7,000,000 appropriation for completing the Illinois waterway, Gov. Emmerson wired: "Had not the federal government come to the aid of Illinois when it became apparent the state could not finish the project because of constitutional limitations, Illinois' realization of its dream of 'lakes-to-the-gulf water route might have been delayed for many more years.

Ready by Time of Fair.

"Now, with this appropriation of $7,500,000 available, it should be possible for the war department speedily to finish the work yet to be done. It is the hope of the present state administration that the waterway will be ready for use by the time Chicago opens its centennial exposition in 1933.

"The state administration will do its utmost to accomplish that end. It regards the completion of the Illinois waterway as closely akin to the state's magnificent highway system in potentialities for increasing our prosperity."

Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria wired the Associated Press today that the rivers and harbors bill would give the nation the most comprehensive waterway system ever conceived by any administration.

PRINCE, JILTED BY MRS. COREY, WEDS FRENCH PRINCESS

PARIS, July 4.—[U. P.]—The newspaper Midi said today Prince Don Louis de Bourbon, first cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, had been married to the aged Princess Amedee de Broglie, member of one of the oldest families of the French nobility. Prince Don Louis is 40 years old, and the former fiancé of Mrs. Mabel Gilman Corey, former musical comedy star, and also former wife of William E. Corey, Pittsburgh steel man. The reported marriage precipitated an argument of international importance when Mrs. Corey broke their engagement.

Shortly before the celebration of the nuptials she said the prince's demands for a financial settlement were excessive, and declared their four year engagement off. Since that time she has entered again into the social whirl she neglected when her engagement was announced.

Despite the international importance of the prince's marriage to the 71 year old princess, few knew it took place, nor the time of its celebration. Even the British embassy declared it knew nothing of the marriage, and Mrs. Corey said she had heard nothing from the prince since their engagement was broken.

CHICAGO COUPLE KILLED AS AUTO RUNS INTO DITCH

4 Dead, Holiday Car Toll in County.

A Chicago tourist and his wife were killed yesterday when their automobile plunged into the ditch and overturned on a highway between Three Oaks and Gallen, 14 miles west of Niles, Mich. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hughes, 2049 Jackson boulevard.

A witness told Gallen police that the car swerved from side to side and then suddenly rolled over into the ditch. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes were dead when extricated.

In an accident early yesterday morning at Michigan avenue and 42d street, an unidentified colored woman about 23 years old was killed and two white men were injured. The injured are Edward McElligott, 23 years old, 734 South Kenneth avenue, brother of Thomas McElligott, gangster, who was shot to death a year ago in a downtown cafe, and Thomas Murtaugh, 7086 South Chicago avenue.

Cars Racing, Police Say.

According to police, the woman was riding with McElligott in a race with two other machines when his car crashed into the curb, rolled over and struck two trees. She died in the County hospital. McElligott was arrested when he appeared later at St. Luke's hospital for treatment. Murtaugh, one of the other drivers, was held. The third driver escaped.

This death and four others yesterday increased Cook county's motor toll for the year to 477. The other victims:

Felix Wallace, 50 years old, 5479 University avenue. Fatally injured by an automobile driven by Mrs. Georgiana Birong, 7442 South Honore street, while crossing 59th street at Ellis avenue. He died in the Billings Memorial hospital. Mrs. Birong was held by Hyde Park police.

Jack Field, 41 years old, 3007 Fulton street. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Fred Rant, 911 Lytle street, at Jackson boulevard and Washtenaw avenue. Rant was not held.

Maurice Glick, 30 years old, 1856 Lawndale avenue. Killed when his machine crashed into another driven by Joseph Tomaszewski, 7547 Irving Park boulevard, at White and Walnut streets, Desplaines. Miss Dolly Bernardo, 23 years old, 921 Buena avenue, who was riding with Glick, was injured.

Milo Palmer, 55 years old, 1639 Rosehill drive, a private detective. Died at the Edgewater hospital from injuries incurred on July 1, when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home. The car was driven by C. E. Shomo, 2817 Lunt avenue.

Abolish Speed Limit for Cars on English Roads

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—Motor speed limits are to be abolished on English roads. The house of commons today recorded this decision by 180 to 99 votes on the traffic bill. Minister of Transport Herbert Morrison announced that "instead of a speed limit the new bill makes it punishable to drive cars at a speed or in a manner dangerous to the public." The debate revealed that 20 persons are killed and 500 injured daily on English roads by auto traffic.

Champaign Official Hurt, Wife Killed in Auto Crash

Urbana, Ill., July 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Henry Richards, Ogden, Ill., was instantly killed and her husband and their son, Henry Jr., seriously injured here tonight when their automobile struck an engine of a Big Four freight train. Mr. Richards is chairman of the Champaign county board of supervisors.

On Way Home

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York paused briefly in Chicago yesterday between trains. He arrived on the Los Angeles Limited of the Chicago and North Western railroad, coming from the recent national convention of governors at Salt Lake City, and left shortly afterward for Albany, aboard the Wolverine of the Michigan Central. He was accompanied only by an aid.

FRENCH SENATORS QUIZ CONTRACT FOR U. S. PHONES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 4.—The efforts of the International Telephone and Telegraph company to dominate the European communications field were denounced in the French senate yesterday.

A lively debate over the interpellation of Senator Philip regarding the reasons why the government allotted the company the contract for installing new telephone apparatus in the Paris district. The contract amounted to several millions of francs.

The charge was made by a number of senators that the government could have obtained apparatus of the same quality from Holland or Germany for one-third the price and that granting an exclusive contract to these interests is "opening the door to American imperialism." Andre Mallarmé, minister of posts and telegraphs, will answer the criticisms Monday.

BOY OF 6 FLEES HOME; ELUDES PURSUIT 4 DAYS

KAPUSKASING, Ont., July 4.—(AP)—Victor Gareau, 6, who ran away from home Monday with his baby brother and sister today, still eluded searchers who have been beating the bush country around his farm home for your days.

The little girl and the other little boy were found Wednesday after they had hidden from searchers for two days, the distracted voice of their father calling, bringing them out of hiding.

Traces of Victor have been found from time to time but no one has seen him. He apparently is following the procedure all three adopted successfully, of dropping to the ground under a bush or in tall grass whenever searchers approach.

POLICE CONTROL HOLIDAY AUTOS FROM AIRPLANE

BY HAL FOUST.

Air control of ground traffic was introduced to the Chicago area yesterday in handling the automobiles that visited the Curtiss-Reynolds airport for the first day of the "Pageant of Aerial Progress." The experiment will be continued today and tomorrow in perfecting a traffic control system for the national air races at this port from Aug. 23 to Sept. 1.

A police observer in an airplane watched the movement of motor vehicles from an altitude of about a thousand feet. When a blockade formed at some point the plane was landed and telephone communication to strategic points reported the congestion and it was relieved by rerouting motorists.

Radio for Traffic Control.

For the national air races the traffic observation plane is to be equipped with a radio sending apparatus for instant communication with police headquarters on the ground. Without the radio the advantage of the bird's-eye view of the traffic problem was discounted because of the delay in getting information to the ground.

Traffic was in a jam at times during the afternoon for miles around the Curtiss-Reynolds field, where the air show was in progress, and around Sky Harbor, a few miles farther north of Chicago, where the endurance flyers, John and Kenneth Hunter, were the attraction.

Lieut. L. J. Laird of the county highway police, who was in charge of a detail of 40 men and 30 motorcycles, was handicapped by lack of man power, insufficient telephone outposts, and the absence of a radio connection with his observation plane. He was unable to keep cars from parking on the narrow roads approaching the airport while the passengers watched the stunts aloft.

See Need of One Way Traffic.

Yesterday's experiment also emphasized the need for one way traffic regulations during the national event. Such regulations could not be enforced effectively with the Fourth of July crowd because the drivers desired to rove. At the races, for the hours at the opening of events, roads can be assigned for the exclusive use of those who are to attend and the roads can have dead ends at parking spaces. At the close of the events the direction of travel can be reversed and cars can depart over the route by which they enter.

The congestion at the north side airports, while probably greater than at other places, was only part of the crowding of pavements that was experienced by holiday motorists. There were the usual blockades at intersections of important highways, where grade separations have long been advocated, and there were the familiar strings of automobiles the progress of which was impeded by the occasional slow driver on the narrow roads.

GANGSTERS BURN RIDE VICTIM; FAIL TO HIDE IDENTITY

Slip of Paper Survives Oil Fire.

New York, July 4.—[Special.]—The burned body of Henry Brinkman, 38 year old taxicab chauffeur, was found today in front of an apartment house on the upper east side. He had been shot through the head, drenched in gasoline and oil, and his clothing set afire, so that the usual marks of identification had been destroyed.

Brinkman had a police record of six arrests and two convictions. He was not known as a gangster or a racketeer, the detectives said, although he obviously had been "taken for a ride" to die a gangster's death.

The police theory was that he had been murdered because he had double crossed some one or because he "knew too much" about certain underworld characters. The possibility that he had been slain by an old enemy recently discharged from prison also was being investigated.

Stolen Auto Found.

A stolen automobile, which may have been used by Brinkman's murderers, was found not far from the spot where the body lay. In it were a pair of grease stained dungarees and an empty can which has contained kerosene. The car had been reported stolen two days ago.

The street in which the body was found lies in the gas house district of the east Bronx. Switch engines in the neighboring freight yards of the New York Central railroad make so much noise, residents said, that even a pistol shot might have gone unnoticed.

Alexander Zinkler, a chauffeur, discovered the body in its blazing pyre as he was leaving the tenement house early this morning on his way to work.

Thought It Bonfire.

A short time previously Mrs. Anna Frederick, who lives on the ground floor of the tenement house, had noticed the blaze across the street, but had thought it was a bonfire of rubbish.

Zinkler, however, notified the police. The problem confronting the detectives was the victim's identity. Only the thumb, index and middle fingers of the left hand had escaped destruction by fire, but a charred and crumpled bit of paper which somehow had escaped the flames, led to positive identification within a few hours. Upon this slip of paper detectives found the names of two women, the name of a street, and the first three numerals of an address, which led to the discovery of Brinkman's home and business.

U. S. PRISON BUILT FOR 1,600 NOW HAS 4,074 IN ITS CELLS

Atlanta, Ga., July 4.—(AP)—Good Words, magazine of the inmates of the federal penitentiary here, said today that the prison—built to accommodate a maximum population of 1,600—now housed 4,074 convicts. This is the greatest number in the history of the institution.

Federal judges recently have begun sentencing offenders to state prisons and jails because of overcrowded conditions in the federal institution.

Millions Parade and Riot on India's "Independence Day"

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, July 4. — In a striking parallel to America's Independence day, India today marked the birth of "flag day." Throughout the country the tricolor of the Nationalists was raised. Parades and other patriotic demonstrations marked the day. At the same time the courts, police and military forces participated in the policy of repression, the day also being marked by considerable violence.

Flags were raised in thousands of villages. This city alone showed 150,000 flags, some of which were carried in parades, others floating over residences. On the whole, it was, perhaps, the greatest demonstration the Nationalists have yet made.

Set Record for Arrests.

On the other hand the arrests were greater than on any previous day. While the arrests totaled 3,300 on the first of June, the number of political prisoners today exceeds 10,000. Bihar province alone had 69 arrests in the current week, bringing the total there to 750. In the larger metropolitan provinces the number is greater.

Raids upon so-called "war councils" were made in all regions. Nationalist speakers urged the filling of the ranks until the last man is jailed.

The most serious conflict today occurred in the Mindapore region, as a sequel of the nontax campaign. One person was killed and many wounded when the magistrate ordered the police to fire on excited villagers.

He praised the sacrifices of the women, two of whom, Mrs. Captain and Mrs. Vunshi, were sentenced to three months' imprisonment, while the editor of the congress bulletin was given five months.

"Fight to Finish."

"A fight to the finish, achieve or die," exclaimed Mrs. Captain as she and her companions were led to cells.

At the same moment Mr. Patel, addressing 5,000 persons, was praising women's work for independence and urging students to "leave college and devote their energies to the mother land."

Mr. Patel reached a stage in his impassioned address which may result in his arrest. He denounced the Bombay administration and added: "Bombay has lived for nothing but to suck the blood of the poor agriculturists."

At Sylhet 52 political prisoners were taken as a disciplinary action. The patriotic cries which they raised were suppressed by the assistance of the military. All prisoners are now being confined in cages.

Boy Clouts Home Run; Spectator Falls Dead

Superior, Wis., July 4.—(AP)—Excitement caused by watching a Fourth of July baseball game between two small boys' teams was said by police to have caused the death of Michael M. Long tonight. Long collapsed as one of the youngsters made a home run.

PROHIBITION AND THE AMERICAN BAR.

Thanks chiefly to the efforts of the voluntary committee of lawyers, a distinguished body formed two years ago, the executive committee of the American Bar association has been induced to submit the question of repeal of the 18th amendment to its membership. The voluntary committee was organized by leading American lawyers who are convinced that the 18th amendment is undermining the structure of government and that the legal fraternity has a special responsibility toward public opinion in this regard.

THE TRIBUNE, as readers of its editorials know, has very strong convictions upon this phase of prohibition, which has nothing to do with whether it is expedient or not to indulge in alcoholic beverages but relates entirely to the principles of law and government in the American republic. As THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly said, the American lawyer has a special responsibility to enlighten and lead public discussion in all matters pertaining to law and government in which he is or ought to be specially informed and instructed. Yet the legal fraternity has shirked this responsibility from the inception of the prohibition experiment, although the adoption of the 18th amendment was a revolutionary step in our constitutional system.

The voluntary committee represents an inevitable and highly creditable protest against this avoidance of public responsibility by the American bar. In its appeal to the members of the association, the committee refers to the excuse hitherto made by the management of that body for its inaction:

"The argument is sometimes made that bar associations should avoid all controversial subjects. This is to assert that the bar should resign its traditional leadership, since all questions involving large governmental and legal problems are subject to controversy. Lawyers as a class are peculiarly free from fanaticism and by the very nature of their calling acquire well balanced judgments. They know better than any other group the limitations of law, what can be reasonably expected of it, and to what extent it can be successfully enforced. To have from them collectively an opinion on any question of public importance is of distinct public value. The 18th amendment and the Volstead act concern fundamental questions of government directly affecting the practice of law and the administration of justice, and as such are proper subjects for the consideration of bar associations.

"In 1918, at the annual meeting of the American Bar association, consideration of the question of the pending adoption of the 18th amendment was indefinitely postponed by the unrepresentative vote of 75 to 68. The discussion in volume XLIII. of the reports of the association at pages 45 to 47, 65 to 67, 71, and 96 to 113 is prophetic. If in 1918 the association had squarely faced the issue, it is possible that the 18th amendment might not have been ratified."

This attitude is happily changing and changing rapidly. Six of the largest and most influential bar associations of the country already have taken unequivocal action, adopting resolutions calling for the repeal of the amendment. They are the bar associations of Philadelphia, Boston, San Francisco, St. Louis, Detroit, New Jersey, and Nevada. Save the last named, the prohibitionists will attempt to discount this expression as coming from districts notoriously wet, and in any case it is highly desirable that a general referendum of the whole body of the legal profession of the United States should be held, and also that a full discussion of the principles involved in the prohibitory amendment be forced upon the lawyers of the country.

The referendum will be significant of the condition of constitutional principles in the thought of American lawyers of this generation, but apart from that it should encourage and compel definite consideration of those principles by the class of citizens who by education and occupation should be the most vigilant guardians of constitutional principle and wise law making in the body politic.

MAKING THE MANLY MAN.

Tailors in congress assembled resolve that they have created the modern athletic man. Opinion has always differed as to whether the clothes make the man, but without denying the validity of that theory, naturally strongly held by tailors, we suggest that the claim of the congress is full of holes. The tailors say they have made the modern ideal of manly beauty by padding shoulders and cutting out fullness in the waist. A stronger argument might be made that by concealing the defects of nature they have discouraged their correction. If every male had to expose his natural deficiencies he would be encouraged to get rid of them as far as possible and the attendance on gymnasiums, tennis fields, golf courses, and swimming tanks would be notably increased. A lazy man who can purchase a figure like Gene Tunney's from his tailor will not keep up his daily dozen or invest in dumb-bells. If the designer of men's clothes is anxious to increase the pulchritude of American manhood he will refuse to pad or otherwise deceive the eye. The immediate effect might be disillusioning, but in the long run results would appear. They would be beneficial to mankind, including the tailors themselves, who would find the problem of fitting less difficult and the results more gratifying to the esthetic conscience.

MARKED RUSH.

The President yesterday issued a call for a special session of the senate to consider the naval treaty.

This in effect is to declare the adoption of the treaty an emergency. The senate has just ended a long and arduous regular session. It is asked to continue its labors and at a season when residence in Washington, to say nothing of the effort involved in deliberation upon an important international engagement, cannot but be irksome, trying, and unsatisfactory. To require of the senate to submit itself to these conditions can be justified only on the grounds that an immediate decision upon the treaty is necessary or desirable for the gravest reasons.

But what are these reasons? What is the emergency which justifies the executive in calling a special session and asking the senate to enter upon consideration of a complicated and important treaty under conditions most unfavorable to deliberation?

Neither the public nor, we think, the senate knows of anything in our relations with the other signatories to the treaty which is critical. We are told, on the contrary, that our relations with Great Britain and Japan are gratifyingly easy and friendly. There is, in fact, no occasion for haste. There is no emergency, there is no reason we can find in the international situation why this important proposed engagement should not be considered at the coming regular session, in normal parliamentary circumstance, and when the senators will have had opportunity for rest, for further study of the treaty, and for a renewed contact with their constituencies.

Is it possible that the President wishes the decision of the senate to be made under conditions unfavorable to exhaustive examination, to extended discussions, to cool determination? We should regret any such inference, but if there is no international emergency which makes immediate disposal of the treaty urgently desirable, what other inference can be drawn from his call? If the treaty is the beneficent and clearly desirable engagement he holds it to be, it certainly can sustain the most earnest and efficient scrutiny and discussion and will be stronger in the regular session next winter than now. Is there doubt in Mr. Hoover's mind of the treaty's survival of such scrutiny and discussion or does he doubt the senate's and the public's ability or willingness to recognize the treaty's merits if given time to canvass them? Haste in the absence of urgency seems to us to imply lack of confidence either in the treaty or in the willingness and the ability of the senate to come to a right decision if given time enough to reach it.

GOVERNMENT BY FEAR.

The nature of the bolshevik régime could not be more significantly revealed than by the procession of trembling bolshevik leaders that have just made public recantation of their opinions in Moscow. All these men had been conspicuous and powerful figures in the revolution and the soviet régime. None on any credible grounds could be suspected of being reactionaries, or even moderate reformers. All are extreme communists who have had active parts in establishing the communist régime and destroying all who did not share its theories and policies. But they had dared to differ as to methods with Stalin and the group at present in power, and they have been ruthlessly disciplined. Either to save their lives, their liberty, or their offices, they have cringed and recanted. It makes a pleasant picture of the Socialist Utopia, and we recommend it to the consideration of parlor pinks and theorizing radicals in America who, while prating about civil liberties, protest our refusal to lend the bolshevik régime the prestige of our recognition and charge the refusal up to capitalist prejudice..

WHY NOT CALL HIM JOHN?

Sixty years ago and less, well bred children called their parents Ma and Pa, frequently pronounced Maw and Paw. No disrespect was intended. There never was a nicer girl than Joe Vance's Lossie and she called the doctor Pa. Pa and Ma became in due time Papa and Mama. About the time of the World's Fair the variant Puh-pah and Muh-mah arrived, enjoyed a brief day, and gave way to Mother and Dad, which is now general.

Mother came in with suffrage and woman's rights. It has overtones of respect and a reverence which readily crosses over into sentimentality. Dad is also sentimentalized. It suggests a good old scout who pays the bills and is always cheerful, if a little baggy at the knees. His greatest pleasure is in playing with the children all day Sunday. He never tires of it. Applesauce.

We note of late a distinct gain in the number of children who are permitted to call their parents by their Christian names. There always were some who did so, but now there are many. We regard the change with considerable favor. Paw was authority. Papa was only less so. Puh-pah was the victim of a socially ambitious wife. Dad was the victim of his own submissiveness. John is neither patriarch nor bondman. He is a human being who has fallen into the job of straw boss of the family. Nobody likes to call the straw boss Mister.

Editorial of the Day

WATSON BLOWS.

[New York Evening Post.]

"Let the tariff be an issue," blows forth Senator "Jim" Watson. "We have never lost on that issue."

On the contrary "we lost" on the Payne-Aldrich bill as surely as the Lord made little apples.

We may not lose, now, because we believe that the good sense of the country and the dawning realization of the actual causes will release the tariff bill from the responsibility for the break in the stock market. And as it goes into effect it may actually stimulate business.

But, as it is, the tariff is a terrific political burden for the Republican party. That it is so is not the fault of Hoover but of old fashioned, unscrupulous tariff grabbers like "Jim" Watson.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

DEAR! DEAR! IT'S A CHANGING WORLD.

Not so long ago, in the dim sweet quiet yesterdays before the Machine Gun Age, we used to satisfy our insatiable thirst for knowledge with all sorts of educational works. Then people flocked into book stores to buy "How to Know the Wild Flowers," "The Fair Land of Science," "The Child's Book of Knowledge," "Our Feathered Visitors," "How to Keep Bees," and "Poultry Raising for Pleasure and Profit."

Well, maybe some simple souls still go into book stores and buy that sort of thing. We don't know. All we know is that they tell us that mostly they now flock in and ask for a volume of information that is this year's contribution to the public education. It is called, if you'll believe us, "How to Commit a Murder," and goes into that interesting subject very fully—in fact, in the same thorough manner that its predecessors, "How to Become a Telegraph Operator" and "How to Embroider Lambrequins," made so famous. Even more so, to tell the truth, because not only is the fine art of committing murders explained so that anybody can understand it, but so that you'll be sure to get your money's worth, there are chapters on "How to Rob a Jewelry Store," "How to Stick Up a Fur Joint," "The Automobile Racket," "How to Run a Crap Joint," and so on, all explaining in detail the technique of these various, if no longer curious, enterprises.

The author is a young man who, the introduction explains, is fully competent to teach these various phases of the Machine Gun Age, as he has done a couple of murders himself, been a member of some of the best known gangs in the country, and has matriculated in some of our very largest penitentiaries. Naturally, his real name is not given, as the police are looking all over for him right now. But his nom de crime is Danny Ahearn, and that's as good as any, we suppose. By far the most interesting thing about the whole thing, anyway, is the inevitable comparison of this newest book with those we used to read. "How to Commit a Murder!" And just the other day it seems we were deep in "How to Know the Wild Flowers" and "Raising Rabbits in Your Own Back Yard." Tck! Tck! Tck! It's getting harder and harder for us to keep up with things.

THE INTRUDER.

Long ago as a child I saw at play in the forest
Radiant boys and girls white as the fleece of the moon
Bending the ferns aside to gather the buds and berries,
Up to the knees in grass, wreathed with the berries and bells.

Long ago they are gone and for me the forest untroubled,
Never a silver heel crushes the quivering grass;
Yet once more I have seen them, who loved and passed and forgot them,
Yet once more I have passed, never to find them again.

Coming unwarned too near to a dreaming child in the twilight,

DOROTHY R. KISSLING.

"IT'S A TEE-GOWN," is the explanation of a beautiful lady in a newspaper picture who is exhibiting a new style in golf skirts cut like gents' trousers. After gazing at the lady in the funny duds for awhile we would say roughly that it was a tee-hee gown.

OUT in Council Bluffs, Iowah, a man who stole a towel two years ago from the Y. M. C. A. sent it back because his conscience troubled him so much. That's the way with so many of us. Conscience really doesn't get busy until we've used the towel two years. And a towel that's been used two years is just about all through. Then up jumps conscience.

BRAVADO.

Do you truly think I'm anguished,
That I stay at home and grieve?
You poor sap! I'm still unvanquished!
Why, I'm laughing up my sleeve!
See this gesture I am making,
Circled round by other beaus?
You needn't guess my heart is breaking
While I gayly thumb my nose.

DAVIDA.

GREAT BRITAIN breathes again! They've found the Prince of Wales' hat. He lost it at the eighth tee while he was golfing at West Hartlepool. Orders in council to mobilize the Channel fleet have been revoked and the Life Guards have returned to Buckingham.

GUTZON BORGLUM was declared to have rewritten Cal's History of the United States to be engraved on that mountain in South Dakota. We felt rather indignant at Gutzon for awhile, but now—if Gutzon isn't too busy sculpting—we wonder—if it wouldn't be a good idea—for him to sort of look over Cal's copy for his daily column—and do a little editing here and there.

LAGNIAPPE.

GERMAN BACHELORS have organized and are going out on strike because the government has laid a special tax on them. Which raises the interesting question: What does a bachelor do when he goes on strike? He probably refuses to take girls to parties or buy 'em gin, and won't go over to his married sister's house to take care of her children when she is gallivanting around downtown. So the thing looks pretty serious after all.

YESTERDAY was Independence Day! Today is Arnica Day! Yesterday—Hoorah! Today—Ouch!

DISEASES OF THE HANDS.

IT IS agreed that most of the skin diseases of the hands are the result of something having to do with occupation. The blood as a cause of skin disease of the hands is not worth considering. The same statement as to diet is almost true. There are some infections, such as smallpox, scarlet fever and measles, tuberculosis and syphilis which cause skin eruptions of the hands, and the careful physician examines the hands as a part of his work just as he watches the hands in pellagra. But these are the exceptions.

The rule is, when a skin trouble develops on the hands the first question which comes to mind is, what's wrong with my work? What part of my job causes the skin of my hands to be poisoned? In bringing this about a long list of causes must be considered. The list includes: Wearing dyed gloves, sweating due to wearing rubber gloves, soap and water due to laundry work, resins of wood, poisons of one sort or another in hides and hair, and a great variety of chemicals.

Dr. Sutherland Campbell brings a new one to the attention of the people. He finds that persons engaged in squeezing oranges in the production of orange juice are prone to develop a skin disease of the fingers, particularly around the nails. Studying these cases with the microscope he found the cause to be a yeast or a yeastlike organism. This yeast, or near-yeast, grew in the body of the nail itself, as well as in its bed and around the edge. It is this capacity for the germ to grow in the substance of the nail which makes cure difficult in this disorder, as in some cases of ringworm of the toes. Dr. Sutherland Campbell grew the micro-organism in various ways in the laboratory. He had some success in inoculating it into oranges, both into the peel and into the pulp. In some cases it caused a blue mold to grow on the orange; in others, not much could be seen with the unaided eye in the injected oranges. He went as far as he dared in proving that a culture could cause the disease around the nails.

The greatest value of Dr. Sutherland Campbell's paper is in showing us that handling oranges and orange juice is another possible cause of skin disease of the hands. If oranges and orange juice are to be so classed the chances are that peach pickers, grape packers and cider makers may have reason to think of their occupation as a possible cause of eczemas and tetters on their hands.

HOLDING THE SOCKS UP.

R. T. P. writes: I have never been able to hold up my stockings without garters until some months ago, when I found some drawers with a lower band so made that socks cling to it. I wear socks with an upper band that is slightly constricted. The combination holds my socks up well and does not constrict the leg. I thus avoid the constriction of the leg which garters cause.

REPLY.

You are fortunate to find garments that supply what you want. The shape of the leg is a considerable factor in the ease with which socks are held up.

IT IS NOT DANGEROUS.

M. E. K. writes: Is the marriage of second cousins dangerous to the health, happiness and intellect of the offspring? Our health and blood are good and our ancestors have enjoyed good health for many years back.

REPLY.

No.

NEITHER HARMS NOR HELPS.

D. D. writes: Would there be any harmful results if a young man went hatless continually both summer and winter? What results would this act have on the hair and scalp?

REPLY.

Except in hot weather and between nine in the morning and four in the afternoon, going hatless does no harm. It does no good.

ALLEY CLEARED.

Chicago, June 30.—[Friend of the People.]—Every Sunday the man who has his garage opposite ours parks a big truck and also his car in the alley the whole day so that it is impossible to go in or out the alley that way. Sometimes we can't put our car back till after ten o'clock at night. Can something be done about it? M. B.

Following is report submitted by captain of the thirty-second district showing action taken in connection with complaint:

"Upon receipt of this complaint went to alley and found car parked there. Interviewed the owner and warned him to remove this truck out of the alley and not to park it there again. He promised that hereafter he will put this car in his garage at night. Made several visits to this vicinity and found car out of the alley."

JOHN H. ALCOCK,
Acting Commissioner of Police.

PAYMENT OF LEGACY.

Chicago Heights, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—May a specified legacy be paid before the year of administration expires? F. K.

Yes, but the beneficiary cannot compel payment.

ENTRY DAY FORGOTTEN.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I came to Chicago from Canada in 1911 or 1912. I cannot remember which. I paid head tax of $8 and also was examined at Port Huron. Would like to get citizenship papers. Not knowing date of entry has kept me from getting papers. Can I get any information about how to go about the matter? E. A.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL CONTRACT.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I recently signed with a correspondence school for a course in accounting without realizing that I signed a contract. I was under the impression that I was merely enrolling. I received the first lessons, which I sent back, stating that I could not afford the course. Since then I have not received any more lessons. The school threatens action to receive $140. Can they do this? A. M.

Yes, they could.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 5, 1865.

[July 4 being a holiday, no paper was issued from The Tribune office on the morning of July 5.]

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 5, 1900.

KANSAS CITY.—At 4 o'clock this morning the committee on resolutions of the Democratic national convention, by the close vote of 26 to 24, decided to report a plank in the platform reiterating in specific terms the ratio of 16 to 1. The heated fight promises to be carried to the convention floor on a minority report. Bryan at his home in Lincoln threatened that if the plank were not adopted he would refuse to accept the nomination for the presidency. The fight over the plank prevented the nomination of Bryan on July 4.

SHANGHAI. — The emperor of China has committed suicide, taking poison under compulsion of Prince Tuan on June 19. The dowager empress also took poison, but is still alive, although reported insane from the effects of the drug. This has been reported officially to the German consular staff.

CHICAGO. — By the use of firearms, toy cannons, giant crackers and other forms of explosives 30 persons were killed and 1,325 injured in yesterday's Fourth of July celebration in various cities, as shown in reports gathered by THE TRIBUNE up to midnight. Following the precedent it set a year ago THE TRIBUNE sent messages to correspondents in 600 cities asking reports on accidents of all kinds. About 125 of these had reported at 2 a. m. today. Chicago had one killed and 42 injured. In St. Louis 4 were killed and 78 injured.

CHICAGO.—Homer B. Galpin, the oldest deputy sheriff in Cook county and the man who adjusted the black caps and nooses at the hanging of the Chicago anarchists, is dead of heart disease at his home, 729 West Monroe street, at the age of 63. He is survived by his widow, two sons, E. Frank Galpin and Homer K. Galpin, and a daughter, Mrs. Nellie M. Gager.

TACOMA, Wash.—The most appalling accident in the history of Tacoma occurred when 44 persons were killed and 63 injured in a street car wreck. The car ran off the rails when the motorman lost control of the brakes while going down a steep hill and plunged into a gully, 160 feet deep.

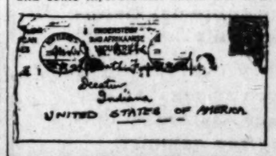
10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 5, 1920.

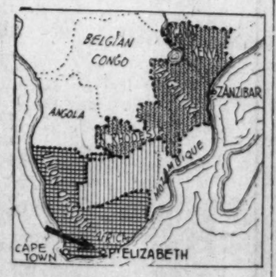
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—The Democratic national convention adjourned over Sunday, still deadlocked on a candidate for President. Sunday conferences failed to give promise of breaking the deadlock until after considerable further balloting. Each of the factions supporting William G. McAdoo, Attorney General Palmer, and Gov. Cox of Ohio is still full of fight.

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.



Letter received by James M. Burk, 321 North 4th street, Decatur, Ind.



This letter was sent to Mr. Burk from Port Elizabeth, South Africa. The sender was a South African scout whom Mr. Burk met at the world scout jamboree at Birkenhead, England, last summer.

Port Elizabeth is a seaport of the Cape province, situated on the east side of Cape Recife on Algoa bay. In size and importance it is second only to Cape Town, from which it is about 450 miles distant. The town is named for the wife of Sir Rufane Donkin, wife of the acting governor of the cape in the early part of the nineteenth century.

The chief buildings of the town are grouped around a market square. These include a town hall, courthouse, postoffice, market buildings, public library, and churches. Port Elizabeth's commercial importance is based on a large import trade, chiefly in machinery, textiles, hardware, and provisions. The markets of Kimberley, Rhodesia, the Orange Free State, and the Transvaal are the principal ones supplied. Among the exports are mohair, ostrich feathers, wool and hides.

POPPY MONEY.

Chicago, July 2.—In answer to the letter of David Smith, patient at Edward Hines Jr. hospital, Hines, Ill., I wish to give the following information with reference to the conduct of poppy sales as far as the American Legion is concerned:

This year approximately one million poppies were manufactured by disabled veterans in hospitals in the state of Illinois. Last year a flimsy paper poppy was made which was rather difficult to assemble. Men this year were able to make three times as many poppies in the same length of time, and through arrangements with the hospital authorities the rate of pay was set at 1½ cents per poppy. In all, approximately $5,000 was paid by the American Legion to disabled men in the hospitals.

For the information of the public the posts of the American Legion in Cook county made a net profit of $31,976 in 1928 and expended for service work in their communities and at the hospitals the sum of $37,645 in 1928. The sum of $48,117 was expended in 1929 for the same kind of work from receipts of $31,659. The receipts for both years represent the difference between 5 cents per poppy paid by the post to the department of Illinois and the amount collected on the streets.

The department headquarters made $24,751 in the year 1929, which helps to operate the service department at 160 North La Salle street. This office extends immediate relief in urgent cases and helps destitute veterans who are temporarily stranded in Chicago. We also provide free employment service for all veterans. This department of the American Legion is operated at an expense of $46,400 per year. L. R. BENSTON,
Department Service Officer.

POPPY MAKING.

Chicago, July 2.—On June 18 Mrs. T. P. Young of the American Legion stated that disabled war veterans receive 1c for each poppy they make.

Mr. David Schmitt, in his article, stated that he received ½c for each poppy.

Our family made 10,000 of these poppies at the rate of 65c a thousand, including putting on the labels which said they were made by veterans.

CHESTER PRIMODA.

THIS TREATY BUSINESS.

Chicago, June 2[illegible].—This treaty business is like asking a convicted man if he could stand it to be hanged. The guess is that he would have to. Nothing can stop the senate from ratifying and the President from signing. That is what they are there for. By the time the public gets around to be asked for its opinion and the echo comes back the corpse will have been interred quite some time. Mr. Public has been strangely puzzled by the arguments for its ratification and has been "breaking his brain to unravel their meaning, which Aristotle himself could never have found though he should have been raised from the dead for that very purpose."

A woman who bakes a cake, though she knows it is pretty punk, still expects you to eat it with exclamations of delight. The battle in London was to see how much sacrifice each could make to give the other fellow more than he deserved, all in the interest of humanity. But it seems it did not work. As a matter of fact, almost any treaty is not worth "a mouthful of ashes" when some one feels he is getting the worst of it. The diplomats and politicians have a high old time with their indoor sport in the hope that they will "purchase everlasting honor and renown." If it ain't one fool thing it is another. Tell with the public. What?

RAY H. HADFIELD.

CONGRESS.

Chicago, June 20.—Please convey to Mr. John T. McCutcheon my heartiest congratulations on his very timely cartoon depicting Uncle Sam in bed, flat on his back, very weak from long continued economic distemper, completely surrounded by quacks, and the biggest fool of the lot sitting upon his stomach.

In this morning's TRIBUNE, on the left hand column, Capt. Byrd has given us a perfect description of the American congress as it stands today without intending to do so. "Visibility poor, everything distorted, horizon completely hidden in haze, crevasses everywhere in which one can be engulfed by a false step without seeing them"—a perfect description of our national legislative body and its contemptible output, the Grundy-Smoot-Hawley tariff.

The modern man living in a city, where most of us live today, cannot supply even his simplest need without trade, cannot make a single move of any importance, avail himself of a single utility or a solitary thing involved in his physical well being without resorting to trade, living in a coördinated civilization which is built upon trade, and trade alone; and anything that will paralyze trade or interfere with it in any way injures us all.

In the face of this fact it would be difficult to weave words into sentences that would cover the case of the present American congress.

HENRY H. HARDINGE.

ALCOCK AND BROWN.

Chicago, July 2.—In connection with the recent trans-Atlantic flight of the Southern Cross and her intrepid flyer, Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith, I have looked in vain for some reference in your columns to the real pioneers of trans-Atlantic flying, Capt. John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur Brown, who made the first nonstop flight across the Atlantic on the night of June 14-15, 1919, from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland. The public can be excused for forgetting the memorable achievements of two brave men who had the misfortune not to be good advertisers, but when a great metropolitan daily states in an editorial that "Lindbergh in his flight from New York to Paris proved that the North Atlantic could be conquered with a modern motor, great flying skill, and a break of luck in the weather," one hesitates whether to assign such a statement to a woeful ignorance of the facts or to a conspiracy of silence to suppress the truth because the two men in question were citizens of another country. I am quite sure that Lindbergh himself would not like his claim to fame to be based on such a misapprehension of the facts.

THE TAX AMENDMENT.

Evanston, Ill., June 24.—The people of Illinois are indebted to THE TRIBUNE for a lucid statement of what the proposed amendment to our state constitution means. We need to read only far enough to ascertain that, if adopted, it will repeal the part of our present constitution which provides "that every person and corporation shall pay a tax in proportion to the value of his, her, or its property." Any one who wishes to abolish this wise safeguard must do so because he sees, or thinks he sees, a chance to secure a reduction in the amount of tax he must pay. He certainly does not do so in order to have his tax increased. It does not seem possible that the people of Illinois can be deluded into voting to repeal this fair provision of our fundamental law.

ALD. McDONOUGH PLEDGES SPEED ON TRANSIT JOB

Assures Citizens' Group Council Wants Action.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

"It is extremely important that residents of Chicago be given the work which the new transit construction will provide," said Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the city council transportation committee, yesterday in commenting on a letter he had sent to James Simpson, chairman of the citizen's transit settlement committee.

"Your committee cannot be more eager than I am to start the improvements contemplated by the transportation program," said the McDonough letter. "There is nothing in your letter [Simpson's to McDonough] urging a start on subway construction with which I do not heartily agree, and I feel certain I share the views of other aldermen.

"We want action. We want the transportation as soon as it can be obtained. We desire the employment which the construction work will provide."

Will Ask Companies' Attitude.

"Getting the work started is the first object," commented McDonough. "Then the next thing is to get it distributed to men willing to work in Chicago. I am going to talk this matter over with Mr. Simpson and others on Monday and will request later that the companies make a public statement of their attitude. I will call them in before the council transportation committee for a formal expression on whether they intend to have their steel made in Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Cleveland, or Youngstown.

"There's a lot of unemployment in my ward, and I have been watching that subject. The preliminary estimate of the number unemployed in Chicago was 134,950, and later Washington made an estimate of 4.3 per cent of the population or 145,000 for Chicago.

"At the same time Washington estimated the unemployment in Pennsylvania at 2 per cent, in Massachusetts at 3 per cent, in Michigan at 2.7 per cent, in New York state at 1.9 per cent, and in Illinois as a whole at 14 per cent of the population.

"It is apparent that Chicago workers need the employment, and there is no good reason why the steel rails should not be made in the Chicago district.

"If I have my way, all the steel, cement and other materials which enter into subway construction will be ordered from Chicago concerns, unless they ask unreasonably high prices."

Recalls Speedy Work of 1907.

Ald. McDonough switched back to the subject of starting construction and went on:

"As I wrote Mr. Simpson I believe a practicable way can be found to get started. I've been told that the late Thomas E. Mitten, who was president of the Chicago City Railway company —the south side surface lines—when the 1907 ordinances were passed, prepared for the reconstruction period.

"The 1907 ordinances were passed by the city council on Feb. 11, and approved at a referendum on April 2. The board of supervising engineers was appointed, organized and started is function on May 7. The Chicago City Railway company filed its acceptance of the ordinance 13 days after the referendum had passed and on June 18 the reconstruction had started by the laying of new rails in Root street.

"That is 47 days after the people had approved the ordinance. Mr. Mitten, I am told, in advance of the referendum had ordered 10,000 tons of rails contingent upon a favorable vote. His deal was made with the Loraine Steel company.

Steel Company Tested.

"Just to see what can be done, I have had the Lorain Steel company called and asked when they could deliver the first 1,000 tons of rails and when they could complete delivery of 10,000 tons. They replied that they could start the first 1,000 tons, which will lay several miles of track, tomorrow morning. They offered to deliver 10,000 tons within three weeks."

In addition to discussing a start on transportation construction, Ald. McDonough in his letter to Mr. Simpson acknowledged the assistance of the citizens' committee in the formulation of enabling legislation and the ordinance franchise.

Asks Citizens for Counsel.

The McDonough letter asked the Simpson committee to appear before the transportation committee of the council on Monday afternoon "to discuss in detail the recommendations made." The Simpson committee has suggested that the aldermen obtain the services of the most capable and experienced lawyers and engineers in preparing the city's subway plans.

"There are important questions on subway construction which we will tackle at once," went on Ald. McDonough. "Much of the city's transit fund is tied up in tax anticipation warrants and arrangements must be made to get that back in cash as fast as we need it."

BOOKS

Here Are Two Lively Novels for Week-End

With Something of Europe, Art, Georgia, Love.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Young and Secret," by Alice Grant Rosman [Minton Balch], and "The Selbys," by Anne Green [Dutton], are my idea of perfect week-end novels—gay, amusing, charming, light affairs, which aren't sheer fluff. They both have that rare quality of being sturdy-bodied pieces of work, despite their gaiety. They are excellent pictures of types and of human relationships, masquerading as jaunty yarns.

ALICE G. ROSMAN.

ANNE GREEN.

"The Young and Secret" is the third novel of a young Australian woman living in London. "The Window" was a great success as a first novel. It had a quality of lightness that is rare in modern writing, because while it was light it also had a certain weight, and its characters were wholly delightful. Her second, "Visitors to Hugo," not only repeated the success of the first, but added countless admirers of Miss Rosman's gallery. And this third one, "The Young and Secret," is just as delightful, just as amusing, just as gay, and the characters are just as likable.

Miss Rosman's books are—apparently—the kind that anybody can read with pleasure and that nobody finds either dull, naughty, heavy, too light, frivolous, beneath them or beyond them. The rarest kind of fiction in the world is the kind that everybody likes unreservedly, and Miss Rosman's is that sort.

"The Young and Secret" is about a couple of charming young things, a boy who sculps and a girl who is just the daughter of a beautiful woman who is always being photographed for the more expensive English weeklies. Neither one of them is certain of himself or herself in life, because the young sculptor has only dreams and the young girl isn't really happy, because she is always trying to keep herself a neutral between her father's and her mother's love. Miss Rosman has written of a very difficult and delicate situation in the girl's family —a beautiful woman really adoring her husband who never can believe his luck and is certain that she must be loving her position, her child, or the admiration which she causes wherever she goes before she loves him. The woman, the girl's mother, is a perfectly grand person with a sense of humor and manages somehow, although the situation is not simple.

The love story is so naturally complicated by fate that no one shouts "long arm of coincidence," although coincidence certainly is seven-legued [if you can say that of arms as well as of boots] in "The Young and Secret." The most absurd things almost wreck the progress of true love, but it is kept to its steady course greatly by the intervention of one of the most delightful dogs you ever met in fiction. There always is a dog in Miss Rosman's books, as well as there are gaiety, real humor, and charm.

Anne Green is the sister of Julian Green and "The Selbys" is her first novel. It is as different from her brother's very beautiful, but very dour tales as it is possible for any book to be. It is about an American family in Paris, consisting of a middle aged man whom you like but don't lose your heart to, his wife, who is sheer delight, and their niece, who is a Georgia peach for whom the author [and the reader] has a real affection, but through whom she [and the reader] see with a chuckle.

"The Selbys" are Georgia transplanted to Paris, even to the corn pones. The aunt is amused by the French and never really takes them seriously—as she never takes anything in life seriously. The niece, the heroine, just has a gay, pleasant, nice, comfortable time until she and a nice French boy, who love each other, nearly wreck their happiness, because they are both going to be independent willy nilly.

The New Books

FICTION.

Wooden Swords, by Jacques Deval [Viking] is a terribly funny war book, chosen by the Literary Guild for July.

Dr. Serocold, by Helen Ashton [Doubleday Doran], is a mellow, delightful tale of twenty-four hours in the life of an old fashioned doctor, written by a young woman who is a doctor herself. It has been chosen as the July Book of the Month.

Mitsou, by Colette [A. & C. Boni], is a translation from the pen of France's greatest woman novelist—the story of a Parisian dancing girl and her lieutenant in blue.

The Flying Cromlech, by Hugh de Blacam [Century], is the story of a lad who searched Ireland through for a girl whom he had seen but to love.

Red Wagon, by Lady Eleanor Smith [Bobbs Merrill] is a fascinating story of circus life in America in the '60s and later in the British isles, written with real affection by the daughter of the Earl of Birkenhead.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Some of the English, by Oliver Madox Hueffer [Appleton], is the picture of one London borough—a representative one—drawn by a skilled observer.

The Emperor Francis Joseph, by Eugen Ketterl [Stratford], is a disproof of the mot to the effect that a man is never a hero to his valet, for this author was valet de chambre to his hero.

The Spell of Acadia, by Frank Oliver Call [Page], explains why the land of Evangeline lures 'em.

ABOUT PLACES.

South America, by Clarence F. Jones [Holt], is a detailed study of our neighboring continent by a professor of economic geography of Clark university.

Little Known England, by Harold D. Eberlein [Lippincott], is a record of rambles in the Welsh borderland, the Cotswolds, the chalk hills and the eastern counties of England.

NONFICTION.

Gettysburg, Manila, Acoma, by Edgar Lee Masters [Liveright], an edition of 375 signed copies of the latest long poems by the author of "Spoon River Anthology."

Spreading Germs of Hate, by George Sylvester Viereck [Liveright], is a record of the way America was fed its propaganda during the late war. Col. House writes a foreword to the revelation.

The Colophon, that beautiful Book Collectors' quarterly, arrives with a sad note to the effect that unless another 1,000 subscribers can be added to the present 2,000 the quarterly cannot exist beyond its first year of exceeding grace. All lovers of fine books should hasten to set their John Hancocks on subscription blanks.

Parachute, by Charles J. V. Murphy [Putnam], is a history of the air life saver and if you think that his story isn't thrilling . . .

Five Famous Women Write of Young Days

Jane Addams, Mme. Curie Are Among Them.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—"When I Was a Girl" is a new book, compiled by Helen Ferris, in which five women of achievement tell the story of their chrysalis years. Janet Scudder was "born in surroundings utterly devoid of artistic tradition and made dismal by poverty." Ernestine Schumann-Heinck was a short, homely, under-nourished Tini with courage as rare as her voice. Others are Jane Addams, Marie Curie and Etsu Sugimoto, author and educator.

Adults will enjoy "When I Was a Girl," but the book, like Miss Ferris' half dozen other anthologies, was designed for girls from twelve to sixteen.

Her own work Miss Ferris defines as "passing along ideas." The summer after acquiring her Vassar diploma she spent in a girls' camp. At that time there were no manuals on group recreation; she set down her discoveries in what has since become a college textbook. Then as social director in two metropolitan department stores she learned at close range the fundamentals expressed in her policies as a member of the staff of the Youth's Companion, as editor of the American Girl, and now as head of the Junior Literary guild.

Every three or four years Joseph Anthony quits his job and writes a book. They are jobs of such importance and pecuniary remuneration as to be called "positions" and not likely to be quit. But much as Mr. Anthony knows about the lives of authors from his career in publishing houses, ever and anon he answers the call of the wild. This spring he turned out "Casanova Jones," a rhymed satire on prohibition—illustrated by Willy Pogany, who wanted a vacation from making murals.

At a luncheon on Wednesday just before his departure for Cape Cod, where Mr. Anthony is about to write another novel and settle it once and for all that he's an author, we discovered him to be a born New Yorker with large brown eyes and serious mien belied by dimples.

He betrays his early forties by the hair he doesn't have to part. As boys, he and Elmer Rice, playwright, headed rival neighborhood gangs and threw rocks at each other. Now they're enthusiastically throwing bouquets.

Magazine to Print Last Writings of Late D. H. Lawrence

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The next number of Middleton Murry's quarterly, "The Adelphi," will contain the last piece of work written by D. H. Lawrence, together with a number of letters written by Lawrence to Mr. Murry. It should be of unique interest. With the number to follow this, "The Adelphi" will revert to monthly publication, at a shilling a number; and the news will give pleasure to many. But the Lawrence souvenir number should not be missed.

D. H. LAWRENCE.

A publisher recently addressed a book to me. Our bright postoffice sent it to Australia. Two months later it turned up in my post, bearing the remark that I was unknown in New South Wales. I am not surprised: what surprises me is that the parcel should ever have gone to Australia at all. Appropriately, the book was called "Journey's End."

Arnold Bennet has now written practically two hundred thousand words of his new novel. It already is longer than "The Old Wives' Tale." Good news for those to whom good books cannot be too long!

We now have a "Crime Club" in London. In fact, I think there are two Crime clubs here, but they may have coalesced. And the first production of the Crime club is a book called "The Noose," by Philip Macdonald, author of "The Rasp." I have read this book with excitement. It seems to me to be a good thriller. Curiously enough, although the dénouement was completely unexpected by me, I found a difficulty in understanding exactly what happened. But it became clear immediately afterwards, and I think the book is one to be recommended to lovers of the detective story.

The author has a strange habit of contorting his sentences. Otherwise the book is well written, and is above the average. This book is being widely read at the moment. So is J. J. Conington's new story, "The Two Tickets Puzzle," which is written with the clear plainness which we expect from J. J. Conington.

Edmund Blunden's long anticipated biography of Leigh Hunt is published here. Mr. Blunden has had the privilege of consulting much material hitherto outside the range of literary students, and there is bound to be a considerable amount of interest in the book.

Mark Twain and Others Add Charm to This Collection

"Tall Tales of the Southwest," edited by Franklin J. Meine [Knopf], is "an anthology of southern and southwestern humor," to quote the subtitle. That calm statement, however, gives little hint of the joy and glee that its pages contain.

Not only is there a sketch by Mark Twain which is consideraly earlier than any of his known work to date, which makes the book a Mark Twain collectors' item, but it is buxom and boisterous, gaudy in its broad humor, slapstick in its pathos—the guffaws of a pioneer day are recorded with pioneer dash.

It is one of the series of Americana Deserta designed to bring to light much forgotten Americana. Certainly in this case it fulfills its editors' and publishers' hopes. Mr. Meine is a Chicagoan and he has the most complete collection of early American humor in America, it is said.

New Life of 'Gene Debs Is Work of an Admirer

"Eugene V. Debs," by McAlister Coleman [Greenberg] is subtitled "A Man Unafraid," and just such a character does Mr. Coleman make of his hero, a man who triumphed over almost every known obstacle, who was imprisoned four times for his views, who was the choice of a million voters for President of the United States of America, and who was in the thick of many of those bitter battles so little recorded in history, strikes. Mr. Coleman frankly admires his hero and leaves his readers in the same state.

ACTION BY STATE IS CONSIDERED IN GUARD SCANDAL

Keehn Decided Not to Call Court Martial.

Whether additional proceedings will be taken against Col. Charles J. Kraft, former commander of the 202d coast artillery, who was indicted by the federal grand jury Wednesday in a new National Guard scandal, was not clear yesterday. It was indicated, however, that Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black of Illinois may take steps against Kraft if charges are substantiated that state as well as federal funds were diverted at the Broadway armory.

"The future will tell about that," Gen. Black said yesterday in Springfield, "I haven't yet seen a copy of the federal indictment returned against Kraft."

No Court-Martial, Keehn Says.

Court-martial proceedings will not be instituted against Kraft, according to Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the Illinois National Guard. When Kraft was relieved of his command last March Gen. Keehn said he deliberated whether a court-martial should be used or a board of inquiry appointed to determine if Kraft were morally fitted to hold his post. He chose the latter course.

"I can't remember that there ever was a court-martial in the Illinois National Guard," Gen. Keehn said yesterday. "When the Kraft matter first came to my attention the charges did not appear so severe as they are now, so I appointed Brig. Gens. Abel Davis, Frank Schwengel, and John J. Garrity as a board of inquiry."

The three brigade commanders recommended that Kraft be allowed to resign with his rank, in view of his long military service which, Kraft said yesterday, extends from the beginning of the century.

$14,000 Losses Specified.

The federal indictment charges that the colonel "made false claims and vouchers," which included padded pay rolls and a system of having his private work done by armory employés who were paid by the government. The padded pay rolls netted Kraft about $6,000, according to Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton, and the "short paying" of battery mechanics diverted another $8,000, the prosecutor said.

The principal fraud, however, the government charges, lay in Kraft's working armory employés in private ventures of his own, to the neglect of their military duties. In this fashion he defrauded the government of about $85,000, the indictment claims.

Col. Kraft is the second National Guard commander to be wrapped in scandal in the last few months. Col. Otis B. Duncan, Negro head of the 8th infantry, completed serving a four months jail ter mlately for obtaining government money on false claims.

Col. Kraft presented a military record yesterday which began, he said, in the Marine corps in 1900 when he served as a gunnery sergeant in China during the Boxer rebellion and later in the Philippine islands. He served intermittently in the National Guard and the marine corps until 1917, taking part in the Mexican disturbance in 1916.

Service in World War.

In 1917 he enlisted in the 131st infantry, I. N. G., and was promoted to a captaincy. In May, 1918, he transferred to the field artillery and served as a captain in France from that time until April, 1919.

In his thirty years of military experience, Col. Kraft was wounded six times (twice in France) and was given a certificate of merit in 1900 during the Boxer rebellion. "We have invited a full and thorough investigation of the charges against him," said Kraft's attorney, James O'Callaghan, "and every check or record of disbursement has been turned over to the government. I believe him absolutely clear."

BANDITS MURDER HUNDREDS IN RAID ON CHINESE CITY

3 U. S. Missionaries Escape Massacre.

HANKOW, July 4.—(AP)—Japanese dispatches today said bandit-communist hordes captured Yochow, Hunan province, and murdered hundreds of persons. Foreigners were forced to evacuate. After looting the city the bandits burned the major part of it.

Three American missionaries of the United States Reformed church, with headquarters in Philadelphia, escaped aboard a Japanese steamer and arrived at Hankow. They were Miss Erna Flatter of Wausau, Wis.; Miss Sarah E. Krick, Reading, Pa., and the Rev. Sterling Whitener of Hickory, N. C.

U. S. Gunboats Sent.

British and American gunboats proceeded to Yochow from Hankow.

Further Japanese dispatches said outlaws on the upper Yangtse river were subjecting foreign steamers to continual attack, showering them with bullets from both sides of the river. It was feared the steamers must suspend navigation above Hankow.

2 Mission Women Seized.

PEIPING, China, July 4.—(AP)—Bandits captured Miss Nettleton and Miss Harrison of the Church Missionary society and are holding them to act as nurses for their sick, and for $100,000 ransom. The two were traveling from Chungan to Kienningfu in Fukien when they were taken.

Capture Spanish Priest.

SHANGHAI, July 4.—(AP)—Father Emilio Fernandez, 60, Spanish priest of the Changteh, Hunan mission, was captured by communists today, advices received at the mission's local headquarters revealed. Father Fernandez has served in China since 1902. Previously he served in Manila for eight years.

Contradicting rebel claims of success, the Nationalist government asserted today its forces had driven the insurgents northward in Honan province with capture of Kaifeng imminent.

Today was the eleventh day of a battle expected to decide China's government. Nationalists struggled to drive the rebels into the Yellow river, while the insurgents tried to plunge through to Nanking and set up another government.

Clarence Bennett, Writer and Actor, Dies, Aged 74

Springfield, Ill., July 4.—[U.P.]—Clarence Bennett, 74, writer and actor, was dead here today following an illness of several days. Bennett was a headliner of the stage in the days of Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett. He was the owner and producer of "Under the North Star," "Royal Slave," and "The Holy City," in the last of which he starred with Mrs. Bennett. During the last fifteen years he was prominent in Masonic work in central Illinois.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

EX-PRIEST DIES FLEEING PRISON IN AN AIRPLANE

WARSAW, July 4.—[Special.]—Within a few minutes of reaching free Polish soil, two Russian runaways in a soviet military airplane met disaster. One, a former Orthodox priest, was killed. The other, his son, a young soviet military flyer, spent several nights in the forests until safely across the Polish frontier.

The flyer, Alexander Korsakoff, was halted by Polish frontier guards near Stolpce yesterday. He said his father had been held in the secret police prison at Woronesh since 1926.

Last week he succeeded in getting his father out of the prison with forged documents and attempted to take him across the border in a military airplane. Just outside the frontier they ran out of gasoline and the airplane crashed.

The young officer begged Polish officials not to send him back to soviet Russia to certain death.

WOMEN TO SIT ON MURDER CASE JURY IN INDIANA

Valparaiso, Ind., July 4.—[Special.]—For the first time since John O'Reilly, Chicago gangster and Frank McErlane lieutenant, was sentenced to life imprisonment for slaying Attorney Thaddeus Fancher in a resort holdup near Crown Point, six years ago, women will sit on a murder case jury in a Porter county court on Tuesday. Then Melvin Davis, Gary hoodlum, will go on trial in the Circuit court on a charge of killing Adolph Mata of East Chicago last Christmas eve. Seven prominent Valparaiso women have been drawn for jury service. In the O'Reilly case two women sat on the jury.

Two Killed, Two Wounded in Kentucky Feud Fracas

Wrigley, Ky., July 4.—(AP)—A Fourth of July gun and knife battle in the general store here today cost the lives of two men and left two others seriously wounded as a quarrel of long standing between two families broke out afresh.

George Gross, 60, and his son, Bert Gross, 18, were killed, Clarence Whitt was seriously wounded, and Rufus Whitt was stabbed.

Friends of the participants said there had been bad feeling between the Whitt and Gross families for some time, and that it previously had resulted in several fights but no gun play.

Grant Overton, Author, Literary Editor, Dead

New York, July 4.—(AP)—Grant Overton, former literary editor of the New York Sun, died today at his home in Patchogue, Long Island. He was in his 43d year.

Mr. Overton, widely known as a newspaper man and author, began his connection with the Sun as a reporter in 1906. He attracted attention during the last decade as the author of "The Women Who Make Our Novels," "Why Authors Go Wrong," "When Winter Comes to Main Street," and "The Thousand and First Night." In 1924 he became literary editor of Collier's, a position which he held until his death.

Boy of 9 Saves 4 Brothers and Sister in Blazing Home

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KINGSTON, Ont., July 4.—"They took hold of each other's nighties, the oldest boy of nine carrying the baby, and leading them through dense smoke from the burning building," was the way Mrs. Charles Yates told of the heroism of Delbert Cole in saving his four brothers and one sister, all under seven, when the house they were sleeping in caught fire. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cole, were away at a dance. They left burning a coal oil lamp on a table. At midnight one child, seeking something to eat, upset the lamp on bedclothes and fire ensued.

Sicily Strikes at Mafia Today with Trial of 214

SCIACCA, Italy, July 4.—(AP)—The Mafia, scourge of Sicily, will be dealt another blow with the opening here tomorrow of the trial of 214 men. The crimes cover a period of 20 years and the accused are charged, among other things, with 43 homicides, 24 attempted homicides, thefts, cases of extortion and violence in the territory of Madonie. The documents in the cases fill 69 volumes.

Policeman, Scalded in Still Explosion, Dies

Walter Remillard, 29 years old, a patrolman attached to the Homewood station of the county highway police force, died last night in Ingalls Memorial hospital at Harvey, Ill., of a scalding suffered a week ago in the explosion of a still at 159th street and Governor's highway, Markham, which Remillard and Sergt. John Orgel had under surveillance. Orgel escaped with minor injuries.

Jeans, Chief Editor of Reuter's News Agency, Dies

LONDON, July 4.—(AP)—Herbert Jeans, chief editor of Reuter's News agency, died today during a heart attack in his residence at Putney. He had been ill for some time.

CHEMICAL WORKS RAZED IN BLAST; 11 KILLED, 20 HURT

500 Homeless; Fumes Hamper Rescuers.

CASTLEFORD, England, July 4.—(AP)—A violent explosion of chemicals this afternoon instantly killed eleven persons and wrecked the factory of the Hicksons & Parsons chemical works.

Police and workmen searching the ruins recovered eleven bodies up to this evening and continued to hunt for more. More than 20 badly injured persons were taken to the hospital.

The cause of the explosion, which was heard and felt in towns ten miles away, has not yet been determined.

Dense Clouds of Gas.

Rescuers could venture into the debris only after dense clouds of noxious smoke and gases had been blown away by the wind. Fire apparatus and ambulances were rushed to Castleford from other communities.

At least 500 persons were homeless here tonight, many dwellings having been rendered uninhabitable by the force of the explosion. Men, women and children wandered about the ruined streets, gazing at what was left of their homes, and wondering where to spend the night.

The urban council and relief organizations have taken measures to provide for the homeless.

Flaming Oil Kills Two.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SARNIA, Ont., July 4.—Caught in a shower of flaming oil when a coke still in the Imperial Oil company plant exploded this afternoon, two men were burned to death and five others seriously burned. The dead are Reginald B. Connors, 37, and William Gilbert, 37, of Sarnia. Flaming oil shot several hundred feet into the air, lighting up the entire city and enveloping the seven men when it fell.

Compulsory Wheat Pool Bill in Australia Beaten

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, July 4.—The wheat marketing bill which was passed by the house of representatives was rejected by the senate by 12 votes to 15 today. The bill provided for the establishment of a compulsory pool and guaranteed growers 4 shillings (about 96 cents) a bushel at the railway stations. An increased acreage which is likely to produce a record yield for the coming season has already been sown in anticipation of the bill's passage.

French Soldier Gives Blood to Aid Gold Star Mother

PARIS, July 4.—(AP)—French surgeons this forenoon performed a transfusion upon Mrs. Edwin Lange, Oshkosh, Wis., Gold Star mother accepting the blood of a French former soldier, who refused to allow his identity to be revealed. The doctors pronounced the operation successful, but expressed fear that another transfusion may be necessary later to assure the recovery of Mrs. Lange.

DEADLOCK KEEPS SCHOOL BOARD GAP UNFILLED

Due to the failure of Mayor Thompson to appoint three new school trustees, the election of a president of the school board which, according to law, should have been held on May 28, continues to be indefinitely postponed. H. Wallace Caldwell, president during the last year, is serving as holdover president until the election of a successor.

There are ten members of the board and one vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. Otto Schmidt, 18 months ago. The terms of Trustees Theophilus Schmid and James Mullenbach expired on May 30, but they continue as holdover members until successors are appointed.

There are two candidates for the presidency. Four members are said to favor the reélection of Mr. Caldwell and four the candidacy of James A. Hemingway. The reported lineup is:

For Caldwell: Trustees Brandenburg, Durante, Schmid, and English. For Hemingway: Myers, Mullenbach, Blatchford, and Mrs. Hefferan. There are two methods by which the deadlock may be broken.

Mayor Thompson may appoint a trustee to fill Dr. Schmidt's vacancy, or Dr. Schmidt may be induced to return and cast his vote. Legally the resignation of a member is not accepted until the appointment of his successor, so Dr. Schmidt may still vote, although he has not attended a meeting for more than a year. By appointing one new member, the mayor would be forced to appoint members to replace Dr. Schmidt and Mr. Mullenbach, or reappoint them.

Such action from the mayor is not expected before the November election, as it is said he is afraid of alienating certain political factions. It is said considerable pressure has been brought to bear upon the mayor in favor of each candidate.

Goes Back to School at 70; Once in Canada Parliament

MRS. A. G. LEONARD DIES; NOTED AS AMATEUR ARTIST

Mrs. Mary Josephine Leonard, wife of Arthur G. Leonard, president of the Union Stockyards Transit company, died yesterday at the Leonard summer home at Eastern Point, near Gloucester, Mass. Mrs. Leonard had gone there six weeks ago in the hope that the sea air would improve her failing health. She was about 58 years old.

Mrs. Leonard, the former Josephine Ashley, was an amateur painter of some distinction and a horticulturist. In the extensive gardens surrounding the Leonard home at 4801 Woodlawn avenue she cultivated the blossoms which provided subjects for her brush. An exhibition of her paintings was held last January in the Fine Arts building.

Mr. Leonard, two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Leonard Ellis of Chicago and Mrs. Lila Leonard Swift of Pasadena, and two sons, Edward A. Leonard of Chicago and Arthur Jr. of Wilmington, Ill., were with Mrs. Leonard when she died. The funeral party is expected to arrive here Monday. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is suppressive about the coming visit, because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Germaine Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs. He had heard that she was ill.

Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, Catherine is treated coldly by the servants. Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and she tells him of her vague fears. The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, where she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment she finds the gallery open for the first time and discovers a number of antiques and tapestries missing. Jeanne says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence on Mme. Bender.

Geoffrey discovers Blom, the mysterious person seen around the Bender apartment, is seeking a possible heir to the Bender fortune. Shortly after this discovery, Blom's arrangement to Mme. Baron, Miss Cushing's milliner, a widow whose maiden name is the family name of Mme. Bender, is announced.

A fire breaks out in Mme. Bender's apartment early in the morning and she is saved to death. Most of the building is saved. Catherine had returned suddenly to Paris the night before. The servants deny to Geoffrey that she came to the apartment. Geoffrey follows Eduardo, the butler, to Blom's office. He sends for his investigator to watch the pair, then calls on the commissariat de police, who assigns Inspector Razin.

Catherine did return to Mme. Bender's apartment. Before retiring she smells smoke and finds it is coming from her cousin's room. The door is locked. She dashes to get help and arouse Jeanne, who fights with her to prevent her from opening madam's door. She sees the butler, carrying a heavy candlestick—and then a crashing blow on her skull robs her of consciousness.

On regaining consciousness Catherine finds herself in a strange bedroom, securely bound. After darkness Jeanne and Eduardo enter, release her and take her out to a waiting car where Blom joins them.

INSTALLMENT LXXXIV.

THE TRIAL.

Geoffrey told her it must have been the locataire from the third floor, trying to wake up the servants.

"But for that interruption they would probably have allowed the fire to go on much longer. In fact, it was probably their plan to let the whole apartment be consumed, just managing to escape with their lives. In that way Mme. Bender's body would have virtually disappeared, as well as every trace of their various thefts. I should say they moved you into one of the back rooms for the time being, then while the man ran out to give the alarm, Eduardo must have carried you up in the lift and through the trap door on to the roof."

"Then I spent the remainder of the night on the roof?" she said wonderingly. "Then how did I come to be in the other flat?"

"It seems it belongs to some wealthy Chilians, who had gone to Rome for Easter. The butler took a week off, and the concierge, who was a friend of Eduardo's as well as a client of Blom's, had mentioned the fact to them, although later when he was questioned by the inspector he denied that there was any unoccupied portion of his building. Do you see?"

"Yes—go on."

"Well, our theory is that when Eduardo paid his call on this concierge at noon on Saturday he stole the key, then carried you across the roof and down into the empty flat, and left you there till eleven at night, at which time he had arranged with Blom to have the car in readiness so they could take you away. As I told you, Bernard spied you from a distance. Otherwise their scheme would have gone off successfully. You see," he added, "you really owe your life to Bernard."

"Only partly. What about your finding out that the telegram was faked? But for that you wouldn't have been on the spot at all."

Little remains to be told. The trial of Jeanne Laborie and Adolph Blom, a veritable cause célèbre, dragged on for weeks, filling the press with detailed accounts. During the entire time neither prisoner vouchsafed a word, preserving a stolidity in accordance with their known characters. They stuck woodenly to their plea of not guilty, and if it had not been for their attempt to do away with Catherine, the case against them would have proved difficult to sustain. When everything possible was known, the facts laid bare may be summed up in this wise:

Shortly after Mme. Bender's return to Paris fifteen months before, Jeanne, hitherto an irreproachable servant, at least on the surface, underwent a change. Her sharp wits recognized the extent to which her mistress' will had become weakened, and resolved to profit by it. She dismissed the other servants, engaged the stupid cook who fell in innocently with her plans, and by dint of many ruses was soon putting aside a substantial sum of money each month. At this period she had no thought of anything worse than keeping Mme. Bender in a helpless state in order to provide herself with the opportunity of pocketing what she could. However, about three months before the murder Blom came into the game, and the scheme was materially altered.

The notaire, through whose hands the stolen money passed, began mutually to wonder at the large sums which the maid regularly brought to him for investment. It did not take him long to discover the source of this surprising wealth and, once sure of his facts, he pounced upon Jeanne and her fellow thief, Eduardo, and informed them brutally that either they must admit him to a share of their gains or else he would lose no time in reporting them to the police.

Now entered the sinister element in the plot. Some months previous Jeanne, in one of her talks with the notaire, had happened to mention her mistress' maiden name, in conjunction with the fact that Mme. Bender possessed no known heir. Blom had said nothing, but had noted that by a curious coincidence the name had also been formerly borne by one of his humble clients—Mme. Baron, known to her customers as Honorine. He resolved quietly to ascertain if a blood relationship might exist between the two Benedits, made the visit to Bordeaux, and hit on the astounding truth that the milliner was indeed not merely a connection of the wealthy woman, but actually her sole heir—a cousin in the seventeenth degree!

This gave him his cue, and he forthwith prepared his plans with cold-blooded thoroughness. He offered Jeanne and Eduardo a definite choice—prison, or conniving with him at the murder of the invalid, at whose death, he, as Mme. Baron's husband, would be in a position to recompense them amply for their services. At this stage it is probable that Jeanne, the master mind of the two servants, while hating to submit her will to another, yet realized that it served her best interests to do so. That she was quite conscienceless and devoured by avarice was only too apparent.

The plotters were thrown into confusion by Catherine's visit. Deeming it best to hasten things, they arranged the first known attempt on the victim's life by substituting the extra strong solution of disinfectant for the glass of water with which she was about to take her veronal tablet. The plan failed. The truth about Mme. Bender's trying to jump out of the window was never revealed, but it was almost certainly an invention of Jeanne's to lend color to her assertions. Here again she killed two birds with one stone. She influenced public opinion, deceiving even the doctor, and by placing the bars across the window she shook her mistress' faith in herself to a terrifying extent.

Knowing that once her mistress was dead she and Eduardo would have to content themselves with what Blom was willing to pay them, Jeanne resolved to make the most of her present opportunity, and from the moment she agreed to the notaire's terms, set about quietly stripping the apartment of saleable objects.

She was now faced with an embarrassing situation. Catherine had become a positive menace. She was resolved to make an indefinite stay, and showed signs of her intention to oust the servants from their positions. Drastic action must be taken without delay, consequently the maid hit on the idea of making her enemy ill so that she would either be confined to her room or else forced to go away. Thereupon she administered to the unsuspecting girl a drug which brought on the attack, later supposed to be ptomaine poisoning, throwing the young doctor off the track by hinting that the patient had given herself some violent medicine.

Geoffrey's theory regarding the fire was probably correct. Having got all she could hope to obtain, Jeanne did not in the least care if the whole building was destroyed. It meant safety for her, and although Blom might be furious over the needless loss he could not say anything. His only possible course was to remain behind the curtains, go ahead with his humble marriage and then subside until the moment when, more than any one else, as could express amazed gratification at his wife's stupendous luck.

The pearls, disposed of piecemeal, were never recovered, nor were the Aubusson carpet and tapestries. A number of the paintings turned up finally in the provinces, where the same person was holding them until a safe time.

The two criminals received the death sentence.

BY MAE TINEE.

Good morning!

This is that interesting accomplishment—a mystery story that keeps you mystified.

From the moment you enter the lonely country inn with Anthony Peel and Mrs. Worthington till the time you are about to leave it you're kept guessing. That you MAY remain handsomely in the dark till the picture has its way with you I shan't tell you a thing about the story, save that:

Mrs. Worthington has no business to be out with Mr. Peel—and knows it.

Billie Dove, who enters as a chambermaid, exits as somebody entirely different.

There are a murder, a diamond necklace and a missing coatsleeve button to be accounted for.

Somebody falls desperately in love with somebody.

A mean man is thwarted just when he thinks he's being successful—and so on. No more of the tale from me to you.

The piece has been excellently recorded, directed and photographed. The acting is all commendable and the action moves with snap.

The goo-ey title is to be lamented, but we have learned to put not our faith in titles—so why cry about just one more wet smack?

"He's a great kid!"

That's what you'll say of Frank Albertson when you see him in this picture. As Larry Grayson he is Wild Youth Brought to Its Senses, and he gives a vivid and moving characterization.

His name is familiar, isn't it? You're remembering him as Ensign Price in "Men Without Women." Well, you'll remember him some more after seeing "Wild Company."

This film would bring home to parents the facts that their children need them—not AS parents with a glassy eye and "No!" complex, but as chums and understanding companions; and that young folks should not be running around with enough money to buy their way into night clubs frequented by the flotsam and jetsam of the underworld. Also it would pointedly suggest that parents interested in reforming the morals of the community should begin with investigations right in the cozy home circle.

There's nothing especially original about the story of this production, but it does hold the interest and point its moral effectively. The best work is done by Frank Albertson, Claire McDowell as his mother, and George Fawcett as a judge. H. B. Warner, theatrical as to voice and manner at the start, gets better as the action proceeds. Others in the cast qualify all right.

There's plenty doing in "Wild Company."

Mrs. Alice Garrett and G. A. Gordon Soon to Wed

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, July 4.—The conclusion between the Vienna state opera and the Stad theaters of Prussia, Bavaria, and Saxony which means practically all of Germany, of an agreement establishing a common attitude toward sound films was announced yesterday.

This agreement foreshadows the production of sound film opera in Germany and Austria. An important clause provides for the distribution of filmable operas to prevent duplication.

The agreement was rendered necessary primarily by the recent entry of Prussian state theaters into film production through their purchase, in coöperation with Max Reinhardt, of a large share of the stock of the German Tone Film company and by negotiations between the Vienna Opera and the Austrian Selenophon company for production of film operas here.

It is understood Wagnerian operas will be left wholly or largely to German opera houses while Vienna will be given the choice of lighter works, including Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier," and the Mozart operas. Rossini's "Angelina" which although almost unknown on the opera stage, is said to be excellently adapted for filming, is also talked of.

"Ravag," a semi-state corporation, which controls radio broadcasting programs in Austria also may associate itself with Vienna film opera production.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

The Answers.

S. A. Brusler, 4053 Gladys, druggist—They should spend their vacations together, especially if there are children in the family. Both have earned the vacation through working for the best interest of the family. The vacation also should be for some object, out camping or at some summer resort.

Mrs. Bertha Hillman, 4053 Gladys avenue, housewife—I would say husband and wife should spend their vacation separately. Maybe he wants to go to a country club and play golf or go fishing, while she might want to go to the country and rest on a farm or maybe at a beach.

Ray R. Wenta, 1 East Huron street, merchant — The husband and wife certainly should spend their vacation together. Their work keeps them from enjoying each other's companionship most of the year. I like to take the family to some nice quiet spot in the country where they can fish.

Miss Sarah Brusler, St. Louis, Mo. stenographer—Let the husband and wife spend their vacation together. What enjoyment would there be in taking separate ones? They both need this little time to devote to each other and to the kids. A good spot for them to rest is at the seashore or in the country.

John Consiglier, 808 North Dearborn street, city employé—I believe each should spend their vacation separately. They are together the year around and probably each would enjoy a complete rest. There always is more or less care and worry in taking the family for an outing or vacation and "absence makes the heart grow fonder."

Cabinet Camp New Feature of Mountains

It's Near Hoover's Place in the Blue Ridge.

Washington, D. C., July 4.—(AP)—With uncertainty the only thing certain about official vacations the interest of cabinet wives centers on "cabinet camp."

The doubtful duration of the special senate session and the insistent demands for speechmaking combine in upsetting arrangements for auto tours, boat trips, and camping excursions.

"We plan to replan—we only wish we knew!"

Such being the situation, cabinet camp could make no more opportune entrance into the official scene. Outfitted for camp life only this week it now awaits the cabinet members whenever they choose to make overnight and week-end trips. And if their wives so choose, they may remain for weeks on the Rapidan as Mrs. Hoover is now doing.

Cabinet camp, new and near neighbor to President Hoover's lodge in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, is a coöperative concern.

Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Wilbur already have visited the camp.

Mrs. Brown, wife of a postmaster general, who happens to be a noted camp cook, expressed keenest anticipation.

"No vacation the last two summers," she sighed. "I did so want an auto trip or a boat trip—but others have to stay in warm Washington—and we'll have the new camp!"

To the wife of the secretary of the interior the camp will be reminiscent of Palo Alto, where Wilburs and Hoovers bought cabins high in the redwoods for recreation.

Mrs. Hurley and Mrs. Stimson, remaining with their husbands here, continued to hope for cherished trips afar, and were glad for a country spot several degrees cooler than the capital city.

Other cabinet wives will make the acquaintance of the camp later. Mrs. Davis, with her five children, is on vacation at Atlantic City. Mrs. Mitchell is at her St. Paul home. Mrs. Adams will be in Concord, Mass., all summer. Mrs. Lamont will remain at her summer home in Lake Forest, Ill., until October.

'FAUST' SUNG AMID FIREWORKS; DEVIL RETAINS HIS POISE

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Faust," to the distant accentuations of firecrackers anda fireworks, was the Independence night celebration at Ravinia. It is a work which in popularity bears about the same relation to the French school that "Il Trovatore" does to the Italian, and this means that when either is given with a Ravinia cast, it is fairly certain to an audience of sizable dimensions.

There was a slight fear in the beginning that the spirit of independence was taking an undue part in the performance. More than once a suspicion was aroused that all the participants were engaged upon a contest to see who could sing the loudest. This method, while it is likely to lead to a spirited performance as it did last night, does not always yield the complete musical content of what Gounod wrote into "Faust."

But once entered upon the garden scene, the psychology of that remarkable music, an extraordinary scene and one of the best of its kind ever composed, began to come over all the artists. There arose contrast and shading and expression through repression. Ada Paggi, an excellent artist, gave a first class interpretation of the flower song. Then Giovanni Martinelli did some of the finest singing in all his Ravinia career in his address to the dwelling pure and holy. Then Yvonne Gall completely captivated the audience with what she did in the jewel song, a performance that had all the expert manner of the trained singer and yet remained completely feminine and youthful in its spirit. The two do not always coincide.

And it was something to observe the distinctive manner and the glorified tradition with which Leon Rothier sang and acted his stately way through the rôle of Mephistopheles, something also to observe the excellent character acting of Philine Falco in a comparatively small part. And to Louis Hasselmans, the conductor, should go the handclasp appreciative of the performance of an artist.

British Actors Start Equity Association as Americans Offer Aid

LONDON, July 4.—(AP)—The baby British Actors' Equity association cut its first tooth today in the presence of two anxious American equity godparents—Ethel Barrymore and John Emerson, president of the American Equity.

British stage old timers and youngsters of the chorus jostled each other in an effort to crowd into the little theater which housed British Equity's first meeting since its organization on the lines of the American group. They loudly voiced support for protection of actors against low wages and being stranded.

Sybil Thorndike, one of England's best known character actresses, urged her fellow players to quit squabbling and to get together in support of the new organization.

She referred to the long standing disagreement between the actors' association and the stage guild, both of which still are functioning.

Crowd Views Washington of Mt. Rushmore

Carved Head 60 Ft. High Unveiled Amid Rites.

Rapid City, N. D., July 4.—(AP)—Gutzon Borglum's gigantic face of George Washington, carved on Mount Rushmore's granite cliff, was revealed today as a reminder through the centuries of the historical foundation of the United States.

In simple impressive Independence day ceremonies in the heart of South Dakota's Black hills an audience of 2,500 witnessed the unveiling of the 60 foot head of the first President of the United States. The face is the first unit of Mount Rushmore National memorial.

"America's shrine for political democracy," the monument was called by Joseph S. Cullinan of Houston, Tex., chairman of the federal commission in charge of Borglum's project.

Borglum in his presentation speech, said it was a monument to the aspirations of a great people, not to individual men. Declaring Washington's head would remain on the mountain for half a million years, he told the audience that the monument "would include the heads of Jefferson, Lincoln, and Roosevelt, along with a brief history of the nation's founding and expansion to be written by former President Calvin Coolidge. These will be made on the same heroic scale on Rushmore's 700 foot face.

Washington's head appears high on the granite cliff at an elevation of 6,200 feet above sea level. Pine and spruce trees are dense at the foot and stretch for miles over the rugged blank hills.

Ceremonies were held at noon today on the veranda of Borglum's studio on Doane mountain, almost under Rushmore memorial. The crowd gathered on boulders and under trees in a rustic setting.

Doane Robinson of Pierre, S. D., who first proposed the Black hills memorial, described it a success.

Mr. Cullinan was elected president of the Rushmore National Memorial society. The meeting was held following the unveiling. Fred W. Sargent of Chicago, president of the Chicago and North Western railway; Lorine J. Spoontz of Corpus Christie, Tex., and Harry Harriman of Rumsey, N. Y., were named vice presidents; Mr. Robinson, secretary, and John Boland, Rapid City, treasurer.

Northampton, Mass., July 4.—(AP)—Since the days when his mail came addressed to "his honor, the mayor of Northampton," until today, his 58th birthday and two years after his retirement as President, Calvin Coolidge has received a card of greeting from a woman in a little backwoods town in Vermont.

NATIONS IN ARMS AWAIT NEW WARS, LLOYD GEORGE SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 4.—David Lloyd George denounced tonight warlike preparations by the nations of the world. He spoke before the Bournemouth session of the International Congregational council.

"Preparations for war are going on in every country in the world," he said. "More men are being trained for war in Europe, Asia and America than before the great catastrophe of 1914. The material of war, now ready, is infinitely more destructive and more terrible than the material accumulated for the European arsenals in 1914. We have got covenants against war. We have got pacts. We have all signed that there shall be no more war, and we are spending more preparing for the thing we have determined should never occur again.

"We are building up barriers against each other, putting up fences and restrictions gainst each other. We are blockading and trying to starve each other. Trade is treated as if it were contraband, and the atmosphere is poisoned with distrust and suspicion."

The Liberal leader declared that he is convinced that the future of humanity depends on a complete understanding between the people of the United States and Great Britain and that it is vital in the interest of the human race that America and Great Britain should march side by side in solving the great problem awaiting us.

Society Heeds Europe's Call During Summer

BY THALIA

Despite an impression that "everybody is away," there is a substantial representation of society still at home. And even with those gone who are departing in the near future there will remain a good sized group who prefer Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock of 1125 Astor street sailed yesterday on the S. S. Europa for Europe, as did Mrs. William C. Pullman and her sister, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins. The Stocks plan to attend the music festival at Munich.

Mrs. Pullman and Mrs. Watkins plan to spend some time in England. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild of the Drake also sailed on the Europa.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith of Lake Forest left on Thursday for their island place at Desbarats, Canada. Mrs. Smith's parents, the Robert J. Thornes, are not planning to open their place this year. Their daughter, Mrs. George Gillespie [Katherine Thorne] has returned to California after a visit here, and Miss Laura Thorne will visit Mr. and Mrs. Pardee Erdman at Folly ranch at Buffalo, Wyo.

Mrs. John A. Stevenson of 1430 Lake Shore drive plans to leave Chicago next Saturday, to be at Santa Barbara, Cal. There the George A. Ranney family also are spending the summer. Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Ranney are to join them during August.

The Paul Wilders of Lake Forest, who were reunited, are on a motor trip in the Black Hills. It is understood that they are planning to live in California henceforth.

The clubhouse of the Lawsonia Country club is filled with members and their guests for the week-end, and all the houses on the lake have house parties. Mr. and Mrs. John Eliot Warner of Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rompel of Winnetka, Mrs. Frederick T. Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Markham, and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Kehoe are at the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Bendix have at their place Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bard, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Bowes Jr., and the Bard and Bowes children. With Mr. and Mrs. Paul Skinner are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yeager of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Giblin.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bartholomew and Frank Callahan are with the Walter Aagards. Dr. and Mrs. Mark W. Trude are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rollins Jr. Mrs. Bendix and Mrs. Skinner have donated prizes for the women's golf events, and Dr. Trude and Hiram O. Wood have given the men's prizes.

The Woman's guild and auxiliary of Christ church in Winnetka has planned a series of summer parties for the benefit of the furnishings fund for the new parish house. Mrs. Harry L. Street is to open her residence at 591 Sheridan road for the first affair next Tuesday, a morning bridge and luncheon, and Mrs. James S. Pole, Mrs. Richard W. Walsh, and Mrs. John Walter Miller will assist her. Mrs. William Ogden Green is to give the party on Thursday, July 10, with Mrs. Charles Fuller, Mrs. William J. Cook, Mrs. Henry K. Urion, and Mrs. Dain D. Fuller assisting, and Mrs. John R. Cochran is to be hostess for a luncheon and afternoon bridge on Tuesday, July 15, with Mrs. Wyndham H. Channer and Mrs. John B. Guthrie assisting.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham of 1238 North State street and her young son, Johnny, left last week to spend the summer at Mount Haven, Me. Mr. Winterbotham will go east later in the season, returning with his wife and son in early September.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van Rensselaer Thayer of 1500 Lake Shore drive, who came here to live from New York City last fall, have gone east to be at Beverly Farms, Mass., for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ewing of Lake Forest and their daughters, Miss Katherine and Miss Helen Ewing, have completed their 8 months' trip around the world and are back at home at "Roodwoods" for the summer.

George W. Dixon Jr., son of George W. Dixon of 1250 Lake Shore drive, will sail next week for a two months' sojourn abroad. His sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring, will go to Quebec and Lake Placid in August.

Mrs. Lloyda Smith Shaw of 447 Barry avenue has gone to Tonawanda, N. Y., to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. LeGrand DeGraf Simson at their cottage on Grand isle in the Niagara river. Mrs. Shaw will make an indefinite stay in the east after leaving the Simsons.

Theosophists in Annual Convention Here Today

The forty-fourth annual convention of the American Theosophical society will be held in the society's national headquarters for four days, beginning today.

Miss Clara M. Codd and Goeffrey Hodson, both prominent Theosophists in England, will be the principal guests. Both will lecture at the summer school, to be held July 9 to 15.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—Attorney General Mitchell and the secretary of commerce, Robert P. Lamont, are guests of the assistant secretary of the treasury and Mrs. Walter Ewing Hope in their summer home at Watch Hill, R. I., for the week-end.

Speaker Longworth left last night for his home in Cincinnati. Mrs. Longworth and little Paulina will join the speaker in a few days to spend a little time in Cincinnati before opening their cottage at Jamestown, R. I.

Mrs. Delos O. Kingman gave a luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Mae Marah of Chicago in the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women.

MARRIED

MRS. PAUL J. CUSHING.

Mrs. Paul J. Cushing was, before her marriage in early June, Miss Anne C. Welter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Welter of 5924 Fairfield avenue.

Poor Kids Delighted by Fireworks at the Algonquin Camp

There may have been bigger but there were no better celebrations yesterday than Camp Algonquin staged to make the Fourth glorious for the youngsters summering there. It was as clamorous as a cannon cracker, as patriotic as the stars and stripes, and as safe as sanity could make it.

From the first blare of the bugle that roused them in the morning until the last rocket had soared up and burst in a shower of stars above the waters of the Fox river after dark last night, a carnival, circus day atmosphere pervaded the camp. Especially when the parade started.

This Independence day program has come to be a July Fourth custom at the green and lovely haven in the Fox river valley. All the camp guests participate, including children, mothers and babies from the byways of the city where July Fourth is only the day between July third and July fifth; the camp counselors, college boys and girls turning their summers to account; the cooks, the supervisors, nurses, and the superintendent. Gay colored paper caps and streamers paid tribute to the holiday spirit.

There was a wealth of bunting decorating the dining hall for the occasion. There was a program of songs, music and speeches on the spacious porch of the recreation building. On the river, there was the thrilling put-put-put of a brand new motor boat, which was initiated by group after group as the afternoon waned.

Last but far from least, there was the rush down to the river bank after dinner last night. There was the scramble for the most advantageous seats. There was a period of bated breath, of quivering anticipation. And then the rockets zoomed up and streaked across the sky, the red flares burst like flowers into bloom, the Roman candles spit sparks and balls of colored flame, and the clouds of acrid smoke eddied and swirled about the workmen who moved here and there, lighting spinning wheels and weird green tapers at a safe distance from the crowd.

Yesterday, as in former years, the camp was indebted to the Thearle Duffield Fireworks company for the display afforded these little folk, whose lives are too much harassed by the struggle for necessities to have a surplus left for such luxuries. For dozens of them, last night's display was their first introduction to fireworks. It left them starry eyed and exultant.

If you have neglected sending in that contribution that will mean so much in keeping the youngsters at camp this summer, there is no better time to do so than the present. Every cent is needed. Address the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, and the contributions will be acknowledged in these columns.

Sally to Tell Her Byrd Film List Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

If you are numbered among the lucky hundred to see "With Byrd at the South Pole" with me on next Thursday, you will find your name in the list of winners which I shall print in tomorrow's TRIBUNE. This will be a splendid party, too, for it's a picture every one of you will enjoy to the utmost.

Your excellent letters plainly show that all of you are most anxious to see this account of Byrd's trip to the south pole, but some of the letters were especially interesting, so I am going to let you read one of them:

"Dear Sally: When I read of the generous invitation the management of the Roosevelt theater offered, one scream and a couple of whoops and I sat down to write. I have read everything I was able to find about Commander Byrd and his men and I rate him first in the list of the 'Most Wonderful Men of the World.' Sally, just think of those men drinking the warm blood of the penguins when they had nothing else to live on. I'm so anxious to see the great masses of ice and snow, the Eskimo dogs, and all the adventures and hardships of these brave, courageous men. Br-r, br-r, it makes me shiver to think of the temperature down at the south pole. If I could only pay a tribute to Commander Byrd and his heroic men that would be worthy of them I would be satisfied, but if I write all the most wonderful words I can think of none of them could even describe such a marvelous show of brave men.

"You don't know how enthusiastic I am to see all this and I hope you will invite me to your party. F. P."

Dr. Chase Becomes New President of the U. of Illinois Today

Champaign, Ill., July 4.—[Special.]—Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, former president of the University of North Carolina, will assume the presidency of the University of Illinois tomorrow morning, following a short ceremony in which the keys of the institution will be presented to him. Dr. Chase, who becomes sixth president of the state university since it was established 63 years ago, succeeds Dr. David Kinley who resigned last fall after reaching the retiring age limit of 68 years. Dr. Chase was born in Groveland, Mass., and was 47 years old last April.

Several members of the board of trustees and other administrative officers of the state institution will be present at the ceremony Saturday morning. Formal installation will be held in the fall.

Dr. Chase received a degree of bachelor of arts from Dartmouth college and four years later a degree of master of arts. In 1910 he was made doctor of philosophy by Clark University. During the final year of his work there he also served as director of the university clinic for subnormal children. He has been honored with the degree of doctor of laws by Dartmouth, the University of Georgia, Lake Forest college and Lenoir-Rhyne college. Last year he was president of the National Association of State universities and had been secretary treasurer for the organization since 1922.

He is a member of the American Psychology association, the Southern Society of Philosophy and Psychology, and the society of college teachers of education. He is a trustee of the general education board of New York City, and of the Rosenwald educational fund.

He was married in 1910 to Miss Lucetta Crum, Logansport, Ind., a graduate of Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia. They have a daughter, Elizabeth, and a son, Carl.

Since 1919, Dr. Chase had been president of the University of North Carolina, where he established a record for liberalism in faculty matters and vision in administrative matters.

When Dr. Kinley, retiring president of the university, hands over the keys of the institution to Dr. Chase Saturday morning he will have completed 37 years of service in the university as assistant professor, professor, dean, vice president and president, having filled the latter office for the last ten years. With Mrs. Kinley and their daughter, Janet, Dr. Kinley will leave in August for an extended tour of Europe and the Orient.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S DRESS.

The lengthened line of this dress is apparent at a glance, and the skirt is made with the new circular flounce. It takes a diagonal course, wraps the figure, and falls in a soft drapery at the left side. The bodice is molded beautifully with a swathed treatment across the front that detracts so well from breadth. The flared cuffs of the elbow sleeves gives the arms a slender appearance, and are cool and comfortable. Any of the silk crêpes, tub silks and voiles will be suitable.

The pattern, 2567, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with 1¼ yards of 39 inch contrasting.

[Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Mary Genevieve Conley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Conley of 1345 Elmdale avenue, to Fred W. Leuthesser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Leuthesser of Oak Park, was solemnized on June 25 at St. Gertrude's church.

It's Daily Exercise That Keeps Figures Supple and Limber

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We hear persons, credited as noted authorities, speak disdainfully of the athletic pursuits of women. True, it is the "champion" type of women athlete that usually is attacked. But looking over the "champs" in the public eye at the moment, you've got to agree that they're darned hardy looking specimens and should promise well for the future of the race.

However, it is neither here nor there to get into an argument over women in great athletic events. The body of woman affected, if the doubted authorities prove correct, is so small a percentage of the sex that they are practically lost sight of in a resume of the general female attitude toward exercise. And the general attitude isn't what you could call much.

No one doubts the need of exercise among women. There wasn't so much talk about its need when household duties were such and so many that mother and daughter both could get their full daily quota just making up the half dozen beds, sweeping up the ten rooms, and dusting them, to say nothing of the thousand other duties that attended the old form of housekeeping.

But today the same class women get practically no exercise in their three or four room apartment. The younger women get less, engaged in sedentary occupation as the most of our young women are today. That constant sitting, sitting, sitting from morning to night, day after day, year in and year out certainly is neither natural nor well for the human body.

It isn't necessary to become a crank about exercise [nor is it likely either that many of the sex are threatened that way] but how on earth is one going to keep her youth unless she keeps herself fairly decently limbered? It can't be done.

A Mother Turns Light of Reason on Child Rearing Fads

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I read your article on parental supervision. I agree with you that the trouble with many mothers who fail to exercise proper control over their daughters during the trouble period of 16-18-20 years is that they fear to be classed as 'old fashioned' and 'out of date,' etc.

"But I think there is something else to be taken into account, also. It is the effect on both mother and daughter of much of the material written nowadays on 'How to Bring Up Children.' I say 'on both mother and daughter' because I have found that such material is greedily devoured by children, as well as by the parents, for whom it is especially written. In fact, I found it necessary to discontinue my subscription to an otherwise excellent child's publication because of its 'parents' page,' which conained matter I thought unsuitable for my young son to read.

"The trouble with much of the material, in my opinion, is that the authors ride [or are ridden by] pet hobbies and seem to consider that truth lieth only in their particular ism or fad. They mostly fail to recognize the ever present fact of individualism, even in young children, and apparently forget that 'what is one man's meat is another man's poison' applies to matters of child training, as well as to other things.

"One feature in such literature that is particularly noticeable at the present time is the practical tabooing of any attempt on the part of the parent to enforce discipline by any form of punishment. Children are to be petted, cajoled, or even 'fooled' into doing what is required; all forms of punishment are bad.

"If the getting of only one thing done with the minimum of friction were all that had to be considered, then the petting, coaxing, cajoling methods might be condoned, but as a steady practice their effort is, in my opinion, most disastrous. Yet mothers, following the advice of 'experts,' are, to quite a large extent, employing such methods in training their children, particularly their daughters. The old idea of 'obedience to parents' is more or less in the discard in the home.

"When girls have been brought up without ever being required to render prompt and explicit obedience to an expressed command and have been, in addition, subjected to the wholesale indulgence and spoiling that nearly always goes with the régime, exercising proper control at 16-18-20 is out of the question. A MOTHER."

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

Vistas offer suburban residents possibilities in adding dignity and beauty to the yard plan around homes where there are side or rear yards sufficient in size. According to an eastern authority, the banking of property lines is the first step in preparing the yard for a proper vista which is a view obtained through columns, trees, tall shrubs, or trellises set near the spot from where the vista is most logically viewed.

Mrs. John H. Lehman at 432 South Court street, Crown Point, Ind., has accomplished a suitable plan without setting up an elaborate arbor or trellis. The rear of the home faces to the east, with shrubs about a rod from the house, narrowing the approach to the large grass plot in the center. East of the shrubs the flower beds and shrubs are banked closer to the north and south property lines, lending the appearance of expanse in the yard.

A creeping bent turf provides a carpet-like setting for the "friendship" garden, in which she has planted gifts from other flower loving friends and for the numerous other flower borders and beds which frame the vista.

Perennials and annuals are so arranged to give a long season of blooms with appropriate colorings that blend into a desirable picture. Suburban home owners often are able to create such a vista in the front of the residences, using banks of trees for the closer setting which may stretch down a long path backed with shrubs and flower plantings. Climbing roses, honeysuckle, elematis, tall and Japanese morning glory are suggested for variety in framing trellises or arbors.

Rising Hemline Stops at Parisienne Ankles

JKOUES. PARIS.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Skirts are going up. Hemlines that yesterday trailed in the dust have risen to the high point of the year for evening, and that is above the ankles. Paris had barely settled down to the instep length evening skirt when Worth and other great Paris dressmakers announced a raise, and this raise became immediately effective. Smart women around the town are beginning to wear frocks with these shorter skirts.

The Worth dress shown in our sketch is worn by the Marquise de Casa Maury, and as you can plainly see the skirt is considerably shorter than any skirt prescribed by Paris earlier in the season. This dress is made of tulle marquisette, a fine, strong net, and its skirt is cut in curved panels that give a flat, tailored effect, just to the knees. At this point every other panel is given a gathered petal, with a narrow fluted ruffle edge. The silhouette is slender from waist to hem, even though the skirt is full below the knees. The bodice of this dress is one of the smartest of the summer season, with its right half a bolero tied on to the left shoulder strap, and its left half shirred and draped under the bolero.

All wrong! The best coffees cost the most because they contain more flavor and more cups to the pound.

Food Talk.

Children and grownups, too, often have a marked aversion to milk. In the child this is often due either to pampering or to some unpleasant experience. But the adult who realizes the tremendous importance of milk in the diet because of its calcium, phosphorus, excellent protein, and vitamins and still does not drink it deserves no sympathy from any of us.

Nature has provided us with milk—a food as complete as one could wish, with the best possible quality of food nutrients. Experimental evidence shows that the child who gets at least one quart of milk daily and the adult who gets one pint are most likely to have an adequate diet. Realizing the place of milk we must do our best to give our families their required supply.

When bad food habits have been formed the individual must overcome these. If he finds plain milk unpleasant there is a way out of his difficulty. Flavored drinks in which the milk flavor is disguised or camouflaged are quickly and easily prepared. The addition of a few ingredients does not impair the qualities of milk, and the person who hitherto found it unpleasant becomes a devotee of the drink.

Those of us who do like milk will also appreciate it in a new form. Especially now in the hot summer days a cool, refreshing milk drink is a worthwhile addition to the meal. Not only does it please as much as other fruit drinks, but it also helps us on to that goal—the adequate diet.

These Recipes Help to Get Sufficient Milk Into the Diet

Pinch cayenne.

Beat eggs until frothy. Mix the cheese, bread crumbs, seasonings, and milk with the eggs. Melt butter. Add to the mixture. Put in a buttered baking dish. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven [350° F.]. Serve immediately.

CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE.

Chipped ice.

Put all the ingredients into a fruit jar or a cocktail shaker and shake vigorously or whisk with an egg beater. To make chocolate malted milk add 4 teaspoons malted milk to the chocolate milk shake given above. Shake vigorously.

What Tree Is That? Youngsters Ask; These Books Answer

A booklet on sex education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If you and your children—no matter what their age—want to discover trees together, a small book that is just out in revised form is the best and clearest guide imaginable. It is called by the simple qustion couched in the language we all use, "What Tree Is That?" It is written by E. G. Cheyney, who is professor of forestry in the University of Minnesota.

The book is well planned. Two pages are devoted to a tree. On the left hand page is a clear drawing of the leaf, its arrangement and the berry. On the right is a brief description of the leaf, bark and fruit of the tree, where it is found and its use.

The book is so simple that any child who can read could use it to compare a leaf she or he might find with the leaves sketched in the book, and find its name without help from an older person. Sometimes, it happens, though, that the younger children don't ask often, "What tree is that?" When they lack interest in the subject, the thing to do is to wait. But it helps if you know, yourself. One does need to be a lap ahead of the children wherever possible!

If boys and girls are making leaf books this summer—which, by the way, is a nice thing to do—this book would be just the aid they need. Its only lack seems to be that there are no sketches to give a suggestion of the general shapes of trees.

"What Tree Is That?" is by E. G. Cheyney, is published by D. Appleton & Co., and costs $2.00.

A smaller tree book that has some excellent points is "Our Most Popular Trees." Its text is not so well arranged and it has fewer trees described, but it contains fine little full color plates which show the whole tree and enlargements of the fruit, leaf, and bark of each one. This book is by Lydia Northrop Gilbert, is published by George Sully & Co., of New York, and costs $1.50.

A Goofy Face.

I am employed in a real estate office with another girl. Each morning she buys THE TRIBUNE and reads it with the boss before I come down. This morning she saw a picture of a man that greatly reminded her of our boss and did not hesitate to tell him about it. He didn't see much of a resemblance to himself in this picture, so they decided to ask my opinion when I arrived.

I gazed on it and said, "Let me see, that goofy face is quite familiar, but I can't place it."

My boss blushed beyond description.

CANNON'S STOCK DEALING PUT IN SENATE RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.] — Scathing denunciations of Bishop James Cannon Jr.' stock market speculations through a New York bucketshop, a complete history of the transactions and an exhaustive analysis of the charges laid against him during the general conference of the Methodist Church, South, in May, were placed in the Congressional Record by Senators Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] and George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] just before the senate adjourned late last night.

Irked by an editorial implication in a recent issue of the Christian Century, published in Chicago, that, because the church conference did not unfrock Cannon, it tolerated stock market gambling, Glass read into the record a resolution adopted by the conference unqualifiedly condemning all forms of gambling.

Norris Adds Correspondence File.

Norris added to the record, by unanimous consent of the senate, not only the charges on which Cannon was haled before the committee on episcopacy of his church, but as well, the letters, cablegrams and telegrams exchanged between the bishop and Harry L. Goldhurst, operator of Kable & Co., with which the bishop dealt, and a photostatic copy of one page of the bucketeer's ledger showing a portion of the Cannon account.

Inasmuch as the Christian Century, published by the Rev. Charles C. Morrison, has been one of Cannon's defenders in the past, the editorial appearing in its June 25 issue, entitled "The Lost Leader" attracted wide attention in the capital even before Glass formally brought it before the senate last night.

Picture Changes, Says Periodical.

"The publication of Bishop Cannon's correspondence with his brokers," said the periodical announcing its break with the bishop, "puts a very different color upon the whole affair. There is still not evidence that his operations were not within the law, or that he consciously chose a company of bucketshop swindlers as the agents for his financial transactions.

"But the picture of an innocent and rather indifferent investor placing in the hands of an old friend a few hundred or a few thousand dollars for investment while he went about his Father's business with an untroubled mind, has entirely faded out. Instead, we see a feverishly anxious speculator haunting the telegraph office, exchanging frequent, sometimes daily, cablegrams from Brazil and elsewhere with his brokers, cautioning them against wiring him at certain addresses where the receipt of such messages might cause 'unpleasant complications,' scrambling for funds with which to cover margins or to act upon market tips, directing by wire the purchase or sale of this and that stock 'on edge and fearful of flop,' scolding his brokers for their failure to carry out his orders and clamoring for statements of his account.

"The Christian Century here lifts its voice in solemn and earnest protest against the occupancy of a high place of leadership for moral and spiritual ends in the name of the church by a personality so lacking moral sensitiveness as to be capable of engaging in such a mad scramble for unearned gain as that in which Bishop Cannon was engaged."

NOTED LAWYERS LAUNCH SUIT TO TEST DRY ACT

Newark, N. J., July 4.—[Special.]—A test case to determine the constitutionality of the 18th amendment will get under way in the federal District court here next Thursday and will be carried next spring to the United States Supreme court, according to the plans of five well known lawyers who have volunteered their services in the case.

They are Selden Bacon, former Supreme court justice; Daniel F. Cohalan, and Prof. Leslie J. Tompkins, head of the law school at New York university, all of whom are members of the special committee of the New York County Lawyers' association, which held last March that the 18th amendment was illegally ratified; Julius Henry Cohen, commissioner for the port authority, and Frederick M. P. Pearse of Newark, a former assistant United States attorney.

The central figure will be William Sprague, an obscure member of an old New Jersey family, who is under indictment for transportation and possession of fifty half barrels of "real or high powered beer," the phrase being that of his trial counsel, Mr. Pearse.

PHILADELPHIA'S MAYOR ATTACKS PROHIBITION ACT

Philadelphia, Pa., July 4.—[Special.]—Seven thousand persons participating in the city's official celebration at Independence hall today heard Mayor Mackey denounce the eighteenth amendment as the creator of a generation of "hypocrites, liars and false pretenders" and plead for "a new Declaration of Independence" based upon "man's tolerance for man."

Standing within a few feet of the Liberty bell, the mayor drew applause with his address which contained references to the recent New Jersey primary and a plea for the return to the states of the right of local option on the question of prohibition enforcement.

"It is time for the American people to stop and take account of their stewardship of this strange and peculiar thing known as liberty, which is generally said to have been born right here," he said.

"The world is waiting for a regime of that tolerance that will forbid one man setting up a standard of human conduct and insisting that others shall conform in every particular to his own specially created standard or otherwise damn that man as a moral heretic."

COPELAND CALLS ON U.S. FOR DRY INDEPENDENCE

Senator Wagner Also Assails Prohibition.

New York, July 4.—[Special.]—A new Declaration of Independence calling for the modification of the eighteenth amendment to permit each state to control the liquor traffic in its own way was voiced today by United States Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner at the 141st annual Independence day observance of the Tammany society at Tammany hall.

Saying the prophecy of President Madison of armed conflict between state militia and the federal army in case the federal government should attempt to enforce an unenforceable law might yet be fulfilled if the prohibition question was not settled, Senator Copeland contended each state had the right to settle a domestic matter as the overwhelming majority of its citizens desired it to be settled.

Wagner Also Hits Dry Law.

Turning to Greek mythology for an illustration, Senator Copeland pictured Columbia chained by prohibition as Andromeda was chained and declared Columbia must be released as Andromeda was released.

Senator Wagner said he had complete faith that the American people would find a solution of the prohibition question. He opposed the return of the saloon and declared that the line of progress was toward restoration to the states of responsibility for the promotion of the temperance of their citizens.

Al Smith Absent.

The Tammany society's observance was preceded by presentation to the city by the Charles F. Murphy Memorial association of a bronze flagpole in the northern end of Union square which replaces the Liberty pole erected by the Tammany society in the southern end of the park. The flagpole was accepted for the city by Mayor James Walker. Mayor Walker did not attend the following exercises.

Another notable absentee was former Gov Alfred E. Smith, a sachem of the society. Illness prevented the attendance of former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was kept away by his attendance at the conference of governors at Salt Lake City.

BLAZE, LAID TO BOYS, TIES UP TRAINS ON "L"

Fire, believed to have been started by mischievious boys, swept an abandoned coal yard of the Consumers company at 1200 Chicago avenue, Evanston, yesterday, tying up train movements for half an hour on the Rapid Transit tracks to the west and blocking street car and vehicular traffic on Chicago avenue for an hour.

Twelve horses in the adjacent stables of the Swift Delivery company were led to safety through dense smoke by firemen and citizens. A south wind prevented spread of the flames to the gasoline storage tanks of the Bulk Service station just south of the coal yard. Fire Chief A. N. Hofstetter estimated the damage at $2,000.

For the fourth time in recent months a blaze broke out yesterday in the fourth and fifth stories of a vacant and condemned building at 305 West Wacker drive, necessitating a 3-11 alarm as the flames spread to the roof of a structure occupied by Armour & Co. at Lake and Franklin streets. Fire Marshal Corrigan said Building Commissioner Paschen has been instructed to raze the building, which is known as a habitation of hobos.

RAID SALOON AFTER FIGHT.

Reports of a fight in a saloon at 6903 South State street sent a Woodlawn police squad to the place, where they arrested Harry Bohne, 46 years old, 6831 South State street, the only occupant, and confiscated four bottles of whisky and a quantity of bottled beer.

DRY PADLOCKS FOR YEAR TIE UP $10,000,000 HERE

U. S. Injunctions Close 461 Places.

Real estate investments in the metropolitan area, with an estimated value of $10,000,000, have been tied up by dry padlocks during the last year, according to the annual report issued yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney La Verne Norris.

Mr. Norris' report for the fiscal year ending June 30 shows that 461 permanent injunctions have been obtained and that 51 suits are pending. The pending cases include those against Ralph Capone's Cicero cabarets, the Montmartre, and the $100,000 Cotton club. A hearing on these cases is set for July 11.

The dry padlocks for the year, according to the report, affected the following types of places: Saloons, 170; speakeasies, 51; beer flats, 40; drug stores, 75; distilleries, 10; cabarets, 10; roadhouses, 40; soft drink parlors, 40, and restaurants, 25.

Shows Decrease in Padlocks.

The cabarets closed for one year included North Side Frankie Pope's Beau Monde, the Club Royale, where Tex Guinan formerly cajoled the suckers; Bert Kelly's Stables, the Cocoanut Grove, and the Club Algiers, David [Cockeyed Mulligan] Ablin's revelry joint.

The report shows a considerable decrease in the padlock form of administering the Volstead law here. A recent report issued by E. C. Yellowley, former prohibition administrator, showed that 4,309 places were padlocked in about five years.

The $10,000,000 real estate figure was set on an estimated average value of between $20,000 and $25,000 for the places closed. Several of the cabarets represented investments of $50,000 to $100,000, and many of the drug stores, together with the lots, were worth that much, Mr. Norris said.

2,726 ILLINOIS PADLOCKS

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—Padlock injunctions have proved "most effective weapons" in the enforcement of the prohibition law in Illinois, according to a report issued by the prohibition bureau today, showing that 2,726 padlocks were snapped upon Illinois buildings during the year ended March 31.

The report, sent out by James M. Doran, who was prohibition commissioner until July 1, revealed that Illinois has been singled out for the padlock procedure. Although the number of injunctions issued all over the country increased from 466 in 1921 to 7,048 in 1929, the number in Illinois for the year ended March 31 was more than one-third of the country-wide total in 1929.

SEEK TO INDICT GAS COMPANY AS MAKER OF BOOZE

Kansas City, Mo., July 4.—(AP)—William L. Vandeventer, United States district attorney, today said he would seek to indict the Kansas City Gas company as "a manufacturer of liquor" in connection with the recent confiscation of an 800-gallon still in the basement of a garage here.

Vandeventer said the gas company's meter was in full view of the still and he considered the company culpable in that no report had been made by its representatives concerning the liquor manufacturing apparatus.

Water, electricity and gas are necessary in operation of stills, Vandeventer said, adding that the gas bill for the place where the still was located amounted to $138 for May.

"That should give anybody an idea that something was wrong at the place," he said. "The Kansas City Gas company's conduct has been such as to aid and abet the men found in possession of the still."

The company, if indicted and found guilty, could be fined up to $10,000.

Two Risk Cruise Across Lake in 10 Foot Boat

Charles Champlin, 7217 South Hermitage avenue, and Alden S. Baker, 2236 West 115th street, set out in a ten foot boat at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning, on a cruise to South Haven, Mich. They hoped to reach their destination within fifteen hours. Their boat is powered with a five horsepower motor. The start of the trip was made at 75th street and the lake.

Burglars, Frightened by Alarm, Drop $2,000 Goods

To avoid the elaborate burglar alarm safeguarding the Ellis Dress Shop, 1010 East 63d street, burglars yesterday afternoon entered the place by cutting a hole in the floor from the basement. With $2,500 in merchandise in their possession they touched the alarm in crawling out and were frightened away, leaving behind all but $500 worth of dresses.

BLUE LARKSPUR WINS STARS AND STRIPES

CUBS WALLOP PIRATES, 10 TO 1; THEN LOSE, 5 TO 1

SLIDE BACK INTO 2D PLACE AFTER CLIMB TO FIRST

Teachout Stops Bucs But Root Fails.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 4.—Our Cubs had a noon sandwich in first place but when the supper bell rang they were back in second place, all this being due to the fact that they beat the Pirates, 10 to 1, in the morning game and then came back in the afternoon to take a 5 to 1 licking.

ED TEACHOUT.

But the day was not in vain in the National league race, for at sundown the Chicagoans had shown a net gain of two ten-thousandths per cent in their rivalry with the Brooklyn Robins. At dawn this morning the percentages were:

Brooklyn, .6029; Chicago, .6027.

By one of those queer twists the Brooklyn club in first place is five games ahead of the Giants, whereas the Cubs in second place are five and a half games ahead of the Giants.

To prevent press coop statisticians from becoming even more balmy than they now are, Blake will do his best to beat Larry French in tomorrow's game with the hope, of course, that the Giants will knock off the Robins, thus greatly relieving the pressure on the dizzy statisticians.

Morning Game a Frolic.

The morning game was simply one of those rough-house Cub frolics, over which Bud Teachout presided with goose egg finesse until the ninth inning. Ray Kremer was just as sublime against the Cubs in the afternoon, also holding onto a shutout until the ninth. Clyde Beck's double in the fourth inning of the morning game drove in the winning run and one more besides, and Gus Suhr, with a homer in the fourth inning of the second game and a score he made after a single in the sixth, supplied the runs essential to Pirate victory.

The Cubs made 11 hits, including a homer by Stephenson, to acquire their ten runs in the first game. That was exactly the number the Pirates made off Root in the seven innings he worked this afternoon.

The morning game being a victory and the afternoon affair a loss, we'll be chronological and give you the morning doings first.

Bucs Threaten in Third.

There wasn't a ripple of excitement until two were out in the last half of the third inning. After Hemsley had struck out and Meine had filed to Cuyler, P. Waner smacked a single into center and went to third on Brickell's single to right. It appeared that the first run of the game would be scored by the Pirates when Comorosky shot a hot liner right over second. However, in some astounding manner Blair seized the ball and flipped it to English for a force out. There were no more Pirate threats until it was most evident the Cubs had victory well in hand.

Our boys won the game with three runs in the fourth. Meine gave Cuyler a pass and did likewise for Wilson following a debate on what Manager Enz alleged was a third strike.

CORBETT WHIPS JACK THOMPSON IN NONTITLE GO

San Francisco, Cal., July 4.—(AP)—Young Corbett, southpaw fighter from Fresno, Cal., punched his way to a ten round decision over Young Jack Thompson, welterweight champion, here today. The title was not at stake.

In the ninth round Corbett, well in the lead, clipped a left to Thompson's body that dropped the titleholder for a nine count. He was groggy when he staggered to his feet, but managed to weather the storm of punches shot in as Corbett strove desperately for a knockout.

A GOLF PLAYER NAMED BOB JONES COMES TO TOWN

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Bobby Jones, a young man who has become world famous without ceasing to be himself, stepped off a train from New York yesterday at the Union station and was besieged immediately by a buzzing group which wished to shake his hand, get his autograph, take his picture, and listen to him talk.

It was a large order to throw at any man, but the way in which Bobby handled the situation might be the key to his unfailing popularity.

Writes for Messenger.

The man who holds three golf titles which no one has ever before possessed simultaneously, was ingratiating to no one and snubbed no one. When a meek messenger boy halted Bobby on his march through the station and asked him to write some little message on a slip of paper as a keepsake, the golf king of the world paused and did so with the same casual courtesy with which he would have done a favor for the prince of Wales or the mayor of New York.

Bobby stopped and let the photographers boom away for a reasonable length of time because it seemed the decent thing to do.

Then he was whisked away in a taxicab to the Blackstone hotel, where he spent the day taking a brief intermission in his trip from Southampton to Minneapolis. Last night he started on the last lap and is due to arrive today on the scene of the national open tournament.

He said he had played only twice since winning the British open, but plans to get down to practice as soon as he reaches the Interlachen Country club, where the meet is to be held. He will begin defense of his championship on Thursday and by Saturday it will be known whether he has won his third major engagement of the season.

Says He Feels Fine.

One might imagine that the strain of so intensive a campaign would wear down a man who took up the game for fun. But Bobby says he is feeling fine and is not a bit tired.

After the national open he plans to go back to his law business in Atlanta until the United States amateur begins in September.

He said that he liked the British courses very well and that the famous winds which are said to cause golfers so much distress diminished to zephyrs during the American invasion.

Helen Moody Retains Tennis Title; French Glory Fades

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, July 4.—The Yankee tennis players held their July 4 celebration at Wimbledon this afternoon as Helen Wills Moody for the fourth consecutive year won the women's singles championship. All other entrants from the United States won their matches, making three out of the four other finals matches strictly American affairs.

Mrs. Moody defeated Elizabeth Ryan in the center court, 6-2, 6-2. The other victories gave the United States almost complete domination of the field and completed the long awaited eclipse of French glory. Henri Cochet lost in a mixed doubles match in which he was paired with Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall. He was the last of the group of Frenchmen who have been champions and finalists at Wimbledon for the last six years to be eliminated. Mrs. Moody, by winning today, came within striking distance of Suzanne Lenglen's record of six singles championships, needing only two more to equal the French star.

Tilden to Try Comeback.

The men's singles already have been left to two Americans and tomorrow will find Tilden trying to stage a comeback, after nine years, against the young Texan, Wilmer Allison. There has not been an all American final in the singles division since Bill Johnston beat Francis Hunter in 1923.

The men's doubles title is up for settlement Monday between two teams of champions. Allison and John Van Ryn, the Wimbledon champions, are matched against the champions of the United States, George Lott and Johnny Doeg. Allison and Van Ryn overthrew I. G. Collins and J. C. Gregory, the British pair, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, in the semi-finals, but Lott and Doeg had a greater part in the semi-finals by contributing to the complete downfall of the French.

They beat Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, the Wimbledon titleholders of 1926 and 1928 by scoring 8-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1. They are even money against Allison and Van Ryn.

Women's Finals All American.

Another American victory today was that of Edith Cross and Sarah Palfrey over the British pair, Misses B. Feitham and Mary Heeley, 8-6, 6-2. They will oppose Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan, champions in 1927, for the title. Miss Ryan, a native of California, also is a finalist in the mixed doubles with Jack Crawford of Australia. They were victors over Cochet and Mrs. Whittingstall, 6-3, 7-9, and will meet the German pair, Daniel Prenn and Fraulein Krahwinkel, for the title.

Thus there are 13 American finalists out of 16, a record which has not been equaled in decades, and the United States is assured of four championships and perhaps a partnership in the fifth.

Lott starred in the doubles match against the Frenchmen. His placements were unerring. The pace of the Americans was too swift for Brugnon who left most of the burden to Cochet. Doeg tried to lob during the first set, but Cochet's smashes were too dangerous, and Doeg carried the attack thereafter to the net. It was a hard fight during the second set, but it finished the Frenchmen and the Americans won easily thereafter.

SOX REVIVE; BEAT BROWNS, 6 TO 4, AFTER 11-3 LOSS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

As a reward for the 18,000 faithful who turned out to welcome them home, the White Sox salvaged one half of yesterday's holiday program with the St. Louis Browns. In the opening portion of the show the tail end hose exploded along with the rest of the fireworks and were mangled by the painful margin of 11 to 3, but in the night cap they were a vast improvement. They accomplished a 6 to 4 triumph which was doubly notable because it marked the return to working order of Al Thomas' heretofore trick pitching elbow.

The main difficulty with the first game was that Ted Lyons was unable to supress the fellow named Goose Goslin. He hit one homer with a mate waiting and later hit another with two waiting. This gave the Browns a 5 to 0 lead before the Sox could even make an impression on Rip Collins.

Walsh Fails in Rescue.

Eventually they got to the Texan and made him desert the premises, but it was wasted effort because the Browns persisted in piling up runs. For instance they let loose a salvo of five in the eighth, some of which was due to Ed Walsh's poor rescue work.

Thomas' co-workers did an excellent job of trying to spoil Thomas' return to a winning rôle in the afterpiece. This was managed by six glaring errors, two of them by Gregory Mulleavy, the new shortstop from Toledo. Because of these blunders Thomas at one time appeared to be headed directly for defeat, but the tide turned in his favor when a pair of home runs were reeled off. Johnny Kerr and Carl Reynolds hit these for a total of three runs in the fifth. The Browns then tied it up again but a flurry of two hits and a pass with an error in the seventh gave the Hose the runs needed to win.

Faber or Braxton will start against Gray today.

Goslin Starts Fireworks.

Goslin's unpleasant deeds in the first game began in the fourth round. He whistled his first homer into the upper right field deck after McNeely had doubled. Then both factions remained quiet until the sixth when Goslin made another lengthy contribution. McNeely again started it with a double and O'Rourke walked. Both ran to the counter when Goslin planted his second homer into the lower tier in right. This caused the Sox to fall behind by 5 to 0.

The Sox made their first demon-

FIND LOST SON; HE'S CHAMPION MARBLE PLAYER

New York, July 4.—[Special.]—In a newspaper picture of the champion newsboy marble shooter of New York, Vincent Sullivan, 13, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Philip of Fall River, Mass., today discovered their runaway foster child.

Missing for several months from his Fall River home, the boy had been staying at the Brace Memorial Newsboys' home here, earning his own living by selling newspapers and incidentally acquiring fame at marbles. By telegraph Mrs. Philip notified the authorities at the newsboys' house of her discovery.

40,000 WATCH 1929 CHAMPION BREAK RECORD

Beats Misstep in Thrilling Finish.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Blue Larkspur, the champion 3 year old of 1929, came back to the races at Arlington Park yesterday for his first brush with the older turf champions, and before the largest crowd that ever has visited a Chicago track he won a thrilling and brilliant victory in the Stars and Stripes handicap. The race was worth $33,050.

JIMMY SMITH.

Every person in the crowd of 40,000 stood and cheered as Blue Larkspur, Misstep and Sun Beau came thundering down the stretch heads apart, in the most thrilling finish of the present turf season.

Sharing honors with Blue Larkspur was the veteran Jockey Jimmy Smith, old enough to boast of grandchildren. Smith hugged the rail with Blue Larkspur up to the last turn and took every chance a jockey can take. Then he brought the champion out slightly, as the stretch run started, and flew past all his rivals.

Wins by Half Length.

Blue Larkspur went on to beat Misstep in the furious stretch drive by half a length. Misstep led Sun Beau home by a nose. Silverdale was fourth; Pigeon Hole, fifth, and Golden Prince, sixth. The others in the big field of sixteen finished badly scattered out.

The winner's share of the $33,050 purse was $26,050. Misstep won $4,000 for second place, with $2,000 going to Sun Beau and $1,000 to Silverdale.

Blue Larkspur, shouldering 121 pounds and carrying the silks of Edward R. Bradley, took a full second off the track record held by Misstep when he ran the mile and a furlong in 1:49 2-5. It was within a second of the world's record for the distance. Hot Toddy, one of those which trailed Blue Larkspur home, holds the world's record, established at Belmont Park, where he had to gallop around only one turn.

Blue Larkspur was the second choice in the betting, favorite honors having gone to the McLean entry of Jock and Silverdale. In the two dollar mutuels Blue Larkspur paid $10.40 to win, $6.53 to place, and $5.22 to show. Misstep rewarded his loyal backers at $6 to place and $4.98 to show. Sun Beau paid $8.06 to show. There was a heavy plunge on the field, which included Caruso, Golden Prince, Live Oak, The Nut, and Hot Toddy.

Breezing Thru Breaks Record.

Blue Larkspur's record breaking performance, which makes him stand out as one of the greatest horses in the country, came just 30 minutes before his stable mate, Breezing Thru, a candidate for the $70,000 Classic to be run next Saturday, took a slice off the Arlington track mark for a mile. Breezing Thru flew over the eight furlongs in 1:36 3-5. The old mark was 1:37 3-5, established by Handy Mandy.

Unlike Blue Larkspur, which had been stoutly backed, Breezing Thru brought the proverbial hatful for a two dollar ticket, returning $27.06 to win, $9.94 to place, and $6.10 to show. The performance makes Breezing Thru

ROBINS FLYING HIGH; DIVIDE WITH GIANTS

Lose in 11 Innings, 5-4; Then Win, 5-2.

New York, July 4.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins clung to their precarious hold on first place in the National league today by winning the afternoon game of a double header, 5 to 2, after the Giants had taken the morning contest, 5 to 4, in an eleven inning struggle.

William Watson Clark of Brooklyn held the Giants to six hits in the second game, one of which was a home run by Lindstrom. The Robins made some timely hits off Bill Walker, getting two runs on a single hit on two occasions. Finn's homer, following a walk, turned the trick the second time.

The Giants scored runs in the seventh, eighth and ninth inning of the opener to tie the score. Dazzy Vance pitched the entire contest, giving eleven hits. Herman, Gilbert and Hogan hit homers in the morning. Scores:

FIREMEN PILE UP AN 8 TO 2 SCORE ON KRUTCKOFFS

The Chicago Firemen defeated the Krutckoff

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE:

Perhaps some of your readers can furnish me the name of the prohibition paper which old Uncle Orrin took and which always will linger in my memory because of the favorite poem published on the first page. This poem I had to memorize and write down once a week to exercise Uncle Orrin as proof that I was keeping before my youthful mind the evils of drink. Here is the master-piece:

A father had a little boy,
His faults were very few,
But every place that father went,
That boy went there, too.

He followed him to vote one day,
Which was against the rule,
For boys are not allowed to vote
Per boys are not allowed to vote
Until after they leave school.

But—did he linger near?
Oh, no, he walked across the street
And bought a glass of beer.

The frightened mother cried.

Mrs. Carl W. Chapin.

This recent cool pleasant weather reminds me that in 1875 or 1879 it was cooler on July 4 than at Christmas and had to change the children's clothes and put on their winter wraps.

Bobby Jones' Welcome.

Perhaps overdrawn, but none the less sincere, was the welcome given Bobby Jones on his return from his successful European golf trip. Bobby is an American institution. He is the epitome of Yankee sportsmanship. He has accomplished about all there is to accomplish in the realm of golf. In accomplishing this he has, however, accomplished something else generally overlooked after all these years. He has accomplished control of his own temper. When Bobby was a youngster on the links he was known to break a club in disgust after a poor shot. Critics of that time agreed he was a great natural performer, but declared he never would get far in competition because of lack of a sound golfing temperament. Excuse us for having such a long memory, but isn't that a change also an accomplishment?

ILLINOIS WOMEN'S A. C. TEAM WINS U. S. TRACK TITLE

Two Girls Break Five World's Records.

Dallas, Tex., July 4.—(AP)—The flying feet of Stella Walsh, Cleveland flash, and the strong right arm of Mildred Didrickson, 17 year old Dallas star, sent five world's athletic records for women tumbling into the discard in the National A. A. U. track and field meet at Ownby stadium here today.

Competing for the New York Central Railway, Miss Walsh set new international marks in all three events in which she competed, the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the broad jump. In skipping the century in 11.1, she defeated the former record holder, Betty Robinson of Chicago, by two inches. The previous record was 11.2.

Miss Didrickson, competing her first year in track and field, wrecked the former world marks both in the javelin and baseball throws and finished second to Miss Walsh in the broad jump. She threw a standard baseball 268 feet, 10½ inches to beat the former mark by more than 10 feet.

A sixth world record out of the 11 events on the program fell to the speedy 440 yard relay team from the Milrose Athletic club, New York City, which sped the distance in 49.4.

Team honors went to the Illinois Women's Athletic club for the second straight year. Presenting a well balanced team that placed in all but one event, the Chicago outfit scored 30 points. The South Park team of Chicago scored 3 points; Eureka, Cal., 3; and St. Louis, 3.

Helen Filkey, star of the Illinois Women's Athletic club, was defeated in the 80-meter hurdles for the first time in eight years, when she tripped over a crossbar and fell heavily after having been 5 yards in front of the field.

Race Fans Bet $1,400,000 at Arlington

While definite figures were not available last night on the holiday attendance and mutuel betting handle at Arlington Park yesterday, Charles McCulloch, chairman of the board of directors, announced that all Arlington records had been broken. "More than 30,000 programs were sold," Mr. McCulloch said. "They were gone before the second race was run. There were more than 45,000 on the grounds."

"I don't know what amount of money was handled through the mutuels," Mr. McCulloch continued, "but it was larger than on any day last year."

On Classic day at Arlington last year more than $1,250,000 was handled through the mutuels, so the betting yesterday must have totaled close to $1,400,000, or perhaps it was upwards of that figure.

Samuel Insull was an interested spectator, Arlington being the first Chicago race course he has ever visited. Mr. Insull was host to a number of his friends in the Post and Paddock club. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was another spectator who was thrilled when Blue Larkspur, Misstep and Sun Beau staged their desperate run in the home stretch. Mr. Davis was a guest of Albert D. Lasker.

* *

Herbert Bayard Swope arrived from New York just in time to see his royally bred 2 year old Seb run third in the Yankee Doodle purse. The daughter of High Time was beaten by Walter J. Salmon's Mad Career and Edward B. McLean's Portcodine, but lost some ground when heading into the stretch or there might have been a different story to tell.

* *

Edward R. Bradley had planned to come to Arlington to see Blue Larkspur run in the Stars and Stripes handicap, but Mr. Bradley has been ailing for several months and his physicians advised him to go to his Idle Hour farm in Kentucky and spend the holiday in a quiet way. Col. Bradley at the last minute instructed his trainer, Dick Thompson, to put Jockey Jimmy Smith in the saddle on Blue Larkspur instead of Eddie Legere.

* *

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hitt arrived from Virginia in time to see the Stars and Stripes handicap decided. Mrs. Hitt's stable is one of the largest at Arlington, her fencing ace is Crumpler, while Mr. Hitt's best horse on the flat is Sublevade.

* *

Two rich stakes are down for a decision at Arlington this afternoon—the $15,000 added Arlington Oaks, which has attracted eleven of the best 3 year old fillies in the country, and the $5,000 added Hyde Park stakes, which drew 22 of the best male 2 year olds from the east and the west. Walter J. Salmon's Snowflake was the early favorite to win the Oaks, while Insco, Siskin, and Outbound were the most highly fancied in the Hyde Park stakes.

* *

The automobile parking space at Arlington is 50 per cent larger this year than it was last season, yet every available inch of it was occupied before 2 o'clock yesterday. The thousands of cars arriving after that hour were turned away from the grounds.

1,500 See Racine Defeat Manitowoc Nine, 8 to 5

Racine, Wis., July 4.—[Special.]—Racine and Manitowoc clubs of the Wisconsin state league staged an old fashioned slugging battle before a crowd of 1,500 fans here today with Racine registering an 8 to 5 triumph. Manitowoc outhit the Belles, 12 to 11, but Frank Brindzas wildness in issuing nine bases on balls coupled with some timely hitting by Racine spelled defeat. The score:

Batteries—Brindza and Gray; Pocan and Dobbins.

Two Rivers' Rally in 2d Beats Sheboygan, 4 to 3

Sheboygan, Wis., July 4.—[Special.]—A three run rally in the second inning carried Two Rivers to a 4 to 3 win over Sheboygan in a state league game here today. Score:

Two Rivers	030	000	010	4	13 1
Sheboygan	100	000	002	3	11 2

Madison Blues Beat Milwaukee Oils, 7 to 4

Madison, Wis., July 4.—[Special.]—The Madison Blues won a free hitting state league ball game from the Milwaukee Castor Oil nine at Sun Prairie today, 7 to 4. Score:

Madison	400	100	02*	7	13 0

GREAT BRITAIN REPORTS ON ITS COTTON TRADE

Reveals Losses in Far East.

LONDON, July 4.—(AP)—The report of the government committee on the cotton industry, made public today, says that one factor which enabled Great Britain's competitors to oust her cotton manufacturers so largely from the eastern markets has been the competitors' extensive use of short stapled Indian cotton, while the Lancashire mills kept almost exclusively to the longer stapled but more expensive American cotton.

The commitee recommends that the government take every step in its power to urge on Lancashire employers and operators the importance of considering possible means to reduce production costs and to recover a lost export trade in cotton goods.

Certain methods of technical improvement in machinery are suggested, including the use of ring spindles and the introduction of automatic looms.

Amalgamation Question.

On the question of amalgamation, the committee says that the formation of larger units in the spinning and manufacturing sections of the industry would secure economies in production cost, enable a common policy to be formulated, and provide a basis for coördination in production and marketing so as to enable Lancashire again to take the initiative in world markets.

The committee shows in detail the serious export losses, mostly in the Far East. The falling off in India, it says, was due to production of cotton goods there, while Japan was a formidable competitor in the export business.

Referring to methods, the report says that the organization of the Lancashire cotton industry is, with the exception of the finishing section, substantially the same as that which existed in the nineteenth century, whereas Lancashire's successful foreign rivals in world trade have adopted very different methods based on the establishment of closest relations between production and marketing.

Egyptian Cotton.

"For the manufacture of cheap standard lines in which British goods have been so largely ousted from the Eastern markets, extensive use has been made of shortstapled Indian cotton.

"This has hitherto been but little used in Lancashire, where the longer stapled but expensive American cotton has been almost exclusively preferred. In this way her competitors, some of whom have acquired great skill in the mixing of Indian and other cotton with American cotton, have secured an initial advantage of Lancashire by using a cheaper cotton for their manufactures."

The committee consisted of J. R. Clynes, home secretary, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admirality, Sir Alan Anderson, Joseph Jones and Sir William McClintock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 4.—The $400,000,000 Utilities Power and Light corporation, which has public utilities properties in the United States, Canada, Nova Scotia and England, is planning to acquire holdings in utility companies operating on the continent of Europe, it has been learned.

Harley L. Clarke, president of that corporation and also of the Fox Film corporation, is in Europe and is expected to bring to a conclusion discussions for the formation of a new public utility holding company in central Germany in coöperation with German bankers.

The Chase Securities corporation, bankers for Utilities Power and Light, is reported to be associated with Mr. Clarke in his projects abroad.

Interest of the American group is expected to center first in the Leipzig area. It is reported that a $15,000,000 holding company may be formed to acquire large interests in German gas and electric companies, among which the Tyueringer Gas Gesellschaft and affiliated companies are mentioned in dispatches.

MAY CONSTRUCT RADIO PHONE STATION IN CAL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 4.—The American Telephone and Telegraph company has applied for a construction permit to erect a short wave radio telephone station in California, as a first step in its plan to extend trans-oceanic radio telephone service into the Pacific region.

The proposed station is designed to connect the United States with various countries bounding the Pacific and its island groups, as radio telephone stations are equipped in the distant countries. As the demand for service develops, it is announced, Bell system telephones will be connected with one after another of the far eastern nations through a combination of overland and oversea telephone transmission.

The first regular service planned will be provided to the island of Oahu, in the Hawaiian group, according to plans. It is expected that by 1932 all subscribers of the Mutual Telephone company of Honolulu, on that island, will be within voice range of United States telephones.

Preliminary arrangements were made in a series of conferences between Vice President T. G. Miller of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and President J. A. Balch of the Mutual Telephone company, who came to New York for the purpose.

Prairie Pipe Line Cuts Oklahoma City Runs 25%

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 4.—(AP)—Prairie Pipe Line company today reduced its daily average runs from the Oklahoma City oil field 25 per cent. Decrease in refinery demands was given as the reason for the action. Operators in the older areas of the state have been advised they will have to take care of any new production they develop. Oil men today forecast other pipeline operators soon would follow the Prairie move.

CHICAGO CURB SALES VOLUME GAINS SHARPLY

Chicago Curb exchange stock sales for the six months ended June 30 show an increase of 263 per cent over the same period of 1929, amounting to 3,679,316 shares, against 1,396,845 shares last year. Bond sales during the first half of the year were also sharply higher, aggregating $957,700 par value, as compared to $607,300 par value, an increase of 58 per cent.

Stock trades last month totaled 490,342 shares, against 229,527 shares in June, 1929, and bond sales totaled $132,000 par value, compared to a volume of $42,800.

WOOL.

BOSTON, July 4.—(AP)—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow:

"Business in the seaboard wool markets has slumped noticeably in the last week. Manufacturers are showing little interest in wool after recent heavy purchases, and are evidently waiting for better demand for goods. Prices generally are maintained without change this week.

"In the west buying has also slowed up. Foreign markets have shown an easier tendency and Bradford predicts 5 to 7½ per cent decline at London generally for the sales commencing Tuesday.

"The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from Jan. 1, 1930, to July 2, 1930, inclusive, were 67,611,500 pounds, against 88,889,000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from Jan. 1, 1930, to July 2, 1930, inclusive, were 156,457,600 pounds, against 152,580,185 pounds for the same period last year."

Cites Chicago as Furniture Trade Center

BY SCRUTATOR.

It is something of a pleasure to be able, in these days when Chicago is being stewed over a figurative fire of criticism about other things, to record that no one has yet advanced an idea that it's a bad city to do business in.

As a specific instance, the furniture trade may be pointed out. Beginning on Monday, the American Furniture mart, surpassed in size only by the Merchandise mart among buildings devoted to a single industry, will start its regular semi-annual style show. It is asserted that 7,500 visitors, nearly all of them buyers or potential buyers of furniture for the retail trade, will come here for the show, which lasts two weeks.

Last January a total of 5,737 buyers from 3,481 retail concerns appeared here. The next rival market could show only a fourth as many. V. L. Alward, president of the mart, asserts that 70 per cent of all the furniture sold to the retail trade of the country is merchandised here.

Second Largest Producer.

But Chicago's position as the furniture center of the country does not depend alone on the marketing factor. Some smaller cities, like Grand Rapids and Rockford, have attained fame as producers of furniture. Yet Chicago is second only to New York as a community producing furniture, store and office fixtures, and in 1927, the last year for which statistics are available, made more than 7 per cent of the country's entire output.

In that twelve months the industry employed an average of 11,733 workers in the city and paid them $18,779,118. The value of the production was fixed at nearly sixty-six million dollars. Ten other local industries surpassed this one in value of output. A city must be quite a place when its eleventh industry still is big enough to rank it second in a near billion dollar business.

New Englanders have the reputation of being colder and harder than the proverbial Scotsmen in matters of business. Yet twenty-eight of them come to the mart here for their goods, against one for the next competing point; and even Michigan, where furniture factories abound, sends five merchants here to one for the second market. Factories from 114 towns and villages in the middle west are displaying their goods.

Undergoing Changes.

The furniture business, which is as old as civilization, is undergoing a number of changes. There are style trends that no manufacturer can afford to ignore, any more than a dress manufacturer can overlook what women will want. Last year kitchen furniture sales by strictly retail furniture stores fell off markedly, perhaps 40 per cent, while sales of living room furniture increased the country over.

The industry in all its branches has an immediate future about as uncertain as that of most other industries. Facts seemingly unquestionable are that Chicago has become the capital of furniture's realm, because its natural advantages commend it overwhelmingly, and that this supremacy is becoming yearly greater.

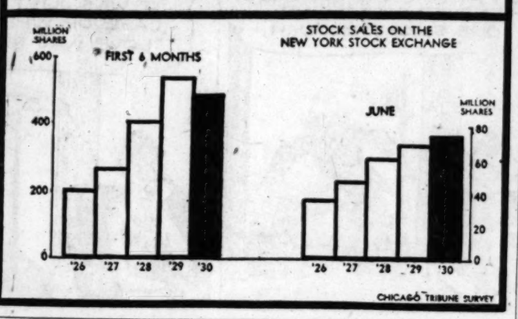
JUNE STOCK SALES SET NEW RECORD FOR THE MONTH—YEAR'S TOTAL BELOW 1929



MUNICIPAL BOND HOLDERS' RIGHTS SUFFICE, CLAIM

New York, July 4.—The machinery for the enforcement of the rights of holders of municipal securities is adequate, writes David M. Wood of the firm of Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, municipal bond attorneys, in the current issue of the Colonist.

"Let the investor satisfy himself that the investment is intrinsically sound, that the legality of the security has been approved by competent counsel, and he need not fear that he will be unable to enforce his rights," according to Mr. Wood.

"The fact is that municipal securities as a class are, next to the obligations of the United States government, the safest and best secured investments in the world, but they are not fool proof.

"There is no magic in the name 'municipal bond,' ike any other investment, an intelligent consideration of the assets and revenues back of the bond is necessary. If these assets are adequate full payment of the bonds and the interest thereon can be enforced.

"Let us assume that a default has occurred in the payment of a general obligation issued by a city, county, or school district, for the payment of which no special fund is pledged but which declares on its face that the full faith and credit of the issuing body are pledged for its payment. How may such a bond be enforced?

EARNINGS OF TRUST CONCERNS HOLD UP WELL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 4.—Earnings of most New York trust companies were generally maintained or increased in the first half of this year, as indicated by reports of their condition and incomes published today. However, some declines were recorded.

The United States Trust company earned more in the first half of 1930 than in the entire calendar year 1929, or 1928, but slightly less than for the full calendar year 1927. Indicated earnings for six months ended June 30 were $3,091,000, equivalent to $154.53 a share on 20,000 shares outstanding of $100 par. This compares with earnings of $135.25 a share for the entire year of 1929, with $140.07 for the full year 1928, and with $162.59 for the full year 1927.

The Guaranty Trust company indicates for the six months earnings of $12,749,470, equivalent to $14.17 a share on the 900,000 shares of $100 per stock outstanding, compared with $16.90 for the corresponding period of last year, and with $34.25 for the whole calendar year 1929.

The Bank of the United States, exclusive of the Bankers' corporation, earned $1,799,229 in the six months ended June 30, equivalent to $1.78 a share on the 1,010,000 shares outstanding. Earnings for the first half of last year were indeterminable because of mergers.

Winnipeg Has Dull Day of Grain Trading

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., July 4.—Closing Chicago grain markets had heavy influence in Winnipeg markets today. Light offerings and scattered buying, however, caused firmness. Prices ranged within one cent, with the tendency upward.

With practically nothing offered for sale, it took only a limited amount of buying to boost prices. Overnight sales were only a quarter million bushels Canadian wheat. Liverpool closed firm on bad crop news from Europe, particularly France and Italy.

July Closes at 96¼c.

Cash and Winnipeg July closed at 96¼c; October, $1.00⅝; December, $1.02⅝. These prices were 48 cents under quotations of a year ago in Winnipeg for July and 41 for October and December. Liverpool closed at $1.20⅝. Canadian spot prices on No. 1 northern Manitoba wheat.

Five grain boats left Canadian lake heads with 1,186,000 bushels of wheat for eastern ports, George F. Rand taking 300,000 bushels to Buffalo. The wheat pool took 500,000 bushels out of pit and there reports the pool had completed some good sales.

While there is no great volume of Canadian wheat going out by the Pacific-Panama canal route to Europe, there is a steady movement. Four ships are in the Vancouver, B. C., harbor loading 400,000 bushels. There are bookings for 1,000,000 bushels in hand.

Michigan Business Gains, Bank Review Reports

The month just passed saw a further slight improvement in Michigan business over the preceding month. Bank clearings, building awards, and the production of cement all showed increases in considerable degree, according to the current issue of Michigan Graphic, published by the First National Bank of Detroit. "Motor vehicle production alone showed a decline, public utility activity and the industrial consumption of electric power remaining about the same," the Graphic states.
